Maryland Militia Marches; Lynch Arrests Awaited

Troops Leave Baltimore, Believed on Way to Princess Anne.

Follows Somerset Prosecutor's Defi

County Refused to Jail Nine in Armwood Hanging.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 27—With National Guard troops mobilizing at Baltimore and leaving for an unannounced destination, reports were current here tonight that they were on their way to Princess Anne to arrest nine men said to have been leaders of the mob that on October 18 lynched George Armwood, Negro.

A large contingent of picked men of the Fifth regiment, equipped with steel helmets and arms, moved out of the Richmond armory at Baltimore at midnight, the Associated Press reported.

The soldiers boarded 12 large buses. Trucks filled with provisions were standing by. Officers in charge refused to make any comment. Enlisted men said they did not know where they were going.

Governor "Sick in Bed."

Meanwhile, lights burned in the governor's mansion here. The governor agreed to see newspapermen at midnight, but at the last minute the conference was called off with the explanation that Gov. Ritchie was "sick in bed."

Walter Kirkman, State budget officer, leaving the governor's manson, said he had "heard something about troops."

"Are the troops going to Somerset County to arrest the nine men identified as participants in the Princess Anne lynching last month?" the governor's secretary was asked.

"We can not say anything now," was the reply.

Follows Rolph's Lynch Praise.

The troop mobilization followed on the heels of the statement of Gov. Rolph of California approving the lynching of two kidnapers and confessed murderers in San Jose, Calif. The mobilization of troops is believed to be Maryland's answer to lynch law. Gov. Ritchie has been criticized severely in connection with the Princess Anne lynching.

Following the killing of Armwood, who was dragged from the Princess Anne jail, hanged on a tree and his body burned at the main corner of the town, Gov. Ritchie ordered an investigation into the affair.

Arrests Ordered.

After days of inquiry, investigators representing the Governor and Attorney General William Preston Lane announced they knew the identity of nine of the leaders of the mob, which is said to have included more than 1,000 persons. The names were not made public, but arrests were ordered.

Witnesses in affidavits had named the nine men. State's Attorney John F. Robins, of Somerset County, refused to order the arrests. He said if the men were arrested "a crowd would come and take them away." He did, however, offer to call the grand jury. Gov. Ritchie replied that a secret grand jury investigation was "just what we want to avoid."

Lane sent Robins copies of the evidence obtained by the investigators.

Replies, "Come and Get 'Em."

"If Lane wants those men, let him come down and get them," Robins replied.

On the day Armwood was lynched, he had been taken from Baltimore to the Princess Anne Jail. Gov. Ritchie said he had allowed the transfer on assurance of Princess Anne authorities that the prisoner would be protected. Following the lynching, the governor publicly blamed Judge Robert F. Duer and State's Attorney John F. Robins, adding he expected them to do everything in their power to bring about the arrest of the mob leaders.

Before the lynching, Judge Duer addressed the mob, attempting to restore order. When this failed, the judge returned to his home, past which the prisoner was dragged after he had been taken from the jail. Thirteen Maryland State policemen were slightly injured in defending the jail.

Armwood had been charged with attacking a 71-year-old white woman.

Dr. Wynekoop Retracts Story She Fired Shot

Suspect Says Police Words Employed After Long Questioning.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—Dr. Alice Wynekoop was reported by her attorney tonight to have repudiated from her cot in the County Jail Hospital the statement that she shot her daughter-in-law, Rheta, as the girl lay dead on a surgical operating table.

Police and prosecutors expressed amazement at the reported retraction, pointing out that she had been emphatic in declaring she would not do so. They said, however, that the repudiation would have no effect on the State's case.

"Dr. Wynekoop replied, 'No, I didn't shoot anyone,' when I asked her whether she had shot Rheta," Attorney Frank Tyrell said. "She told me the police had put the words of the statement into her mouth after they had questioned her for hours."

Doctor "Very Sick."

Prosecutors or interviewers were not allowed to visit Dr. Wynekoop in the jail, where physicians and Attorney Terrell described her as being "very sick."

Biochemical tests were being made to determine her condition. Federal officials said they were making a "routine inquiry" into whether she had complied with Government regulations in using and dispensing narcotics.

From Louis Shulkin, a gunsmith, police obtained a statement that he had sold Earle Wynekoop, husband of the dead woman, bullets for the gun from which a shot was fired through her heart.

"He bought a box of bullets from me on November 11," Shulkin said. "He wanted to buy three or four blank cartridges, too, but I wouldn't break open a box, so he just took the regular bullets."

Mother Taught Use of Them.

Earle, also confined in the county jail, but not allowed to visit his mother, has admitted teaching Mrs. Wynekoop to use the pistol in the private garage at the rear of the old 16-room mansion where Rheta died in a basement operating room.

A warrant charging Earle with aiding to plot the death of his young wife was issued by Judge Joseph B. David, and a hearing set for Monday. Dr. Wynekoop's arraignment has been set for the same day, and Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty announced he would ask the grand jury tomorrow to indict mother and son.

"Dr. Alice is very ill. She must remain in bed for some time. She is close to exhaustion."

'Fine Work' Rolph Says Of Lynching

Governor of California Will Pardon Slayers of Kidnapers.

Minister Among Many Commending Stand; Others Dissent.

San Jose, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP).—Approval from Gov. James Rolph, jr., and other State officials for giving "a fine lesson to the whole Nation" eased the taut nerves of this town today, scene of the lynching last night of John M. Holmes and Thomas H. Thurmond, confessed kidnaper-slayers of Brooke Hart, San Jose youth.

"They'll learn they can't kidnap in this State," were the ringing words from the executive office in Sacramento. "If anyone is arrested for the good job I'll pardon them all."

Cheered By Thousands.

In historic St. James Park, across the street from the jail, the victims were strung up on separate trees while thousands of men, women and children cheered with a lustiness that could be heard for blocks.

The governor's attitude brought a flood of messages to his office in Sacramento, some praising and some condemning him.

"No kidnaper will ever be turned loose or pardoned while I am governor," Rolph said. He added that "kidnapers will learn they're not safe in our penitentiaries."

"They made a good job of it and I hope this lesson will serve in every State of the Union," the governor said emphatically.

Time for Action.

"It is about time the people should have comfort in their homes. This kidnaping business has become so bad that mothers and fathers are afraid to let their children out of their homes."

From Colorado, New York, Pennsylvania and California cities came messages commenting on the governor's lynching stand.

"Congratulations on your attitude toward the Hart case," wired a Redlands, Calif., minister.

"Lynching is a sincere demand for law enforcement. I congratulate you on their attitude toward lynching and the people of California for their noble example in dealing with criminals," messaged Harry G. Kyle, Kansas City attorney and former judge.

"We protest your failure to provide adequate protection," wired William L. Patterson, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, New York. "We demand immediate removal and arrest and prosecution with application of death penalty to all officials and private persons responsible."

Hitler Assails Dollfuss Rule

Calls Austria Government Murderers at Grave of Slain Soldier.

Nurnberg, Germany, Nov. 27 (AP). Chancellor Hitler called the Austrian Dollfuss government "murderers" in a speech today at the grave of a reichswehr soldier, slain Friday on the Austrian border.

"The dead man is a martyr for a common German cause," the German leader said at the state funeral held today for Private Schumacher, who was skiing with comrades at the time of the shooting.

Hitler further declared that the only thing that stood in the way of a union between Germany and Austria was suppression in Austria.

"I believe his death will achieve what we all hope for," he said, alluding to the union between the two countries.

Raising his voice, he shouted:

"The murderers of this German soldier are not identical with the millions of his brothers across the border. If these brothers had the liberty to raise their voices, they would solemnly declare an independence from these murderers and their principles, which resulted in this bloody deed."

Liquor, Film Codes Signed By President

Agreements Place U. S. in Virtual Control of Industries.

Rum Pact to Continue in Operation Until Congress Acts.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 27. Energetically affixing his signature to two codes of fair competition, President Roosevelt today established the Government in virtual control of the liquor business and the controversial movie industry.

The distillery agreement, which comes under the A. A. A., will control the manufacture and distribution of whisky from the date of repeal—December 5—until Congress enacts permanent legislation after it convenes the following month.

In all, the President signed 21 NRA codes, brought here by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, including the much-debated motion-picture agreement. The latter gives the Government broad supervison and the power to veto, leaving Administration to a movie code authority.

Action Explained.

Announcement by the President tonight that he had signed the code for the distilling industry followed by a few hours the arrival of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, under whose jurisdiction the agreement was drawn. The President issued this statement, explaining his action:

"I have approved the code of fair competition for the distilling industry.

"Of course, it devolves on Congress to determine what legislation it wishes to enact as to the control of the liquor traffic and the protection of those States that wish to remain dry. But in the meantime it is hoped the signing of the code will prevent the confusion and uncertainty that necessarily would arise between the actual legal repeal of the amendment and the passage of appropriate legislation by Congress in consequence thereof.

"While the industry has not yet formally signified its assent to this code, we have the assurance from the leaders of the industry of their earnest desire to cooperate in every manner possible with the Government during this emergency.

Waits on Congress.

"The code will be effective and control the industry until such time as Congress shall pass suitable legislation for permenent government thereof.

"This code in no way limits the authority of the several States to regulate the methods of sale of intoxicating liquors, but seeks to eliminate abuses of liquor traffic and the evils of bootlegging."

Earlier in the day Secretary Wallace said it was up to the President to decide whether, by signing the code, he would set up governmental regulations and price control over the liquor industry, which was vigorously opposed by spokesmen at a hearing in Washington Friday.

Provisions of Code.

He said the code left the industry substantial self-administration, except that the Government reserved the right of veto and initiation. He also said the Government retained almost absolute control over liquor itself by regulation of production, distribution and taxation.

While the industry was placed under the AAA by Executive order, Mr. Wallace smilingly expressed the hope its administration would be under the Treasury as much as possible.

"I want Henry Morgenthau to have it without any trouble from me," said the Secretary. "The general feeling is that it would be best

Family Threatened In Extortion Note

Los Angeles Man Told He Must Pay $25,000.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Rulon C. McMurrin, vice president of the Los Angeles Rock & Gravel Co., reported to police today the receipt of an anonymous extortion note demanding $25,000 for the safety of his family.

The note was left on the doorstep of his home, warning him to "watch the papers" to see where to leave the money to prevent a "disaster" to his family.

McMurrin, his wife, and two small daughters, aged 6 and 3 years, were placed under guard.

Rockefeller, Sr., Ready For Trip South Today

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP). John D. Rockefeller, sr., is ready to leave tomorrow for his winter home at Ormond Beach, Fla., if his physician agrees to the trip.

Rockefeller took an automobile ride Saturday—his first since his recent slight illness.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Firmin Gemier, 64, noted theatrical producer and actor, who died yesterday of heart disease.

Attorney Given Prison Term In Misuse of Bank's Funds

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Isidor Kresel, the Austrian emigrant boy who rose high among New York lawyers, was sentenced to Sing Sing Prison today on a charge of aiding in the misapplication of funds belonging to an affiliate of the closed Bank of United States.

"I am innocent," said Kresel, former counsel to the bank, when Supreme Court Justice George H. Taylor, jr., ordered him to prison for 18 to 30 months.

Weak from illness and with tears in his eyes, Kresel was sent to the Toombs when his lawyer failed to obtain bail pending an appeal.

The court said it believed Kresel's conviction as well as that of two other defendants would have a "salutary effect upon the banking business."

Kresel collapsed when the verdict was returned 10 days ago. Appealing for leniency he maintained "complete innocence of this or any other crime."

He had no intent to defraud, he said, and "no one was injured to the extent of a dollar by this transaction."

"The transaction," he argued, "had no relation to the closing of the bank."

Defense attorney, Theodore Kiendl, immediately moved to set aside the verdict, and also asked for an arrest of judgment.

Justice Taylor denied both motions, saying the appellate division and the court of appeals had held the indictment of Bernard K. Marcus and Saul Singer, former officials of the bank who were convicted on the same charge, was valid and that the verdict was just.

Lindberghs Land Plane At Cape Verde Islands

Dakar, Senegal, Nov. 27 (AP).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Porto Praia, Cape Verde Islands, today on their flight from Villa Cisneros, on the northwest coast of Africa. The distance was about 800 miles.

Labor, N. Y. Legion, Crusaders Join Struggle Against Inflation; Warburg for New Gold Base

Banker's Reply to Borah Suggests U. S.-British Pact on Money.

Declares Action Would End Fear

Proposes Withdrawal of Coin for Bullion Standard.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—A return to a "modernized" gold standard, on a bullion instead of a coin base, with an early revaluation of the dollar, was advocated today in a letter written to Senator W. E. Borah by James P. Warburg, former unofficial economic adviser to President Roosevelt.

The letter was in reply to a published statement by Senator Borah which said that Mr. Warburg, in a recent address at Philadelphia, had offered nothing constructive on the monetary problem and had only advocated a return to the policy "under which we arrived at our present disastrous condition."

Mr. Warburg, in his communication to Senator Borah, outlined an "immediate policy" on monetary matters.

Hits "Willful Depreciation."

"I believe," he wrote, "that no single action of our Government could contribute more effectively to recovery than the announcement of its intention to abandon further willful depreciation, to abandon the commodity dollar experiment, and to seek to bring about the early revaluation of the dollar in terms of a modernized gold standard.

"Such revaluation should not, in my judgment, be undertaken at once, and I do not pretend to know at what point between the present rate and the old par it should finally be. I do say, however, that an intelligent revaluation can only be undertaken in conjunction with similar action by Great Britain, which would, of course, involve the entire so-called sterling bloc. And I further venture the opinion that the best approach to such joint action would be an immediate arrangement for cooperative action by the Federal Reserve system and the Bank of England to limit excessive fluctuations of the two currencies in terms of each other."

Visions End of Fear.

During the time necessary to find the point of natural equilibrium between the dollar and the pound, by a method of "trial and error," which would enable both nations to undertake final revaluation in terms of gold, Mr. Warburg said, "I should expect that our people would be untroubled by fear as to the future of our monetary unit, because they would have, on the one hand, the assurance that our Government did not intend to seek any further depreciation, and on the other hand, the assurance that our currency would eventually be the kind of gold currency they could understand and trust."

Insofar as it was possible to make specific suggestions without knowing what will happen "between the present time and the time when it will be feasible to reach an international agreement for the reestablishment of an international gold standard," Mr. Warburg said that "the following thoughts are suggested:

Would Withdraw Gold Coin.

"1. Gold coin should be entirely withdrawn from circulation.

"2. The holding of monetary gold should be confined to central banks or banks of issue, who would use it for the settlement of international balances of payment resulting from temporary disequilibria in the foreign account, and who would likewise hold it as cover for their note issues.

"3. Note issues should be redeemable in gold bullion for export only, and shipments arising from such redemption should be made only between central banks or banks of issue. This suggestion involves overcoming French position toward giving up internal redemption in gold bullion. So long as any nation

Socialite of New York Seeks Divorce in Reno

Reno, Nev., Nov. 27 (AP).—The socially prominent Dorothy Rennard Benjamin, of New York, sued here today for divorce from Henry Rogers Benjamin on grounds of cruelty. She asked court approval of a property settlement and child custody agreement.

The Benjamins married in New York April 28, 1919, and have four children.

Canadian Corps Head Remains Seriously Ill

Montreal, Nov. 27 (AP).—Oxygen was administered again today in an attempt to save the life of Gen. Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University and war-time commander in chief of the Canadian corps in France.

He has been in the hospital three weeks, suffering a blood vessel blockage in the brain and developed pneumonia yesterday.

Educators Ask Gold Return, Fear Crisis

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Predicting a "major financial crisis" in the next few months unless confidence in the dollar is restored, 38 members of the Columbia University faculty today expressed opposition to inflation and urged an "expeditious" return to the gold standard.

The statement, signed by teachers of economics and business subjects, said:

"In our opinion, one of the most serious forces retarding recovery is the increasing public distrust of the dollar. Unless confidence is speedily restored by administrative action and by congressional resistance to demands of inflationists, the country is likely to witness a major financial crisis in the next few months."

A return to the gold standard does not necessarily mean, said the statement, a return to "a gold dollar of the former weight and fineness."

"The vital necessity is to reintroduce the gold standard and we recommend that an agreement be sought with Great Britain and those nations whose currency is linked to the pound sterling for a general return to gold.

Taking cognizance of the "severe plight of the farmers," the statement said that, while currency inflation doubtless would have the effect of reducing the present debt burden, through a rise in the price of farm products, "there is no reason to suppose that it would raise prices of these products faster than prices of things the farmer buys."

Ford Dealer Refuses Auto Bid to C. C. C.

Sabine Says Offer From Him Would Condone U. S. "Trickery."

R. P. Sabine, head of the Northwest Motor Co., Ford agency, announced last night he had decided not to bid on a contract to supply 700 trucks to the Civilian Conservation Corps, for which the War Department will open bids this morning.

Explaining he had reached his decision by advice of counsel, the Bethesda, Md., dealer, whose bids have been the object of constant opposition from Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, said he felt that by bidding today he would condone "trick specifications imposed to prevent the C. C. C. truck contract going to a Ford agency."

Sabine, asserting that $10,000,000 woul be "a conservative estimate" of the sum wasted by the Government in delays since Gen. Johnson first started warring on Ford contracts, said he had low bids on a dozen departmental contracts for motorized equipment lying sidetracked because of NRA opposition, and he felt the time had come to call a halt" as a matter of principle."

Protests "Exclusion."

The Northwest Motor Co. president protested Saturday to Secretary of War Dern that specifications for the 700 trucks to be bought for the C. C. C. had been changed for the deliberate purpose of excluding bids on Ford equipment. The change was made, he declared, at "a secret meeting" last week, when purchase of the trucks was transferred from the forest service of the Department of Agriculture to the War Department.

At the War Department yesterday, it was said specifications for today's bids "followed the regular Army standard." It was admitted, however, that they called for vehicles of six or more cylinders, precluding the offering of bids on Ford's 4-cylinder trucks. Sabine would have been forced to bid on 6-cylinder machines against manufacturers of 6-cylinder trucks.

Urged to Bid, He Says.

Sabine said last night he had been urged by "the rank and file" in the War Department to submit a bid and that if he should change his mind today and do so at the last minute it would be out of consideration for those who had stood by him in his disputes with Gen. Johnson.

A communication from the latter to the Agriculture Department, contending that Sabine had violated the NRA retail code for automobile dealers by quoting in his bids a figure below list price, was recalled yesterday and served to stir up anew the Johnson-Ford controversy. The recovery administrator's letter to Secretary Wallace was received ten day ago and referred to Comptroller General McCarl for a ruling.

Long Threat To Jail Foe's Aid Revealed

Ordered to Give $5,000 and Back Overton, Oil Man Says.

New Orleans, Nov. 27 (AP).—Threats to close down gas and oil wells owned by S. D. Hunter, of Shreveport, and put him in the penitentiary if he did not contribute to the campaign fund of Senator John H. Overton were charged today by Hunter in testifying before the Senate subcommittee investigating the Overton election.

Mr. Hunter said he had been told by State Senator J. A. Noe that Senator Huey P. Long was "incensed over his political activities" and had ordered the conservation commission to close down 75 per cent of his wells in the Shreveport area unless he contributed $5,000 to the Overton campaign, agreed not to support Pike Hall for Congress and stay out of future campaigns.

Bares Prison Threat.

He said Senator Noe also told him that he would be sent to the penitentiary on 480 charges of overproduction of oil and gas and that indictments were pending against him in Morehouse Parish.

The witness said Senator Noe had told him that if he refused to do as he was told the State administration would get the Supreme Court to remove the presiding judge in the north Louisiana court and have an administration judge from "south Louisiana" try the case.

Hunter said he refused to contribute and continued to support Pike Hall, and later Senator Long sent him word to "forget it" as charges would not be pressed against him.

On cross-examination by Allen Ellender, counsel for Overton, Hunter testified he contributed $75,000 to the campaign of Dudley Le Blanc, the anti-Long candidate, running for governor in the January election preceding the Overton September senatorial election.

Hunter said he contributed the $75,000 because he wanted to see Huey Long's candidate defeated and Le Blanc had agreed to amend the severance tax act to where it would be on the same basis as neighboring States. Also, he said, he believed the present act was preventing the State from developing its natural resources.

Gas Company Fined.

Ellender further drew from Mr. Hunter the admission that the International Gas Products Co., of which Mr. Hunter was a large stockholder, had been fined $6,000 for stealing gas by a process known as "meter-jumping."

Hunter said he knew nothing about the practice and was "shocked" when he heard it. The company demanded that the manager, who was responsible, plead guilty personally and pay the fine.

In answer to Senator Overton, Mr. Hunter said he had no reason to believe that Senator Overton had any knowledge of the threats against him.

Roosevelt Donates to Chest; Total Passes Million Mark

President Roosevelt, at Warm Springs, Ga., yesterday signed his Washington Community Chest card and directed that it be mailed to Frank J. Hogan, general chairman of the campaign. In signing the card the President authorized the statement that he "confidently hopes that the Community Chest drive in Washington and eveywhere else will be 100 per cent successful."

Past the $1,000,000 mark, Chest workers are redoubling their efforts to reach the goal of $1,945,000 by Wednesday, the last day of the campaign. The total yesterday was $1,042,000, the day's report having added $332,000.

Whether the campaign succeeds or fails now depends on Government workers who reside in Washington. At the end of the eighth day of the 10-day campaign, officials and employes of the Government had pledged 31 per cent of the amount asked of them.

Community Chest officials made a special plea to Government employes, pointing out that no money is asked now and that funds sought are to cover absolutely necessary needs of charity and welfare work throughout 1934. Money pledged does not have to be paid until next year and can be paid then in 12 monthly insalments. Chest officials pointed out that a pledge of $26 amounts to only 50 cents a week and can be paid at the rate of $2 a month.

It was pointed out that threatened failure of the drive is the result of smallness of pledges and it was Cheap Dollars Doom Workers to Misery, Woll Declares.

Leaders Picture Soaring Prices, Fixed Pay by Present Policy.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—The American Federation of Labor, the American Legion of New York, and the Crusaders of America tonight joined hands in a mass meeting of "sound money advocates" at Carnegie Hall for the announced purpose of stopping "the flow of greenbacks."

Matthew Woll, vice president of the labor body, and principal speaker, told the gathering "there are an increasing number of our people who honestly and conscientiously question the soundness of the course being followed," and the three organizations had entered into an active alliance "for the preservation of sound monetary policies and the safeguarding of fixed incomes of the great mass of our people."

Voices Labor's Fears.

"It can not possibly be said that American organized labor has been unsympathetic with the present National Government, nor unfriendly toward our President," Mr. Woll asserted. "Nevertheless, organized labor has been alert to the urgency of the present monetary situation and has expressed its fears and apprehensions, as well as its attitude, in no uncertain terms.

"There is a very definite and great risk to all the wage earners and salaried employes in every movement for currency inflation and price-raising devices. In all of the experiences of inflation the wage earners and salaried employes have suffered pathetically, not only in the shrinking value of their wages, but in the loss of their savings in banks and such life insurance returns with which they may have been able to protect their beloved ones. No more striking example of the truth can be seen than in the words of Daniel Webster, that 'of all the contrivances for cheating the laboring classes of mankind, none has been more effective than that which deludes them with paper money.'

Inequalities Cited.

"Currency inflation may raise farm prices, but simultaneously it will also curtail urban consumption and equally, if not more rapidly, raise the prices of those articles which the farmer purchases. The truth of this is well demonstrated in the farmers present protest and increasing complaint against the NRA in the raising of prices of commodities used by them.

"As yet, no one has undertaken to argue, much less to demonstrate, that currency inflation does increase the income of the wage earners and fixed salaries employes or relieve them of the additional burdens involved. To the contrary, all frankly admit that while inflation of currency is designed to reduce debts, it likewise deflates the income of wage earners and salaried employes. Indeed, depreciation of currencies has been advocated and used in many countries as a painless method of reducing wages. By this currency inflationary method, wage earners are placed on the defensive in that they must obtain continual increases in order even to hold their own.

"Result Is the Same."

"While methods may differ as between an outright reduction of wages by actual deduction in the amount of money received and by depreciating the value of currency received, nevertheless the result is the same. And this brings to the immediate attention of labor the necessity of hereafter demanding that its wage stipulations, whether fixed by collective agreements or by means of codification under the NRA, shall be based upon a formula that will include a simultaneous and constant change corresponding to the exchange value of the currency received for wages. Unless such considerations are manifested and such a formula is applied, we may well prepare for an uprising on the part of labor in protest of being forced to bear still further burdens of life and work that might

Many in Mob Drunk, Young Leader States

Self-Styled Organizer, 17, Says He Was First to Enter Jail.

(The following story by an 18-year-old ranch boy who claimed he was the leader of the Holmes-Thurmond lynching mob was told to Robert C. Elliott, United Press correspondent.)

By Anthony Catalbi.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

San Jose, Calif., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—I was the first one of the gang to break into the jail.

I came to town in the afternoon and saw the crowd around the jail and heard Brooke Hart's body had been found. I decided to organize a necktie party. I went out to my father's ranch on Capitol avenue and got some more rope for the hanging.

Then I went all over town in my roadster and passed out the word:

"We're going to have a lynching at the jail at 11 o'clock tonight."

"Many in Mob Drunk."

Eleven o'clock was the deadline. I told everyone. Mostly I went to speakeasies and rounded up the gang there. That is why so many of the mob was drunk.

We had the word passed all over San Jose. We made three attempts to batter the door. The tear gas poured out and got some the boys down, but it was worse on the officers inside.

One of our fellows picked up a tear bomb and threw it in the midst of the officers.

But when we broke into the jail I was scared stiff.

I was ready to back out.

The thing that scared me was seeing the screen to the cell-block torn down. I thought: "They'll get us inside there and lock us up for good."

First on Cell Floor.

But once the screen crashed, I dashed in and ran up stairs after some deputy sheriffs. I was the first one of the gang to get on the second floor, where Thurmond was located.

Four or five of us made the first rush for the cell. The deputies pleaded with us not to take the prisoners.

Deputy Buffington, the jailer with tears streaming down his face, said:

"Boys, let us kneel and pray that you take the right man."

One fellow dropped down on his knees at once in the aisle, and all the rest of the gang all knelt in silent prayer. Then the prayer was broken up when a drunk guy in the gang yelled:

"Amen, Brother Ben——"

We took the keys away from the deputies and broke into Thurmond's cell on the second floor. We missed seeing him the first two times we looked. He was hiding up on top of the closet.

When we found him, one of the guys took him down and he fell, striking his head on the floor.

Thurmond Silent.

Thurmond never said a word from the time we seized him until he was dead. I think he was faking unconscious.

Two officers identified him for us. We dragged him to the park and tried to make him talk. I lifted his eyelids and his eyes flickered, and he showed very plainly that he knew everything that was happening. He was just playing dead or something.

Part of the gang rushed Holmes' cell and he told us he was Pierce, but we had the goods on him.

There was a fellow in the party who knew him, and a deputy sheriff also whispered:

"Boy's you've got the right fellow."

He said afterward his name was Johnson, but finally admitted he was Holmes.

The tear gas didn't seem to bother me very much.

The word spread around that it was going to be a Santa Clara University lynching, but I'm not a Santa Clara student. I didn't go to college. Probably some of the college boys joined us, but I think we got most of our recruits from speakeasies.

I knew Brooke Hart by sight, but never had spoken to him. I thought that his terrible murder should be avenged.

I found that several hundred others thought the same thing.

Boy May Pay Life For Holiday Visit

Leonardtown Lad Struck by Auto, Dying.

Eight-year-old Frankie Owen came to town yesterday to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with friends. Late last night he was near death at Casualty Hospital, after being struck by an automobile at Eleventh and B streets southeast. Police, following a six-hour search, notified the lad's stepfather, T. F. Owen, at Leonardtown, Md.

The boy was taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon and treated for a broken right arm, internal injuries and a fractured skull. Frankie was identified when police were asked to search for him several hours after the accident.

Fire Perils Tanker In Freighter Crash

New Orleans, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Standard Oil Tanker E. J. Sadler, outward bound from Baton Rouge, and the Lykes Brothers-Ripley freighter, Elmsport, inbound from Manchester, England, sustained approximately $100,000 damage early today when they collided in the Mississippi River just below New Orleans.

Fire broke out aboard the tanker following the collision, but was quickly extinguished.

The tanker carried 1,000,000 gallons of crude oil and with her bow aflame, she was speeded out of the harbor area as a protective move.

Lynching of 2 Kidnapers Approved by Gov. Rolph cation, added his approval to the governor's remarks, saying:

"It is to be regretted, but necessary, that the people took the law into their own hands, but in so doing they served notice on racketeers and gangsters that there is no place for them in California.

Sheriff William J. Emig, knocked unconscious while trying to protect his prisoners, was in a serious condition at San Jose Hospital.

Chief Jailer Howard Buffington also was suffering from shock and from a severe battering.

After Hart's body was found the mob became restless Sunday as dusk fell and pressed beyond the barriers erected between them and the jail. Reinforced by city police, Sheriff Emig and his forces drove the mob back from the jail and across the street into the park, using tear gas bombs.

Mob Twice Repulsed.

Surging back with renewed fury, the mob loosed a barrage of bricks, stones and pipe fittings and demanded the prisoners. Twice they were repulsed by tear gas.

Two sections of 6-inch steel pipe then were used as battering rams to force the steel jail door. The lynchers took the cell keys from a deputy and seized the prisoners, located on upper floors.

A howling mob beat the prisoners as they were dragged to the park. Two trees were selected and quick justice followed.

Thurmond was unconscious when pulled aloft but Holmes fought his captors. The third time the rope was pulled his powerful frame shot upward and his struggles were over.

Girls in their 'teens, old women, college youths and wiser heads joined in the cheers. Thousands milled about the swinging bodies, that of Holmes stripped of all clothing while traffic officers calmly directed a steady stream of automobiles past the scene.

Police took down the bodies an hour later.

Services for Hart.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Hart.

Dr. Joseph Karesh, rabbi of the local Jewish synagogue, delivered the funeral sermon. He was assisted by the dean of studies of Santa Clara University, the Rev. William Gianera.

Six close personal friends were pallbearers. Fifty students formed a guard for the trip to Oak Hill Memorial Park. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Hart, the parents, accompanied the cortege to the cemetery, where the body was cremated and entombed in the family vault.

Rolph Scored For Condoning Coast Lynching

Organizations and Citizens Rebuke Governor for Praising Mob.

(United Press.)

The lynching of Thomas Thurmond and Jack Holmes in California Sunday night and the statement of Gov. James Rolph, jr., that the mob "did a good job," resulted in a flood of criticism yesterday.

National organizations as well as prominent individuals voiced protests against the governor's attitude.

Some of the comment follows:

SAN FRANCISCO—J. Oscar Golstein, attorney for the Thurmond family, said the governor's attitude was "reprehensible and a blot against the State," declaring that the lynched man's mother is dying as a result of the mob action.

"Unfitted for Job."

NEW YORK—The National Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners addressed a letter to Gov. Rolph, declaring: "You are unfitted for the responsibilities placed upon you. We are as far from advocating kidnaping as you are. We believe that for their crime, Thurmond and Holmes should have been tried and sentenced."

OKLAHOMA CITY—Gov. W. H. Murray said the lynching of Thurmond and Holmes could have been averted if the public had been convinced that the kidnapers would have received the death penalty.

LINCOLN, NEBR.—Uniform State laws, making death the penalty for kidnaping, "is the most satisfactory way to deal with the kidnaping racket," Gov. Charles W. Bryan said. "Kidnaping," he said, "is the most dastardly of all crimes."

Action Called "Shameful."

NEW YORK—Gov. Rolph's attitude was attacked as a "shameful official encouragement to mobs to defy authorities" by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

DECATUR, ALA.—Thomas E. Knight, jr., Alabama attorney general, who is directing prosecution of the Scottsboro case, expressed opposition to mob violence "in any form."

WESTFIELD, MASS.—Gov. Joseph B. Ely said laconically, "I disapprove of lynching."

BOSTON—Dr. William L. Stidger, pastor of the Copley Methodist Episcopal Church, said he thought it a "terrible thing for Gov. Rolph to say."

NEW YORK—The American Civil Liberties Union said: "We express the indigation of thousands who deplore and condemn kidnaping, but who abhor lynching and mob violence more."

Held "Accessory" in Killing.

ATLANTA—The Southern Commission on Interracial Relations, through its president, Dr. Will W. Alexander, charged Gov. Rolph with being "in effect an accesory before the fact" in the lynching.

CHICAGO—Clarence Darrow expressed bewilderment over the reported remarks of Gov. James Rolph of California, condoning the lynching of two kidnapers.

ST. PAUL—Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan, who prosecuted the Kelly-Bailey gang of kidnapers in Oklahoma, and the Touhy gangsters in St. Paul, said "the spirit of mob violence breeds contempt of law."

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gov. Henry Horner said "every lynching is a defiance of law and order and an admission of the inadequacy of local authorities to prosecute crime."

Boy Slips, Hangs Self in Trying To Phone Santa

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Joel Sibner—"I'm 3½, going on 4," he used to say—"telephoned Santa Claus today." His foot slipped from the telephone stool and the telephone cord strangled him soon after he had asked the operator to connect him with Santa Claus.

He had wanted to ask for an electric train, a set of building blocks and a peg board with a wooden hammer.

Joel had called Santa Claus lots of times when his mother was at home. And when she went to market today he thought he would just remind his friend of that train.

His mother found him hanging from the telephone.

to hold down the tax as a deterrent to bootlegging," he said.

Among the code provisions are the licensing of every distillery, separation from retail outlets, sale of liquor in bottles only, and use of American grains.

In approving the movie code, President Roosevelt suspended "drastic provisions against excessive salaries" until after a trial period in which the code authority will govern the industry. During this period, therefore, there will be no restrictions on salaries paid film stars.

"The moving picture code," Gen. Johnson explained, "sets up in the code itself the names of the code authority, composed of balanced representation among the various adverse interests in production, distribution and exhibition.

"For this reason the President reserved to the administrator the right to review and, if necessary, to disapprove any action by the code authority or to remove any such member, and to add members of any employer class.

"The code contains drastic provisions against excessive salaries. The President has exempted writers and dramatists from these and suspended their operation as to others for further experience with the actual operation of the code authority, and he has added to the code authority Miss Marie Dressler and Mr. Eddie Canter, under the authority reserved to him in the code.

Lowell Asked to Serve.

"In order to observe the operations of the management of the industry itself to comply with its own rules of censorship of improper pictures and dialogue, the President will ask Mr. A. Lawrence Lowell, former president of Harvard University, to serve on the code authority. The President has not yet decided upon the direct representation of the Administration on the code authority.

"The President is asking also a full report in 90 days on all unfair practices in the industry, including a full report on excessive salaries or other emoluments in the industry both as to artists and as to executives and their families, and he expects the industry to comply fully with the legal requirements in furnishing information accurately and promptly."

Replying to questions Gen. Johnson explained that, while he had been subjected to considerable pressure to provide Government censorship of motion pictures, he had refused to allow it. As a sort of compromise, it was indicated, Mr. Lowell, as a leading advocate of censorship, will be asked to act as Government observer, while the industry will be expected to abide by its own rules. He and Miss Dressler and Cantor, who visited the President here several days ago, are the only Government members named so far, the latter two representing the actors.

Gen. Johnson, who smiled away questions as to what he thought an "excessive salary" to be, said provisions against such salaries provided penalties for the practice of bidding for stars, thus sending their income to extravagant heights. Salaries paid executives and family members also will be studied by the code authority.

21 Other Codes Signed.

The 20 other codes signed by the President covered the following industries: Investment bankers, woolen felts, malleable iron, radio broadcasting, gas appliances, structural clay products, waterproofing, caulking and concrete floors, warm air furnaces, chinaware and porcelain, cigar container manufacturers, jewelry manufacturers, cement, concrete masonry, antifriction bearings, pipe nipples, vitrified clay sewer pipes, machine tool and equipment distribution, upholsteries and draperies, reenforcement tools, and retail jewels.

Two executive orders also were signed by the President, one "construing the commercial bribery inhibitions in the retail code so as not to include distribution of articles normally used for advertising and not actually being an effect of commercial bribery," and the other continuing the use of scrip in the trade until July 1.

The President spent another day of conferences with lieutenants, Secretary Wallace taking the place of Acting Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, who left yesterday. Gen. Johnson will return by plane to Washington tomorrow, but Interior Secretary Ickes probably will stay over another day. Mr. Wallace accompanied by Mrs. Wallace, took a cottage with friends for a day or two.

The gold question apparently was left to Mr. Morgenthau in Washington as the President discussed other phases of his recovery program. Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve, is en route here, however, and may be expected to revive the topic, since he is known to be unsympathetic to the Administration's experiment.

Slayer Smuggled From San Jose Jail Escapes Lynching

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (AP).—The city prison here never boasted a more contented inmate than Tony Serpa, convicted slayer, who was smuggled out of the San Jose Jail last night as the mob which lynched John M. Holmes and Thomas M. Thurmond shouted, "Let's get Serpa, too!"

Serpa was thrust into a telephone booth at the jail, then wrapped in a big coat by Deputy Sheriff William J. McCaffrey and hustled out a side door, where the two mingled with the crowd, walked five blocks to an automobile and drove here.

Trembling and hysterical, Serpa rushed through the protesting doors of the city prison and began embracing McCaffrey and every officer in sight. He was convicted of manslaughter in the killing of Leonard Ramonda, a ranch foreman.

have been avoided. Certain it is that the National recovery program, upon which the workers have placed so much of their hope and faith, will fail of its purpose if it does not embrace a higher income in addition to a more secure opportunity of employment."

Dishonest, Says Lawyer.

Martin W. Littleton, New York lawyer, told the gathering that "the fundamental vice in a policy of inflation is its essential dishonesty and injustices. * * * The Government must stand for and be equally interested in fair treatment to all its citizens. It can not honestly or justly promote any plan or policy which will take from one class and give to another."

"The Government can not, any more than an individual, repudiate its obligation to pay what it has promised, without the dishonor which goes with that repudiation," he said. "To inflate the currency by any method, whether by irredeemable paper, by cutting the gold content of the dollar by 50 per cent—or more or less—by the coinage of gold or silver at an artificial ratio, has the effect at once of enabling the Government to repudiate to that extent its obligations, which, on its honor, it has promised to pay in full. This is simply, by sheer force, taking away from those who hold its obligations and trusted in its honor, the amount which represents the debasement of its currency. This is the first evil and dishonest effect of its use of sheer power of inflation

Dollar "Fugitive From Justice."

"Any policy which makes our little dollars rush off, in shame and humiliation, into obscure places and seek to loose themselves in vaults and investments—aye, indeed, to call upon the mountains to fall down upon them and hide them—is a policy of unmitigated disaster. In such circumstances, the dollar becomes an international nuisance and a domestic fugitive from justice."

John G. Carlisle, Secretary of the Treasury under Grover Cleveland, said:

"The evils of a fluctuating and depreciated currency must always fall most heavily upon the poor who do not produce for themselves but for others, and who are, therefore, compelled to purchase with their wages everything they eat, drink and wear. Their wages will remain stationary, or at best they will rise slowly and at long intervals, while the price of the necessities of life are liable to rise suddenly from day to day as the value of the currency changes, and consequently, what would appear to be a fair rate of compensation at the time a labor contract is made may prove to be grossly inadequate long before the labor is performed."

No Politics, Clarke Asserts.

F. G. Clarke, Commander of the Crusaders, who introduced the speakers, said he wanted his hearers to understand that the meeting "is not inspired by any personal or political feeling against the President or any member of the Administration in Washington, but rather it is purely to present the views of representative organizations so that they may be weighed against the arguments which are being presented by the inflationists."

John Dwight Sullivan, past commander of the New York County Post of the American Legion, and Dr. Walter Spahr, of the New York University School of Commerce, also spoke.

Equalized Pay Urged For Employes of Navy

A study of the civilian field personnel of the Navy Department with a view to extending the classification act was recommended to Secretary of the Navy Swanson yesterday by E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Government Employes. Pointing out that a board had been appointed to equalize pay to Navy and Marine Corps officers, Babcock suggested a similar board for the civilian personnel in the various navy yards and stations.

Warburg Urges New Gold Basis and Revalued Dollar

permits such redemption, hoarding of gold will be possible because any one anywhere can buy exchange on that nation and present currency and obtain gold.

Proposes Sale by License.

"4. Gold miners should be compelled to offer their output to their respective monetary authorities and should only sell to others for use in the industries, arts and professions when permitted to do so by their respective monetary authorities and when the purchasers are duly licensed to buy."

Under such a system, he added, it would seem that the minimum legal ratio of metal cover against note circulation "might well be reduced to 25 per cent." This, however, he explained, applied to countries like the United States, where there was such a ratio.

Would End Gold Scarcity.

"These ideas, as I have said," Mr. Warburg wrote, "were discussed in a preliminary way at the London conference. They would require further discussion and proper modification before international agreement could or should be reached. I state them merely to illustrate how it would be perfectly possible to free the world from the specter of gold scarcity and to free the central banks from the disturbing influence of a loss of gold due to hoarding.

"This is what I mean by a modernization of the gold standard, which would meet the justifiable criticisms leveled against it, without embarking upon new forms of money which, no matter how theoretically perfect they might be, could not possibly command universal confidence because they could not command universal understanding."

Mr. Warburg, who was adviser to the American delegation at the London Economic Conference last summer, said that no matter what international monetary standard was adopted, steps "must be taken to provide for closer and more effective cooperation between the central banks or banks of issue of the various countries."

Puts Duties on Banks.

"It should be stressed in this connection," he added, "that central banks must use their powers of contraction in times of inordinate business expansion and not only their powers of expansion in times of depression. This is particularly true, if by economizing in the use of gold, we broaden the basis for a possible overexpansion of credit."

Mr. Warburg said there should be an "adequate and intelligent control of both long and short term foreign lending" since this, "it has been clearly shown, can not be left to the discretion of private bankers."

Such control, he pointed out, "must not, under any circumstances, take the form of exchange restrictions, which, experience has shown, serve only to stimulate the flow through illicit channels of the very transactions that they are designed to prohibit."

Talks of Capital's Flight.

"No artificial barriers," he added, "will prevent money from fleeing when it is afraid to remain, or from going where it hopes to find profitable employment. There is only one way to prevent an undesirable movement of capital, and that is to eliminate the reason for it. Remove fear—provide the reasonable hope of profitable employment—and capital will always show itself the most timorous of wanderers, the most comfortable and lazy of homebodies."

"As to the gold-buying program," Mr. Warburg wrote, "which we are now pursuing in our approach to a commodity dollar, let me say, first, that I believe neither in the theory nor in the practical method. Perhaps I am wrong. Perhaps the Warren theory, so ardently and dogmatically proclaimed by the Committee for the Nation and others, has solved the problem that has puzzled economists for generations."

Suggests World Control Group.

In this light, Warburg said that if, over a period of years, a superabundance or scarcity of gold should make itself felt by exaggerating price trends, "in spite of the precautionary reform that I have outlined (which I venture to doubt, because I, for one, do not believe that the quantity of gold plays any such direct and important a part in a money structure such as ours), then I should be quite prepared to allow an international body, endowed with supreme authority, to alter the world price of gold, that is, the gold content of all the gold currencies upward or downward from time to time, in order to offset the effect of gold shortage or superabundance, provided:

"That I could see the remotest possibility of creating such an international body, not subject to political influence, and endowed with supreme power over the monetary authorities of the various countries: and

"That I would assume that such a body would be furnished with complete and accurate information by all the various markets and would use such information intelligently and impartially in reaching its conclusions."

"Just a Utopian Dream."

But, the writer stated, "I can see no reason to consider the creation and successful operation of such a body anything more than a Utopian dream, and I believe to give the power of changing the gold content of the currency in each country to its own monetary authorities is fraught with the gravest danger."

Mr. Warburg said that, in relation to his Philadelphia address:

"I have not attacked the present policies of direct farm relief through production control and credit extension."

In regard to an immediate monetary policy, he said he did not pretend to have sufficient knowledge to form an opinion in respect to Government expenditure and budget.

"I do know how large a debt we can afford to run up," he said. "I do know that there is a point beyond which a sound monetary policy can not be supported by taxation. If we go beyond that point, we shall have paper money inflation, quite irrespective of monetary policy, but I have the greatest confidence in the budget director's vigilant awareness of that danger."

Woman Identifies 1 of 'Scottsboro 7'

Picks Heywood Patterson as Her Attacker.

Decatur, Ala., Nov. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Victoria Price today identified Heywood Patterson as one of six Negroes who allegedly attacked her aboard a Southern Railway freight train in Jackson County on March 25, 1931, and then faced a rigid cross-examination of 2 hours and 50 minutes.

The crowd watched intently as on direct examination Mrs. Price swung her arm toward Patterson, who was hunched forward with his chair tilted against the wall, and said "That defendant over there, Heywood Patterson, was one of them," and nodded her head in his direction.

Patterson, twice convicted and sentenced to death, is the first of seven Negores in the "Scottsboro case" to be brought to trial at the special session of the Morgan County Circuit Court.

Police Sift Hospital Death of Woman

Illegal Operation Blamed; Coroner's Inquiry Begun.

A coroner's investigation last night was ordered into the death of Mrs. Madalyn Taylor Kepner, 27, Department of Justice stenographer.

Mrs. Kepner, of 1851 Wyoming avenue northwest, died yesterday in Sibley Hospital. Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said an autopsy revealed death was due to an illegal operation.

Hospital physicians said they were told the young woman suffered severe injuries in two accidents during the past year. In February she was hurt in an automobile crash, and recently was thrown from a runaway horse.

Detective Sergeant Clyde N. Strange, of the Homicide Squad, was assigned to investigate.

Mrs. Kepner's husband is believed to be in New Jersey it was learned.

She is also survived by her father, William L. Taylor, and a sister, Mrs. Ivy Woolridge, of the Wyoming avenue address.

Million Xmas Boxes Burned in Baltimore

Baltimore, Nov. 27 (AP).—Six alarms tonight brought out most of the city's fire fighting apparatus to battle the flames that broke out in the five-story building of the Matthews Bros., paper box manufacturers, downtown.

A million Christmas boxes were destroyed. Officials estimated the loss at $200,000.

Typhoid Culture Stolen.

Glen Cove, Long Island, Nov. 27 (AP).—Police were searching this section of Long Island today for a thief who unwittingly stole a tube containing enough typhoid fever culture, according to Dr. George Zucala, to contaminate the entire Forest Park district of Glen Cove.

Refund to Fox Film President Told in Query

Clarke Received $228,000 Before Receivership, Inquiry Told.

Money to carry on experiments for sound motion picture equipment was reimbursed to Harley L. Clarke, president of Fox Film Corporation, by the holding company, General Theaters Equipment Corporation, two days before the latter concern went into receivership, Senate investigators were informed yesterday.

Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the Senate Banking Committee, suggested that if the two sound development companies had succeeded, Clarke would have been entitled to make a large profit on them, since the contracts were in Clarke's own name and not in that of General Theaters.

Clarke, from the witness stand, denied this, saying the $228,900 he spent on sound research "just happened" to be transacted in his name.

Pecora, further delving into operations of General Theaters Corporation after it bought out the interests of William Fox for $15,000,000, and before it went into receivership in February, 1932, suggested Clarke had an interest in the Crescent Brokerage Corporation, which carried insurance for Fox Films, General Theaters, and other subsidiaries.

Possible Savings Cited.

Pecora introduced correspondence from the corporation files in which it was suggested between $400,000 and $500,000 a year in premiums could be saved if the brokerage house were changed.

Clarke denied this, saying he had no interest in the Crescent Brokerage Co., although he considered it a good firm.

Herman G. Place, youthful vice president of the Chase National Bank and member of the board of Fox Films, was questioned about the 1931 balance sheet when Fox Films paid $4,104,000 in dividends, at the same time showing losses of $5,56",000.

Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, caused an interruption when he heatedly took exception to the voluntary testimony of W. W. Aldrich, president of Chase Bank.

As Place testified Aldrich moved to the committee table, taking the seat next to Senator Couzens, and volunteered the information that Place was not a Fox director at the time of the dividend payment.

Couzens Criticizes Aldrich.

"I don't plan to be interrupted," said the Senator as Aldrich tried to get his statement heard. "Mr. Aldrich interposes his comments whenever he pleases and I resent it.

"This committee will conduct this hearing as it pleases, and it shouldn't be interrupted by Mr. Aldrich or anybody else."

Aldrich returned to his place without further comment and Pecora resumed his questioning.

Clarke, recalled to testify regarding the dividend payment, explained it by saying the company did not expect an extra $4,000,000 amortization in 1931, after movie receipts had been falling off consistently for two years.

Clarke quoted figures to show receipts in the film industry from 1929, when they reached a peak of $1,300,000,000, to 1932, when they had fallen to $700,000,000. He said he expected total movie business for this year to reach at least $700,000,000, possibly $900,000,000.

Pecora asked if the dividend in a bad year had not been declared to give the holding company, General Theaters, an opportunity to meet some of its obligations.

Pecora Probes Receivership.

Clarke replied that the dividends probably "helped," but that he did not know whether the money was earmarked for this purpose.

Pecora read from the corporation's files several memoranda of conferences on the proposed receivership as early as August, 1931. The receivership did not take place until February, 1932.

Clarke stated he did not remember the specific conferences, although the proposition was generally discussed at that time. He said he did not believe the receivership would be necessary, although he testified Aldrich urged it.

Pecora read a suggestion that the law firm of Charles Evans Hughes be retained as counsel for the receiver, even though the propriety of such a move was questioned, since the firm was also counsel for Fox Films and General Theaters. This was before Mr. Hughes was appointed Chief Justice of the United States.

Clarke said that the Hughes firm later became consulting counsel for the receiver.

Murray W. Dodge, former vice president of the Chase Securities Corporation, told the senators that Chase Bank had loaned General Theaters $6,000,000 in 1930 for market operations in Fox Films. He said the film company faced maturing obligations amounting to $55,000,000.

The market dropped shortly after this and the loan was never repaid, said Dodge.

Committee members hope to finish the inquiry into Fox Films financing today when Leslie Snow, vice president of Chase Securities Corporation, and probably Albert H. Wiggin, former Chase president, will be called.

Although he received a telegraphic denial from Louis B. Mayer, California Republican leader, that he had been responsible for changing Department of Justice records, Pecora stated it could not be placed on the record.

He repeated his previous ruling that if anybody wished to controvert any evidence offered before the committee, they could make formal application to be heard.

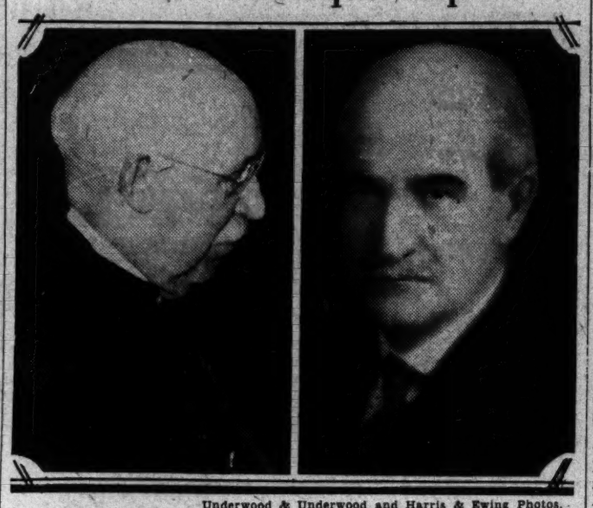
Aim Blow at Liquor Repeal



Underwood & Underwood and Harris & Ewing Photos.

Court Order Fails to Halt Early Repeal

Two Ardent Drys Granted Writ to Restrain U. S. Proclamation.

At the request of two ardent prohibitionists, Justice F. D. Letts, District Supreme Court, yesterday signed an order requiring William S. Phillips, acting Secretary of State, to show cause Monday why he should not be prohibited from proclaiming repeal.

Department of Justice officials said, however, that even though the court should prohibit Mr. Phillips from issuing the proclamation, such action would not delay the return of legal liquor.

Officials told the Associated Press that repeal will become effective the moment the gavel falls signifying that the 36 State convention has ratified repeal. Proclamation by the Secretary of State is a required formality, but it is not necessary to make repeal effective, officials said.

Request for the writ prohibiting the repeal proclamation was made by Canon William Sheafe Chase, well-known prohibitionist, and George S. Duncan, 2600 Seventh street northeast, who described himself as secretary of the International Reform Federation. Canon Chase is superintendent of the International Reform Federation of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Both Represent W. C. T. U.

Both petitioners said they represented the International Reform Federation, Washington; National W. C. T. U., National Temperance Society, National Civic League, National United Committee for Law Enforcement, National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League, National Sentinels, National Prohibition Emergency Committee, Women's Bible Class, First Congregational Church, Washington, Mrs. E. C. Alvord and others.

After reciting the manner in which the Secretary of State informed States of the pending repeal amendment, the petition charged that 37 States have voted wet, with nine yet to vote. In six States, the conventions have not yet been called to vote, though the vote was wet. They were Maine, Texas, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Utah. The last of the six convene December 6, it was shown. Thirty-three States have notified the State Department that they have repealed.

Authority Challenged.

The first attack against validity of repeal was made when the capacity of Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, was challenged as lacking the authority of Secretary Hull. Other grounds cited were: Proclamation (for repeal) will be binding upon courts; such proclamation is bound by word from secretaries of the various States and that this notice is not binding upon the constitutionality and legality of statutes under which conventions (States) have been held; that proclamation, while it will be a ministerial act, will be binding upon courts; that Phillips intends to make a proclamation upon receipt of notice of ratification of 36 of said States."

The petition then recited that numerous States have made provision for sale of liquor and that a large number of "nuisance" taxes are to be abated when repeal comes. Also, statutes in 25 States do not provide for conventions at large, but for delegates at large, and in 17 of these States the delegates are required to be pledged. It also was chargd that Alabama and Arkansas require referendums.

Constitutionality Assailed.

That constitutionality was lacking, due to the absence of "deliberation or discussion," is charged against Ohio, Pennsylvania and Utah. Twenty-seven States are charged with having pledged delegates, thus making it impossible for "deliberate convention." In Vermont, West Virginia, Massachusetts and Maryland the delegates were selected by various individuals, which was cited as unconstitutional.

New York, Illinois, Iowa, New Jersey and California were charged with failing to properly vote for repeal, while in other States, impossibility of getting required signatures to petitions was shown. General election laws were declared to be discriminating in "most States." The charge was made that persons interested in tax reductions were responsible. "Concerted effort" in this direction was shown by clippings and citations from papers and magazines.

The petition requested that Phillips be restrained from "counting" the State repeal votes; that he be restrained from making repeal proclamation, and "for such other and further relief as law and justice may require." December 4, date of answering the motion, is only two days before prohibition is scheduled to be repealed.

City to Give Opinions This Week on Rum

Commissioners Ask Views on District Bill to Go to Congress.

Public hearings will be held this week on the proposed liquor law for the District, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

All persons and organizations will be permitted to present their views, which will be considered by the Commissioners before they pass on provisions of the measure they will transmit to Senator William H. King and Representative Mary T. Norton, chairmen, respectively, of the Senate and House District Committees.

When the hearings will be held is to be determined at a meeting of the Commissioners this afternoon, when Commissioner George E. Allen will lay before the board the measure which William W. Bride, corporation counsel, and Vernon E. West, principal assistant, completed yesterday.

Measure Based on N. Y. Law.

No public hearing is planned by the House District Committee. Mrs. Norton plans to push the measure through the House on the second day of the session, with the approval of Speaker Henry T. Rainey. That would give the measure privileged status, even though it is radically changed by the Senate. Senator King plans three days of hearings.

The Bride measure is based largely on the New York licensing law. It provides a municipal tax on liquors, wines and beer made and sold in the District and varied license fees for manufacturers and sellers. The amount of taxes or license fees is not set forth. Such figures will be inserted by the Commissioners before they send the measure to Congress.

Law Effective in 60 Days.

Regulation of the liquor business would be placed in the hands of an alcohol beverage control board of three persons, one a woman. The board would be named by the Commissioners within 15 days of passage and the law would be effective 60 days later.

In general the law separates beer and liquor, prohibits bars, drinking over counters, makes the dining-room table the drinking place, bans the "back room" and "upstairs" and prescribes a series of licenses for manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, each with sharp limits.

13-Mile Race Saves Boy From Mother

School Officer Says She Threatened Murder.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Maj. O. Castle, head master of Glendora Military School, made a 13-mile motor car dash today to prevent injury to Ernest Bach, 11, one of his students, whose mother, police said, threatened to kill the boy and take her own life in a phone call.

Castle said Mrs. Bach hung up the receiver before he could ask her from where she was calling, but he traced the call to a hotel, and arrived just as she was walking away with her son. Castle took a revolver from her and turned her over to police.

Cuba Pays Tribute To Slain Students

Grau Frees More Than 100 Political Prisoners.

Havana, Nov. 27 (AP).—Cuba's tranquillity was broken only by a few minor disturbances in the interior today as the island observed a day of mourning commemorating the sixty-second anniversary of the execution of several students under Spanish reign.

President Ramon Grau San Martin spent the day studying and signing decrees of amnesty for political prisoners.

Nearly 50 were released today bringing the 24-hour total to about 110. Among those liberated today were 19 soldiers.

Many Feared Killed As Bandits Attack Train

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—A Reuters (British) news dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, today said it was feared many were killed and wounded when bandits fired upon the 600 passengers of the Transsiberian express after having derailed the train near Tsitsihar.

The dispatch also said many of the survivors were kidnaped.

Bank and Tax Aids Selected By Morgenthau

Prof. Roswell Magill and Tom K. Smith Join Treasury Staff.

By Franklin Waltman, Jr.

New Federal tax legislation and the general banking situation yesterday occupied a part of the day of Acting Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., as he put to work two more advisers on his personal staff—Prof. Rosswell Magill, Columbia University, and Tom K. Smith, St. Louis banker.

Mr. Smith's appointment as adviser on banks and banking problems to the Treasury chief was announced on his arrival in the city. President of the Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis, Mr. Smith was granted a leave of absence by that institution to assist Mr. Morgenthau the next month or two, when it is expected the banking situation will be particularly delicate, due to the inauguration of the Federal Deposit Insurance system.

Magill Starts Survey.

Prof. Magill, who was named last week as adviser to Mr. Morgenthau on taxation problems in place of Dr. Harold M. Groves, of Wisconsin, assumed his duties yesterday and started work on a survey of the Federal income laws and proposals to plug holes in their administrative features.

At the same time Louis Ruppell, Deputy Commissioner of Narcotics and former New York newspaperman, also temporarily joined Mr. Morgenthau's personal staff. He will assist in organization of the new public relations division in the Treasury under the direction of Herbert E. Gaston, assistant to the Secretary.

Mr. Ruppell spent the week-end at Warm Springs, where President Roosevelt is on vacation. It was believed the President was responsible for Mr. Ruppell's assignment to the Treasury in an effort to straighten out complications in the department's public relations, which developed last week when Mr. Morgenthau issued what was regarded as a press censorship order, subsequently modified.

The Acting Secretary explained Prof. Magill had conferred with him on tax problems but the only conclusion reached was that the Treasury could not be ready to make recommendations to the Ways and Means subcommittee by December 4, the date now set for the opening of hearings on tax legislation.

Mr. Morgenthau said he had asked the committee to be given until December 15 to prepare its views. Meanwhile, Prof. Magill will study the proposed changes in the administrative features of the income tax law formulated by the House committee, which its members have estimated would increase Treasury revenue between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000.

Tax Situation Not Clear.

The details of the proposed revision in administrative sections of the law have not been revealed. In some quarters it is believed the committee's estimate of revenue from these changes is too high. At all events, Prof. Magill will make an independent study of this problem for guidance of Mr. Morgenthau when he appears before the House committee.

Whether the Treasury will propose importation of any new taxes in the coming session of Congress, other than increased rates on liquor, has not been determined. The Secretary of the Treasury and the President, however, are charged by the budget act to recommend to Congress methods to keep the budget balanced.

The budget is not now balanced and the problem after next month will become more difficult because President Roosevelt, by proclaiming repeal of the eighteenth amendment effective, will wipe out taxes which net the Treasury approximately $227,000,000 annually. Whether revenue from liquor taxes will replace this sum is now a controversial question.

Estimates of probable consumption of distilled spirits at varying rates of Federal taxation, presented last week to the A. A. A. in the hearing on the distillers' code, indicated the revenue expected from this source would range between $115,000,000 and $198,000,000 annually—the latter on the basis of a tax of $3 a gallon, which is improbable.

At the same time, a movement is progressing on Capitol Hill to reduce by as much as one-half the tax of $5 a barrel on beer of not more than 3.2 per cent alcohol. Even though this movement fails—and it is probable it will succeed—it appears the Treasury after prohibition repeal cannot expect beer taxes to produce $175,000,000 annually, the present rate.

New Tax Expected.

Thus, unless the proposed changes designed to plug holes in the administrative features of the income tax laws produce as much as the House committee contends they will, it seems certain additional taxes will have to be levied by the next Congress to balance the budget for the next fiscal year. Determination of this question and the nature of the new taxes, if any, was the task turned over to Prof. Magill yesterday.

The exact nature of Mr. Smith's duties were not revealed. Mr. Morgenthau said the St. Louis banker "is going to work with me on anything and everything having to do with banks." His first task would be in connection with R. F. C. subscriptions to the preferred stock of banks. These subscriptions are being made by the R. F. C., chiefly to strengthen the capital structure of weak banks so they can qualify for admittance into the Deposit Insurance Corporation, which becomes operative on a restricted basis January 1.

Apprehension still exists that some banks will not be able to qualify for deposit insurance and may have to close their doors after the first of the year. The Roosevelt Administration is determined to guard against another banking crisis such as occurred early this year. It is believed Mr. Smith was named to speed up the work of qualifying banks for the insurance fund.

Stock Yards Strike Gluts Chicago Pens

Workers Seek More Pay; Daily Quotations Are Delayed.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Union Stock Yards tonight were glutted with the usual heavy Monday receipts because of a strike of yard workers seeking higher wages.

The United States Department of Agriculture, which generally issues the daily quotations at 11 a. m., was unable to collect data upon which to base quotations until after 2:30 p. m.

Starting with the walk-out last night of 800 members of the Live Stock Handlers' Union, the force of strikers was swelled to around 8,000 men when two other closely affiliated unions suspended operations.

The yards were in confusion. At the time that trading is normally started, there were hundreds of trucks and scores of loaded railroad trains in the yards, with no workers to unload them.

The live stock handlers, cowboys of the yards, walked out late Sunday night, asking a restoration of wages prevailing in 1929. The 800 are the keymen of the yards. They unload the stock, weigh it, feed and water the animals, drive them from point to point, and do a thousand other similar duties.

By midmorning today more than 700 trucks were waiting a chance to unload, and 40,000 hogs, 16,000 cattle and 17,000 sheep were on hand.

French Chiefs Ponder Budget

Project to Cut Salaries of Civil Servants Also Studied.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—Members of Camille Chautemps' day-old cabinet put their heads together tonight to design a new dress for budget-balancing and franc-saving measures before reintroducing them before the stubborn Chamber of Deputies.

Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, Budget Minister Paul Marchandeau and M. Chautemps tried particularly to disguise a project to cut civil servants' pay, a move which wrecked three cabinets in a year, including that of Albert Sarraut last week.

M. Bonnet told Bank of France officials the government could meet its debts only until December 15. In banking circles it was said France again was preparing to borrow £40,000,00 or £50,000,000 sterling from London to meet December pay rolls.

Justice Lowell Is Seriously Ill

Federal Jurist Stricken at Bay State Home.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 27 (AP).—Federal Judge James A. Lowell, senior justice of the Massachusetts Federal District Court, was reported critically ill at his home here tonight.

The 64-year-old justice attained national prominence recently for his decision concerning George Crawford, Virginia Negro, wanted in that State for the murder of two white women.

After Gov. Joseph B. Ely had granted the extradition of Crawford, the justice issued a writ of habeas corpus freeing him on the ground that Negroes were not called to serve on grand juries in Virginia and that a conviction would be overturned on an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Pennsy's New Pick-Up Service Starts Dec. 1

I. C. C. Refuses to Bar Experiment, Important to Shippers Here.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's new pick-up-and-deliver service for less-than-carload freight will go into effect December 1, the Interstate Commerce Commission ruled yesterday.

The commission, in a 91-word statement, announced it would not suspend the tariffs for the proposed innovation in railroad service, filed with it by the Pennsylvania, Grand Trunk and Erie Railroad Companies. Granting of permission for the plan was vigorously opposed by major Eastern railroads, competing with the Pennsy, and other interests.

Commission's Statement.

The statement said:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission in conference today voted not to suspend tariffs filed in its offices by the Pennsylvania, Grand Trunk and Erie Railroad Companies providing for pick-up and delivery service in connection with the transportation of freight articles in less than carload lots.

"As this is clearly an experiment, the commission expects that records of operations under these tariffs will be kept currently and in such a way as will show clearly the results in order that information can be furnished to the commission promptly if required."

Plan Important Here.

The experiment is regarded as of vital importance to railroads as one possible way to meet competition of trucks. The Pennsylvania previously announced it expected to have local draying concerns handle the trucking end, and thus provide identically the service offered to shippers by trucking concerns.

The commission last week listened to arguments against the plan.

The Pennsylvania plans to offer the new service to Washington shippers, and railroad officials have estimated it will affect a considerable amount of the freight moving into this city. Local arrangements have not yet been announced.

MISS GERTRUDE RIKILA, of Claims Division, Veterans' Administration, is active in winter program of the Minnesota State Society.

A BIG dent was made in the Civil Service reemployment list last week, it was reported by the commission yesterday. Appointments in Treasury under the civil works program have not yet been tabulated, but they are expected to total several hundred.

BAKER.

Fifty names were removed from the list during the week, while 97 were added. In the absence of figures from Treasury reinstatements and appointments, the total still on the reemployment list is 3,614.

The reemployment situation is summarized as follows:

Number of names on reemployment list Nov. 18.	3,567
Names added during week ended Nov. 25	97
Removed from List.
Probational appointment	15
Temporary appointment	7
Recalled from furlough, reinstated or transferred	16
Eligibility expired (limited to one year)	9
Other causes	3
Total on reemployment list November 25	3,614

It is observed that nine persons were dropped from the list as ineligible, the time limit of one year having expired. The Civil Service Reinstatement League is seeking to have the time limit extended, holding that a person with long experience in Government work still is qualified to resume former jobs after one year.

"Methods in handling Federal business are not changing so rapidly that one becomes obsolete in a year's time," a league leader declared yesterday. "Many employes dismissed or furloughed under the economy act are taking secretarial and other courses, generally improving their efficiency."

Pet Poisoned

Dog and Two Sparrows Victims; Case Probed.

A dog poisoner killed not only his canine victim but two sparrows as well, on Ashmead place northwest, yesterday.

MacTamus, a Scotch terrier owned by Ray C. Schindler, of 2331 Ashmead place, died of eating poisoned meat. The pet was 3 years old.

Schindler also found two sparrows, apparently dead from the same cause, on a lot adjacent to his home.

The Humane Society began an investigation.

U. S. Hires 400, Ignoring Rules

Civil Service Needs CWA Clerks in Hurry; Will Add 553 More.

Rules governing appointment of Government employes by States and regarding reemployment of married persons were both disregarded by the Civil Service Commission in filling temporary jobs created in the Treasury, officials of the commission said yesterday.

The rules were ignored because speed was necessary in hiring the new workers, and because the jobs are only temporary. About 400 new clerical workers have been hired, and the number will be increased to 953. The workers will handle 4,000,000 Government checks cashed weekly by civil works employes.

The Treasury is drawing all its new workers from the Civil Service lists.

Federal Witness Balks In Gordon Tax Hearing

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—For refusing to read the notation on a check stub, Salvatore Morretti, a Government witness, was held in contempt of court today as Federal attorneys delved deeper into the ramifications of Waxey Gordon's alleged metropolitan beer empire in an effort to show he neglected to pay taxes on all his income.

"I'll dispose of this man later," said Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman. Moretti left the stand smiling.

City Club Troup Amazes Crowd In Light Opera

"Chimes of Normandy" Is Triumph of Genuine Skill in Amateurs.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Planquette's picturesque and tuneful light opera, known bilingually as "Les Cloches de Corneville" and "The Chimes of Normandy," was presented by the Washington Opera Club last evening before a friendly audience in Roosevelt Auditorium. Be it said without further preamble that it was one of the best amateur performances of that kind that I have seen anywhere, and experience has made me encounter many of them.

Most nonprofessional productions, however earnest and sincere the efforts of the collaborators, have about them certain hesitancies and gaucheries which are condoned gladly, but nevertheless condoned. In last night's cast and chorus those nervous errancies were not to be found. There was in the action a natural spontaneity that cloaked, but did not hide, excellent training. The precision of movement in individuals and in mass, the accuracy of vocal attacks in ensembles, and the easy stage presence of the principals were admirable.

Orchestra Wins Praise.

The unpretentious scenic sets were artistically tasteful, and the groupings at the final curtain of each act were professional in their efficacy. The McKinley High School Orchestra, under the direction of Dore Walten contributed no small part to the successful total.

To Flora McGill Keefer and her skillful vocal direction every participant should be grateful for the musical excellence that they displayed, nor should they forget a tribute to J. Humbird Duffy for his stage management.

Without drawing any invidious comparisons, the best individual singing of the evening was done by Eugene Swygert, as Jean Grenieneux; Marvin Gardner, as the Baille, and Elsie Schulze, as Germaine.

Another Show Tonight.

In remarking this, one does not wish to detract from the saucy intonations of Louise Kenesipp's Serpolette, the romantic chantings of Harry Schonrack's Marquise de Corneville, or the miserly croonings of Gaspard that came from Harry L. Crow, jr.

That certain voices should stand out above others is inevitable, but no one in this performance need cast envious eyes upon another. They all did well, according to their talents, and more can not be asked. To mention every one who had an indispensable share in the pleasing concord would involve the listing of some 80 names.

Another performance will be given tonight, and this reviewer's advice is that those who like light opera should attend. If the response meets the merits, the S. R. O. sign will be on view in the lobby before the curtain rises.

Mrs. Gaines' Conviction Of Murder Demanded

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 27 (AP).—In an appeal, devoid of dramatic eloquence, Prosecutor Louis A. Bunge asked a superior court jury today to convict Lily Banka Gaines of first degree murder for the shooting of her husband, Dr. James I. Gaines.

He did not demand the death penalty, leaving the sentence to the discretion of the jury if it convicts the attractive young widow. It can be either hanging or life imprisonment.

Distillers Map Congress War On Code Terms

State Control Platform Is Cited in Protest of Federal Control.

Spokesmen for the distilling industry last night indicated they would submit to the A. A. A. code proclaimed for them by President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, not because they believe its terms satisfactory but because they feel they could not afford to be in the position of fighting the Federal Government on the eve of prohibition repeal.

The distillers, however, have not abandoned their fight against the efforts to subject them to rigid Federal control but will carry it to Congress. At the same time an organization may be formed to arouse public opinion in favor of State control and opposed to a Federal rule.

Meanwhile, the A. A. A. hearing on the brewery code was recessed until today to permit the President's interdepartmental alcohol committee to revise that document to conform with changes made Sunday in the distillers' code. It is not expected, however, that the revision will satisfy the brewers any more than the distillers are pleased.

5 On Control Body.

Although the interdepartmental committee made concessions to the distillers, it insisted that the proposed Federal alcohol control administration have supreme power over the industry. This administration would comprise five representatives of Federal executive departments named by President Roosevelt. The plan was proposed by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford Tugwell and Dr. Raymond B. Fosdick, adviser to John D. Rockefeller, jr., on liquor control legislation.

The distillers were told that President Roosevelt had set his mind on having the Federal Government keep a tight grip over all branches of the liquor business to prevent shipments from wet into dry States, a duty of the Federal Government, and to keep liquor prices low in order to crush out bootlegging.

Party Plank Cited.

The distillers hope to arouse Congress against the Federal control scheme by appealing to the Democratic members in that body to live up to their party platform on prohibition which favored outright repeal of the eighteenth amendment and "complete supervision and control by States" of the liquor industry.

Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), of New York, called attention of the A. A. A. authorities to this clause yesterday when he appeared at the hearing on the brewery code to protest against the Federal control sections. He said the Administration displayed "utter disregard" of that plank and he warned:

"You are going a bit too far and Congress may resent your poaching upon its preserves. I believe you are legislating here, usurping the power of Congress. I ask you to pause before putting this power into the hands of something political, with all that involves."

Dr. James M. Doran, industrial alcohol commissioner, suggested that a distinction be made between the brewers of beer containing 3.2 per cent of alcohol and those making stronger beer. The suggestion also was made at the hearing that the tax on 3.2 per cent beer should be reduced in the interest of temperance.

Santa Prepares Real Christmas At White House

Mrs. Roosevelt Shops All Year; President to Hang Stocking.

The Christmas spirit was ushered officially into the White House yesterday when Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told all about her secret and very exciting holiday plans.

"Of course I believe in Santa Claus," the President's wife said as a preface to her explanation of nearly a year's preparation for Christmas.

The whole ritual of Christmas stockings, reading of Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol," candlelighted tree and turkey dinner—will be observed at the White House.

Up on the third floor, in a secluded but commodious closet, Mrs. Roosevelt already has placed a big table on which she piles her Christmas gifts. In every spare moment she goes up, sorts out all the things she has bought, consults her gift list, and then wraps them in bright holly, red paper and ribbons.

President Has Stocking.

The secret closet, pointed out the wise grandmother, is kept carefully locked when she is not around.

Mrs. Roosevelt shops all during the year. At every charity sale she attends she inevitably finds something that pleases her, something that she adds to her Christmas stock.

Around Thanksgiving time the First Lady learns discreetly what her intimates would like and then begins her specialized shopping.

"Santa Claus fills all the stockings, even the President's," explained Mrs. Roosevelt. "Everybody has one, and we hang them all on Franklin's fireplace."

Will Eat Turkey.

Early Christmas morning the entire family will gather in the President's room, and Mrs. Roosevelt will pass out the stockings to their owners.

The Roosevelt tree will be installed in the large upper hall and will be lighted with real candles, not electric ones, because the President "thoroughly dislikes" the artificial illumination.

The large family dinner will be held Christmas night, complete with turkey and all fixings.

All the family, with the possible exception of James, his wife and baby, will be at the White House for the holidays. They will include Mrs. Anna Dall and her two children, Sistie and Buzzie; Frank, John and the President's mother, Mrs. James Delano Roosevelt.

Gold Program Will Continue Despite Critics

Morgenthau to Ignore Conflicting Opinions on Legality.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, on his return by airplane yesterday from his visit with the President at Warm Springs, Ga., announced that the gold-buying program is to continue, irrespective of renewed pressure for "stabilization," as $727,000,000 of Treasury financing impends on December 15, and in spite of the legal conflict over the authority of the R. F. C. to buy gold.

Disclosure of the contrasting legal opinions, in which former Acting Secretary Dean Acheson challenged, while Stanley Reed, R. F. C. counsel, upheld the authority of the R. F. C. to buy gold, aroused widespread comment. Herbert Gaston, whom Morgenthau installed as publicity man for the Treasury, said the Acheson dissent, as printed exclusively in The Post yesterday, apparently had been delivered to President Roosevelt and that the Treasury would not make it public officially, even if a copy were obtainable in its files. Reed would make no comment on his opinion, which also was printed in The Post yesterday.

Morgenthau Unmoved.

Morgenthau, at a press conference, when questioned about the disclosure of the clashing opinions, said:

"I am interested in just one opinion, and that is the one in which the Attorney General ruled that the procedure was legal."

The White House, Department of Justice and the Treasury have all declined to make public this opinion of the Attorney General, which was drafted after the gold buying was launched and was based upon Reed's opinion.

Similarly, Chairman Jesse Jones of the R. F. C., announced that he was content with the legal opinion of Reed and the subsequent reenforcing opinion of the Attorney General.

"The legality of the sale of R. F. C. obligations for gold," he said, "was considered by the President and our board.

Ordered $50,000,000 Sale.

"Based upon the opinion of the Attorney General to the President and our board and our own general counsel, we authorized the Federal Reserve Bank at New York to sell our February 1 series of debentures, amounting to $50,000,000, and accept payment in gold at prices to be fixed by this corporation and the Secretary of the Treasury.

"Prior to our undertaking this activity, the Treasury Department had licensed the exportation of newly mined gold. I assume this was done to avoid an injustice to our gold miners and to encourage prospecting and working of low yield ores. In accepting newly mined domestic gold as well as foreign gold in payment for our debentures, with the right to export, there is no loss to the corporation and it permits our newly mined gold previously exported to be retained at home."

He would not say whether any of the gold which the R. F. C. now is buying at home for $33.77 an ounce is being sold on the world market. Otherwise the transactions would result in a loss to the R. F. C., as it could obtain only the statutory price of $20.67 at the Treasury if it undertook to convert its gold into funds to be applied to its authorized purposes.

Black Goes to See President.

As Morgenthau returned, Gov. Eugene Black, of the Federal Reserve Board, left for a visit with the President, after conferring with Gov. George L. Harrison, of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, who has been the liaison agent in buying of foreign gold and in related discussions with the Bank of England and Bank of France.

Officials flatly denied they knew anything of rumored moves to check gold buying, to steady the dollar on foreign exchange, or otherwise to head toward stabilization. To a rumor that Harrison was negotiating again with the Bank of England on these subjects, Morgenthau replied with an emphatic head shaking in denial. Gov. Black also said he knew of no such negotiation.

Reserve officials similarly scouted the persistent notion that discontinuance of reserve bank open market operations betokens a rift. Gov. Black has repeatedly emphasized that the cessation was prompted, as was the previous buying of Government securities, solely by credit considerations. The Treasury has come into the market for governments, but only to the tune last week of $8,748,000, according to announcement yesterday by Morgenthau. He would not say this was more than the usual purchases out of funds accumulated for investment in postal savings and other accounts. Nor does the Treasury specifically refer to the buying as an effort to support the Government bond market.

Gold Price Unchanged.

Again yesterday the R. F. C. price for newly-mined domestic gold was left unchanged at $33.76 an ounce. This was about a dollar above world gold prices in dollars. It has been clear for some time that the artificial domestic price is close to its top, but inferences that this portends early revaluation or stabilization lack official substantiation.

Meanwhile, public controversy continued over monetary policy. Representative Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, returned from Warm Springs and after a talk with Speaker Rainey (Democrat), Illinois, declared "a vast majority in Congress, and certainly a vast majority of the American people, are wholeheartedly behind the President in his efforts to raise commodity prices to their normal levels by devaluating the gold content of the dollar and giving us a controlled expansion of the currency that will restore the prosperity of the American farmers, as well as that of the American people generally."

"This is the greatest move in the New Deal," he added. "Men who clamor for a return to the old order of things, including the gold standard, are satisfied to see this depression continue indefinitely, or else they forget that it was the old order that brought us to the very brink of ruin.

"I am not at all surprised to see certain alleged Democrats manifest their friendship for Wall street and the money power by attacking the President's financial program. I am glad to see them at last come out in the open. Cicero said once of Catiline that he won his greatest victory over him when he 'drove him from secret treachery to open warfare.' I really think these critics can do the President and his Administration less harm now than they could before they showed their hands."

A "sound money" bloc is being formed in the House and that movement was further accelerated yesterday by formation of a North Carolina group, headed by Henry L. Stevens, former National commander of the American Legion.

Sen. Robinson Backs Policies Of President

Boston Mayor, Sen. Smith, Rep. Fiesinger Rally to Roosevelt.

Cincinnati, Nov. 27 (AP).—Unqualified support of President Roosevelt's monetary policies was voiced tonight by Senator Joe T. Robinson, Arkansas Democrat, the majority leader in the United States Senate.

Robinson, in an interview, asserted the belief that an immediate return to the former gold standard would be dangerous.

"Commodity prices would drop to lower levels than heretofore," he said. "Purchasing power would still further decline. Fear would become intensified. The depression would be prolonged and merchants in our country again would become unable to compete with merchants of other countries remaining off the gold standard."

The senator told newspapermen "there is no such thing within my knowledge as a plain, simple and patent remedy for the distressed conditions which we are combating."

Curley Hits Smith.

Boston, Nov. 27 (AP).—Mayor James M. Curley, stanch Roosevelt an, today fired back at Alfred E. Smith and other critics of the President's monetary program with the prediction that eventually the "rubber dollar and baloney phrasemakers" would be appraised by the public as "worshippers of the golden calf."

The address was broadcast.

"They apparently are extremely desirous that the public forget the four years of cumulative depression under Herbert Hoover," he said.

Smith Backs President.

Florence, S. C., Nov. 27 (AP).—In a telegram today, Senator Ellison D. Smith expressed his unqualified approval and support of the monetary policies of President Roosevelt.

"I am at your service in this fight in any way that I can assist," Senator Smith wired.

Sandusky, Ohio, Nov. 27 (AP).—Representative W. L. Fiesinger (Democrat), today issued a blast against critics of the Administration's monetary policy, and revealed he is lining up other Ohio Congressmen to support President Roosevelt.

Wheat Glut Grows, World Group Told

Survey Spreads Gloom in London Conference.

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—That the glut of world wheat is greater and the demand less than anticipated three months ago when an international wheat pact was formed was brought out today at a long session of the World Wheat Commission.

An optimistic note was struck with the announcement that France considered taxing excessive acreage, but for the most part an exhaustive survey of wheat conditions brought no cheer to wheat exporting nations.

European countries committed themselves under last summer's agreement not to increase production.

Toys Used for Decoration at Dance Will Go to Needy Children.

The New England State Society has appointed a Santa Claus Lady to cooperate with the Santa Claus Lady of The Washington Post Doll and Toy Fund. The New England State Society Santa Claus Lady is Miss Betty Durr, secretary, who will gather up all the toys used for decorations for the society's dance December 19 at the Kennedy-Warren and bring them to the Santa Claus headquarters of The Washington Post. Many members of the society are so interested in the enterprise of Miss Durr that they have promised to bring additional toys with them that this group of New Englanders living in Washington will have a very happy Christmas themselves through giving toys to so many boys and girls who otherwise might not have them.

James Morrison, 7, and James Fooshee, 7, of the 3300 block of Cleveland avenue, like the idea of giving Santa Claus a helping hand this year. They have given a football, the dearest wish of their own hearts, for their Christmas. Of course the two Jimmies had to see how the ball worked and that it was in good condition before they sent it to The Washington Post Toy and Doll Fund. The Post photographer caught them in one of their special formations.

Dolls Donated.

Some little girl will be made very happy this Christmas because a lovely baby doll, in a hand-made dress and knitted socks and little bonnet, has been sent to The Post Doll and Toy Fund. There is, of course, a story behind the message on the card which came with this doll. "In Memory of Jennet." The donor will have a happier Christmas because she remembered some other little girl who otherwise might not have had so happy a Christmas as "Little Jannet" had in the years that are past.

Skooters and automobiles! Everybody was so excited at the Santa Claus headquarters of The Washington Post when a supply of these arrived from Marion, Patricia and Spencer King. All were so pleased to contribute their part to the Santa Claus Fund.

Keith Taylor, 12, and Anna Taylor spent several days going over their toys and doing what they could to make them presentable.

Then the Santa Claus agent came from The Washington Post and gathered them up at their home at 121 Twelfth street southeast.

Help From Everybody.

Everybody around The Washington Post helps the Santa Claus Lady with her mail, which becomes larger and larger as days go by. Nobody at The Washington Post is too busy to aid Santa Claus. No one finds the toys and dolls which overflow Santa Claus Lady's office in the way.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt says that she believes in the spirit of Christmas, and in Santa Claus. Of course, and so do all the workers in The Post Toy and Doll Fund.

One of the letters that has come to The Washington Post is typical and without doubt will send many readers of The Post looking over their supply of toys to see how much they can donate to this great activity. Remember even a small amount will be gratefully received and that 10 cents will buy one toy and that $1 will buy ten. Used toys are as welcome as new, for the many agencies and helpers of The Washington Post Toy Fund will make them as good as new in time for Santa Claus to distribute them Christmas eve.

"Dear Santa Claus Lady: I am writing a letter to The Post Toy and Doll Fund, asking Santa Claus Lady to help us have a happy Christmas. My father has had no good work for a long time. I thought by writing to The Post Toy and Doll Fund they would help me have a happy Christmas. Dear Santa Claus Lady, I hope Santa Claus will bring me a doll and some toys, and some good food for Christmas, so we can be made happy. God Bless you. I hope Santa Claus will bring me something, and that he will bring something to the rest of the family, too."

This little girl does not want her name printed because her parents do not know that she wrote the letter. But must she ask in vain for one of the inalienable rights of childhood—a Christmas toy?

Ritchie to Fight Passage of Bill For Bay Bridge

Legislative Battle Likely to Overshadow Liquor Controversy.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.). Construction of an $8,500,000 Chesapeake Bay bridge with Federal recovery funds would be possible under a bill introduced tonight in the State Legislature.

Advanced by Senator Benjamin H. McKindless, Baltimore, the bridge measure was expected to precipitate a bitter legislative battle between city lawmakers and county delegations as word came from Gov. Ritchie's sick bed that he would oppose passage. Bridge debates may steal the limelight from liquor control discussion.

Success was seen by observers for a measure sponsored by Delegate Marvin Farrington, Chevy Chase, to legalize Sunday movies and amateur sports in Montgomery County.

Rockville Seeks Loan.

Delegate George L. Edmunds, Rockville, introduced a bill to enable Rockville to borrow $17,000 from the Federal Government for public works and authorize Gaithersburg to tax real property 15 cents on $100 for fire protection.

A measure to legalize lotteries in Maryland was placed in the hopper by Baltimore delegates. The proposal calls for referendum to repeal a State constitution ban.

Delegate Robert B. Kimble, Allegany County, proposed ratification by Maryland of the Child Labor amendment to the United States Constitution.

State-wide measures introduced would speed criminal procedure in capital cases to prevent lynchings, enable Maryland banks to receive benefits of Federal emergency banking legislation, prevent sale of convict-manufactured goods from other States and permit cities and counties to borrow from the Public Works Administration.

U. S. Would Pay Third.

McKindless's bridge bill called for an outright grant by the Federal Government of 30 per cent of the construction cost and formation of a quasi-public corporation to finance the remainder of the project by selling bonds to the Federal Government, the securities to be retired by toll receipts.

Ritchie has opposed the span program on the grounds that the State might have to make good the bonds in case of default. McKindless sought to gain Ritchie's support by a provision guaranteeing the State should not be held liable.

William S. Gordy, jr., State comptroller, revealed he would not oppose proposals for a 4-cent a gallon State beer tax. Other administration leaders have criticized such suggestions.

Retail Code Council Named For District

Will Meet This Morning to Make Plans and Elect Officers.

Organization of the Retail Trade Council of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association, which will administer the retail code in Washington, was completed yesterday with the appointment of Ralph Goldsmith, of Lansburgh Brothers, as representative of the department stores, and B. B. Burgunder, of S. Kann Sons Co., as alternate.

Other representatives and alternates are: Men's wear, Gerald Grosner, of Grosner's, and Sidney Reizenstein, of The Mode; women's wear, Joseph R. Harris, of the Harris Shop, and John K. Althaus, of Frank R. Jelleff; furniture, Harry T. Roche, of Mayer & Co., and E. L. Geasey, of House & Herrman; musical instruments, Francis Regan, of Jordan Piano Co. (alternate to be appointed); shoes, Edwin Hahn, of William Hahn & Co., and Herbert Rich, of B. Rich's Sons; hardware, Tracy Campbell, of 1300 Good Hope Road southeast, and Lawrence Maus, of W. T. Weaver & Sons; limited price variety, H. D. Ormsby, of S. S. Kresge Co., and S. L. Sheads, of J. G. McCrory Co.

This council will meet this morning to elect officers and plan enforcement of the fair practice provisions of the retail code in Washington. The Better Business Bureau will cooperate in policing of the code. Questions of wages and hours will continue to be administered by the District Compliance Board under direction of Raymond J. Walter.

Separate Navy Bureau Urged for Reserves

Establishment of a separate bureau in the Navy Department to supervise naval reserve affairs was recommended last night by the District section of the United States Naval Reserve Officers Association.

Delegates were elected to the national convention in New York on December 8. They are Lieut. James E. Sullivan and Lieut. John N. Fewell, both of the Naval reserve. They will present last night's resolutions to the convention.

China Faces Civil War In "Surprise" Rebellion

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—After six months of comparative peace in China a mysterious secessionist movement in Fukien Province confronts Nanking's Nationalist government anew with the specter of civil war.

With a newly formed, full-fledged junta government behind it, the "surprise" rebellion has sprung from obscurity to sudden national prominence.

Welles Leaves For Cuba Post; Danger Wanes

Envoy Will Return Here Soon; Bullitt Starts Today for Moscow.

Sumner Welles, Ambassador to Cuba, left last night for Havana, going by train to Miami from whence he will fly to his post.

Before leaving he indicated he probably would return to Washington about the middle of December to assume his new post as Assistant Secretary of State.

Reassurances having been received from the unofficial Grau San Martin representative in Washington, it is believed nothing untoward will occur upon Welles' arrival as was threatened last week.

Mrs. Welles did not accompany her husband.

Caffery Plans Vacation.

Jefferson Caffery, Assistant Secretary of State, slated to succeed Welles in Havana, was busy late yesterday putting finishing touches on the forthcoming Colombian trade agreement. Dr. Fabio Lozano, Colombian minister, is expected at the State Department today to discuss remaining details with Caffery.

Caffery intends to visit New York when this agreement is cleared up, and then go to Louisiana for a short holiday preparatory to taking over his duties in Cuba.

Francis Sayre took the oath of office as Assistant Secretary of State yesterday, filling the position left open when Harry H. Payer went to the R. F. C. His wife, the former Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of Woodrow Wilson, died recently.

Meanwhile, William C. Bullitt, first Ambassador to Moscow, returned yesterday from Warm Springs and plunged at once into the remaining details that must be cleared up before his departure.

Will Leave Today.

He plans to leave Washington this afternoon, sailing Wednesday from New York on the President Harding. In Moscow he will present his credentials, supervise housing arrangements for the embassy and consular staffs and return to this country.

It is believed he will be back in Washington about the middle of January. Accompanied by all or most of his staff, he will then leave again for Moscow about the first of February.

The personnel for the various new positions to be established in the Soviet Union will not be announced for some time, it was said at the department yesterday.

Liquor Zone Urged For Soldiers' Home

North Capitol Citizens Ask Ban in Mile Radius.

Considering the sale of liquor in its community, the North Capitol Citizens Association, meeting at McKinley High School last night, adopted a resolution favoring the restoration of an old District regulation which prohibited sale of alcoholic beverages within a mile radius of a U. S. Soldiers' Home.

The association went on record in favor of widening North Capitol street from Massachusetts avenue to Michigan avenue.

D. S. McNeil was elected president; E. B. Lawler and Mrs. Ada Payne, vice presidents; Jesse W. Morgan, secretary-treasurer; Charles MacMurray, financial secretary, and William P. Henderson and Seldon M. Ely were named delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

J. P. Meshkoff, who is forming boys' clubs under direction of Maj. E. W. Brown, superintendent of police, and Henry Quinn, member of the Board of Education, addressed the association.

12 Farmers to Try Lawyer for Murder

Benton, Ark., Nov. 27 (AP).—A jury was completed tonight for trial of Marr H. Shank, Arkon (Ohio) attorney, on one of four charges of murder on which he is accused. A panel of 75 veniremen was examined.

All the jurors are farmers or rural laborers, and only two or three are parents of small children.

U. S. Admits Surgeon From Cuba, Bars Kin

Miami, Fla., Nov. 27 (AP).—Immigration authorities today admitted one Cuban, Francis Santiesteban, to the United States but barred his brother, Gregoria, after their arrival here by boat from Havana.

Francisco Santiesteban said he was chief surgeon at the model prison on the Isle of Pines during the regime of Machado.

Warning From Canada.

The Canadian government issued an order last week stating that for customs purposes, the United States dollar would be valued at 100 cents in terms of Canadian money, while American imports, competing with goods made in Canada, would be subjected to additional duties equal to the amount of the discount on the United States dollar.

This action is the direct result of depreciation of the dollar in terms of Canadian currency. It reflects a general defensive policy which Canada has employed to counteract the effect of exchange depreciation in a large number of cases.

Canada's effort to neutralize the effects of dollar depreciation is a significant warning of the disappointments that await the United States in other parts of the world, if it persists in its policy of progressive depreciation of the dollar. Defensive action is only a matter of time—probably a short time—as is indicated clearly by the broad hints that come from informed European sources.

Great Britain, for example, has taken no direct action to prevent the recent spectacular rise of the dollar in terms of sterling, but it is impossible to believe that the British will continue to pursue a passive policy if dollar depreciation leads to an undesired inflow of American goods.

One of the leading British joint stock banks devotes considerable space in its current review to a discussion of American monetary policy. The article concludes by saying that, as it seemed almost inconceivable that Great Britain should follow our example and cause a corresponding depreciation of sterling, the only alternative lay in trying to "offset as far as possible the influence of the American experiment upon world trade." The bank adds that "such steps can be very effective, especially when, as in the case of Great Britain, the country is a large importer of goods from abroad."

As a matter of fact, Great Britain's recent denunciation of the tariff truce, concluded last spring prior to the London conference, has been interpreted as a move preparatory to placing increased restriction upon imports coming from countries whose currencies have depreciated rapidly in terms of sterling.

France, too, has denounced the tariff truce, along with other countries, and it seems certain that she will not hesitate to take measures designed to neutralize the effect of dollar depreciation whenever it suits her purpose to do so.

Another indication of the trend of sentiment abroad is afforded by an outstanding French defender of the gold standard, M. Jenny. In a discussion of the effect of American monetary policy upon the franc, he said that France should concentrate her efforts upon an expansion of exports and see to it that her markets were not inundated by low priced goods coming from countries with depreciated currencies. This advice indicates plainly that his answer to the American challenge would be to place restrictions upon imports of our goods.

The Canadian order, therefore, is likely to prove a mere foretaste of what is in store for the United States as the result of dollar depreciation. Whether the answer to our challenge takes the form of competition in currency devaluation, or leads to tariff increases, the effect will be to neutralize the artificial stimulus given to export trade by depreciating the dollar, and to multiply the existing hindrances to international trade.

China's New Rebellion.

Occidental peoples are not much concerned with civil wars in China, except that they keep one of the great nations of the earth in constant turmoil. But the significance of China's most recent uprising seems to carry beyond the borders of that unfortunate country.

A group of leaders hostile to the Nanking government recently declared the independence of Fukien Province and set up a regime of their own. Dispatches indicate that the Fukienese army is invading Kwangtung Province, fighting vigorously over a 50-mile front.

This is no mere bandit army. Nor is this invasion in the same class with the military excursions which are so frequently carried out by China's war lords. Leaders of this movement have as their aim a new revolution to save China from what they fear will be enslavement by Japan or "joint control by imperialists."

Apparently the Nineteenth Route Army which fought the Japanese at Shanghai is the backbone of the new rebellion. Manifestoes issued by the Fukien leaders severely criticize Nanking authorities for failure to reinforce the Nineteenth Route Army in that struggle. Commander Tsai has issued orders for the mobilization of additional Fukienese troops for a campaign against the Nanking government.

Charges have been made that Japan is financing the Fukien rebellion, but they are vigorously denied by the rebel leaders. In fact, antagonism toward Japan seems to be the motivating spirit of this southern uprising against the government of Chiang Kai-shek. Leaders of the Fukienese movement charge that the Nanking government has been too vacillating and conciliatory in its dealings with Japan and therefore are fighting to overthrow it.

The outcome of this movement appears to depend upon the support or lack of support given by Cantonese leaders, who have been out of harmony with Nanking for a number of years. If the dominant factions of southern China were induced to join in this new revolutionary movement, a major civil war might result. Because of its relationship to the major issues in the Far Eastern situation, the progress of this fight will be followed with interest in the United States, as well as in Russia and Japan.

California's "Lesson."

Gov. Rolph of California has a heavy responsibility in the lynching of Thomas Thurmond and Jack Holmes, confessed kidnapers and murderers of Brooke Hart, son of a San Jose department store proprietor.

In the interval between the finding of the body of young Hart in San Francisco Bay and the minute in which the mob found the courage to batter down the jail door to take the prisoners, the Governor of California commented: "I imagine the finding of the body will create a renewed flare of indignation."

The Associated Press quotes him as having said also: "What! Call out troops to protect those two guys?"

After the mob had run wild, wrecked the jail, hanged and burned the bodies of the two men, the governor said, according to the same authority, "This is the best lesson California has ever given the country. We show the country that the State is not going to tolerate kidnaping."

Those who know the case histories of lynchings know that in more than nine out of ten complacent public officials have given passive, if not active, aid. A mob is essentially cowardly; it requires time to produce its leaders and to work itself into that emotional frenzy in which men throw off the vestiges of civilization and prepare for the blood-letting. That time interval offers the courageous public official his opportunity to mass his forces and demonstrate the integrity of his oath to uphold law.

Those hours found Gov. Rolph rushing no troops to San Jose or calling out the local militia; they found him doing nothing, apparently, to strengthen the forces of local officials who were fast losing control of the situation. They disclosed him, upon the other hand, giving aid and comfort to the mob in the form of intimations that he, as chief executive of the State, would not invoke his powers to put down the defiance.

Without attempting to measure his responsibility for what happened, Gov. Rolph is wholly wrong in stating its lesson if he believes extra-legal mass murders will stop crime.

California has given the country no lesson except the depressing lesson that her people, high in literacy according to the country's standards, high in per capita wealth and cultural advantages, are yet capable of relapsing into barbarism.

California's lesson is that the tom-toms of emotional frenzy are still able to awaken primitive passions and invoke orgies in which all standards reared by the human race in centuries of striving, go down.

Gov. Rolph and California had an opportunity to give America a lesson that would have been worth while—a demonstration of the dignity and majesty and effectiveness of law in the face of a mob.

National Defense Impaired.

Gen. MacArthur's report on the status of the Army commands serious attention. In a time of social and economic unrest throughout the world the strength of the Army has been reduced below what Gen. MacArthur considers "the danger line."

The general's broad experience and training, his capacity as a military leader, in addition to the unquestioned facts which he presents in his report, lend weight to his recommendation, which is couched in these words:

> I consider it of the most urgent importance to the United States that this condition be rectified without delay.

The handicaps under which the Army is working arise from two sources. According to Gen. MacArthur it "has faced the double difficulty of reducing costs on the one hand and at the same time executing unusual and exacting duties on the other."

The Army was called upon to assume complete and permanent control over the Civilian Conservation Corps, under general supervision of the director of that organization. On July 1 a total of 3,109 officers of the regular Army, 532 officers of the regular Navy and Marine Corps, and 1,774 reserve officers were on duty in the C. C. C. camps.

Some junior officers obtained valuable training through the mobilization and organization of the C. C. C. "But, far outweighing these specific advantages," says Gen. MacArthur, "there have resulted disadvantages which, if long continued will have most damaging effects upon the efficiency of the Army and its readiness for emergency."

The shortage of officers for regular military duty, says the chief of staff, has resulted in serious neglect in the education of regular officers, the National Guard, the Organized Reserve, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and the regular Army units.

The following paragraph of the report is significant:

> This lack of officers has brought regular Army training in the Continental United States to a virtual standstill, and has almost destroyed the readiness of units for immediate and effective employment on emergency duty. Such a condition is the very antithesis of that which should prevail and constitutes a matter of the most serious import to national defense. Its prompt correction is mandatory if regular Army units are to regain their ability to respond effectively, in any crisis, to orders of the President.

While the duties of the Army were increased its budgetary allowance was reduced 33 per cent this year under the appropriation for 1932. "Among the curtailments required," says Gen. MacArthur, "were almost complete cessation in procurement of motor vehicles, practical suspension of mechanization and similar programs, reduction in airplane replacement, and marked contraction in target practice and other phases of practical training, particularly for the regular Army."

Since this report was prepared the Public Works Administration has allotted various sums to the Army for housing, motorization and the purchase of munitions, aircraft equipment, etc. But these allotments will provide only a fraction of the improvements which the War Department considers "essential to modern efficiency and necessary under a well-balanced program of preparedness."

For example, the P. W. A. made available $10,000,000 for motorization. A recent study by the War Department indicates that $35,000,000 is needed for modernization and motorization of the field artillery and $39,000,000 for motorization of other Army units.

Gen. MacArthur does not think that the United States needs a military establishment comparable to the great armies of various other nations. In point of organized military forces the United States stands seventeenth among the world powers.

Gen. MacArthur's plea is for adequate national defense through the maintenance of a strong nucleus which can be expanded into a fighting machine in times of emergency. Past experience indicates that his request is fundamentally sound.

The Great Starling Question.

The Post remains perfectly indifferent, even, it might be said, cold, to the announcement that Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parks, has been named chairman of a special committee to devise ways and means of getting rid of the starlings. It makes no difference that sanitary engineers, health officers and ornithologists are to be added to the committee; The Post would feel the same if hawks and owls, which don't like starlings, were added to the roster.

Why, back in 1918 people—mostly District Commissioners—were talking about getting rid of the starlings. They discovered in those days that every time you do away with one, the mama starling comes up with four more.

Four years ago, come next January 29, this same Mr. Lanham thought he had the starling situation well in hand when he cut off tree limbs and put smudge-pots with unpleasant odors under them. But the starlings were patient; they waited for the limbs to grow back.

Postmaster "Bill" Mooney rigged up a stuffed owl and decorated a stately Corinthian column of the city postoffice building with it, to frighten the birds, and a Post reporter announced, with all the assurance of Joshua, "Bill Mooney has evidently solved the starling question." Which only goes to show that even The Post can be wrong about men, as well as horses.

Somebody with a bright idea put a battery of lights on the District building, but its only effect was to make the pests chatter and complain. At another time the janitor of the building ran around with a slapstick making a lot of noise that kept the birds awake, but the janitor finally got tired and went off and the starlings caught up on their sleep. Somebody else tried shooting a gun loaded with black powder; another genius played sour music under the trees, but that's no novelty, even to a starling.

The files of The Post are full of records of high-hearted experiments conducted by District Commissioners, all chalked up as failures. Even the United States Government jumped into the situation—and this was before the Government began jumping into every situation.

The Post maintains its attitude of haughty cynicism!

"COLLEGE PROFESSORS."

Contrasts Lincoln's Choice of Advisers With Brain Trust.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was a tragic mistake to call to the National Capital, at the beginning of this Administration, a bunch of college professors, and others of that ilk, to aid in running the country. Lincoln didn't do that in 1861. Facing a great crisis, with the South already in arms, he recognized the need of the advice of our ablest statesmen, men of wide and long experience in public affairs. Realizing that each of his competitors in the Chicago convention must be able men, or they would not have been put forward for the Presidential office, he called four of them to his Cabinet—William H. Seward, Simon Cameron, Salmon P. Chase and Edward Bates—passing by only one convention competitor, William L. Dayton, of New Jersey, who was appointed Ambassador to France. Lincoln was not afraid of being overshadowed. Desiring the aid of trained, representative statesmen, he got them—not, however, from Columbia University or from similar institutions.

I have no grudge against college graduates. But bear in mind this: When the four years come to a close there is a "commencement," not an "end." A college degree alone equips no man for the battle of life.

The truth is, college professors never get beyond the "commencement" stage. They never graduate into the world of deeds. With their eyes and noses glued to textbooks, they are never equipped for the real struggle of existence. They remain dreamers, theorists until the crack of doom.

President Roosevelt had a half a dozen brilliant competitors at Chicago—former Gov. Smith of New York, Gov. Ritchie of Maryland, Gov. White of Ohio, former Gov. Byrd of Virginia, &c. Not a single powerful figure in his own party was called to Washington. Two senators were named, Swanson and Hull.

The remainder of President Roosevelt's advisers were men practically never heard of by those versed in governmental affairs. This applies equally to his Cabinet appointees, and the vast horde of "brain trust" professors, who have since dominated the policy of the country, which has brought us to a state of chaos such as the country has never known before.

MYSTERY SOLVED.

Treasury Guards Didn't Salute Superiors, That's All.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Well! Well! So Mr. Morgenthau wants his "inferiors" (whoever that may mean) to stand at attention. Not until I read Mr. Morgenthau's orders to the guards in the United States Treasury did I realize how deeply he has the interest of his country at heart. There sat Congress all last spring, not to mention the President and Secretary Woodin, and not one in all that group was keen enough to suspect that the trouble with this country, and particularly the Treasury's deficiency, is due to the fact that some Treasury guard neglected to stand at attention in the presence of his "superior." Now that Mr. Morgenthau has come into power and after profound thought and keen research has discovered the trouble, we have nothing to fear. No wonder Mr. Roosevelt promoted him to "No. 1" man. He is certainly the first man to discover how vital to this country's welfare is the appearance of the Treasury guards.

To assist Mr. Morgenthau in his noble work, I am going to ask assistance from The Post. I do not know personally the commander of the American Legion, but since he offered all that he had to his country once, I am sure that if The Post will ask him, he will again come forward and offer himself or whatever is necessary. Mr. Morgenthau, a former service man himself, has evidently forgotten in the midst of his multitudinous duties, that there is an American Legion, and so has neglected to call on that organization. But if the commander will select from his organization a good "stander-at-attention" and send him to Washington to train Mr. Morgenthau's "inferiors," I am sure the good that will result will make the commander's war record a mere incident.

Of course, I covet such an opportunity to render a service to my country, but I am

OPPOSES COULEE DAM

Would Benefit Only a Small Minority.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems just a bit strange that an Administration that is paying a bonus to cut down the acreage of certain crops is contemplating developing such a project as that of the Columbia basin. It is true that the construction of the dam would give employment to a great many men, but employment is evidently only a secondary consideration with those most deeply interested in promoting development of the project.

The rate of taxation has continually risen in the State of Washington until the average taxpayer of Washington pays $3.20 to $1 paid by the average taxpayer of Ohio. If the Federal Government can be persuaded to finance building of the Coulee Dam and permit the State to collect the revenue derived from the sale of power, &c., it will add just that much more to the revenue already collected by the State.

What is needed most of all in the State is a thorough reorganization of certain departments that are spending so much of the State's money.

I feel that with the cost of State government as high as it is in Washington, the benefits to be had from revenue derived from the Coulee Dam would be felt only by a very small minority.

Daily Talks About Books and Authors

Books on Boxing.

Games of physical contact are always more exciting to watch than games that display individual skill. The average college student would rather play golf or tennis than football; but when it comes to playing the part of spectator, it is easy to see why he would rather watch football, boxing or wrestling than look on at tennis or golf.

Among recent books on fighting with gloves, there are three that I particularly recommend, "Champions Off Guard," by William O. Inglis; "Fighting for Fun," by Eddie Eagan, and "A Man Must Fight," by Gene Tunney.

Mr. Inglis, who is a trained reporter of athletics, had has the advantage of a personal acquaintance with all the heavyweight professional champions, from John L. Sullivan to Primo Carnera; and he tells many highly interesting anecdotes. Furthermore, he brings out the attractive side of these men, their sportsmanship, their good wishes to successful opponents, &c.

Eddie Eagan, who was Olympic amateur champion, graduated from Yale with honors, won a Rhodes scholarship, was a student at Magdalen College, Oxford, for three years, where he defeated all competitors in university boxing, and although he had many offers to become professional, never left the amateur ranks. He gives exciting descriptions of his battles.

Gene Tunney, the only professional champion who retired undefeated, and who educated himself in literature and the fine arts, so that he is today a discriminating lover of the best things in poetry, music and painting, tells in his book of his rise from obscurity to the world championship. The story is told with simplicity, modesty and charm.

If He Digs Mud for the Brick, He Helps the Architect Build a Palace

By Robert Quillen.

If there is one fact within the scope of man's understanding that is true past all doubting, it is that cause and effect follow one another in endless succession.

The acorn becomes an oak; and though you plant acorns until doomsday, you never will get a walnut tree.

The effect is determined and limited by the cause, and within the acorn there is the capacity to produce an oak and nothing else.

Observe a man—6 feet tall, deep of chest. His hair is red, his eyes blue, his nose straight, his mind brilliant.

Are his qualities the result of chance? You know they are not.

He was once a mere germ of life—a thing so small that no eye could see it without the aid of a microscope.

Yet within that infinitesimal germ of life was the 6-foot man, complete in every detail.

Would it have been possible for that germ to become a small man with black hair and a hooked nose and a feeble mind?

You know it would not. Within that germ was the capacity to produce a certain kind of man and no other.

Every happening since time began was the effect of some cause, and within the cause were the factors that made the happening exactly as it was.

And as each man is the result of capacities that were in a germ of life, so the qualities and abilities of the race today result from capacities that were in the first man.

Did man begin as a lower animal—as a tadpole in the primeval ooze? Then within that tadpole was the capacity to develop, through countless generations, until it became man as he is.

If there had been no such capacity, there could have been no development. As well say that an oak grew from an acorn although the acorn had no capacity to produce an oak.

Are man's capacities exhausted? Obviously not, for he feels within himself a virtue and a greatness he is not yet man enough to use.

He doesn't yet dream how far he shall go. But this much he may know is true. As he does his best to develop his capacity for better things, he is collaborating with his Maker in perfecting the mysterious plan of the universe.

The Yellow Peril.

Five years ago men talked of the menace of Russian state-regimented labor. While the Russian bogey held our eyes, the Japanese were getting hold of our markets. Now British textile workers, driven out of their own markets, know a real meaning for that bogey of 30 years ago, the yellow peril.

The Once Over.

"GOLD," OR "OH, THE PITY OR IT."

Scene: A moving stairway with motor trouble.

Characters: Roger, an oaf; Olaf, a fellow oaf, only taller.

* * * *

Roger—Well, I see by the headlines that gold is up another 10 cents.

Olaf—You don't say so!

Roger—I say so and the paper says so.

Olaf—Does that make it expensive?

Roger—Well, it's pretty high for this time of year, they tell me.

Olaf—Why? Is it out of season?

Roger—It must be. I know it was cheaper last spring.

* * * *

Olaf—How does it affect you?

Roger—Well, fortunately, I can take my gold or leave it alone.

Olaf—It's not a necessity with you.

Roger—No. It would be different if I were an addict.

Olaf—I was an addict once.

Roger—Really?

Olaf—Yes. I got so I had to have my gold every day, but when I saw it was getting the best of me I gave it up. I haven't had any gold in so long now that I have lost my taste for it.

Roger—Well, with me it's different. I like nice things. I've always been very fond of gold. My father was fond of gold before me.

Olaf—It sort of runs in the family.

* * * *

Roger—I was raised on gold. We always had plenty of it.

Olaf—What did it cost in those days?

Roger—I never knew. We just accepted gold as gold and I never remember hearing a price quoted.

Olaf—If you never knew what gold was quoted at what difference does it make now?

Roger—It just makes it seem more of a luxury. Every day it's higher. It's getting so only the rich can afford it.

Olaf—Well, you'd better start getting along without it.

Roger—I haven't the strength of character to drop it all at once.

Olaf—Well, taper off a little each day.

Roger—That's a good idea.

Olaf—Got a nickel?

Roger—No. What made you think so?

Olaf—I can't figure it out either.

Roger—Well, so long. See you in the next economic crisis.

A GIANT SASSAFRAS TREE.

One of the most beautiful and curious sights to be seen near Everton, Mo., is the great sassafras tree which has grown to be almost three feet around the body and taller than a large barn near which it stands, says the Kansas City Times. The tree is near Seybert, in the hills north of Everton. While sassafras bushes grow to a considerable size, this tree is believed to be the only one of its huge size in this section of the Ozarks. It attracts much attention among both natives and tourists, who travel the byroad leading past the place.

When the autumn colors begin to appear the tree presents a striking appearance with its variously shaped leaves all flaming in a score of different hues and dominating the landscape about it.

Pheasants Find Safety.

A royal pheasant and his flock dropped in to visit us today
And seemed to me like refugees which from their homes had run away.
I watched them from my window seat, a little wearied by their flight,
But safe beyond the danger zone where guns were barking left and right.

I put out food for them to find and bade them make themselves at ease.
To be a pheasant must be hard in glorious hunting times like these.
When men with guns the countryside are making warfare on the clan,
It is a pheasant wise indeed who who gets to safety while he can.

I wonder how that fellow knew that if he reached my patch of ground
His wives and he could rest in peace and never hear a shotgun sound?
How did he guess I'd welcome them?
Who told that gaudy bird our yard
Is sanctuary to his kind and deadly weapons here are barred?

I've many huntsmen 'mong my friends, nor do I quarrel with their fun.
I by a different path, perhaps, had learned the joy of dog and gun;
But gleefully today I grinned those pheasants on my lawn to see,
And took it as a compliment that they would trust their lives with me.

Young German Clerics Resist Nazi's Inroads

Vesting of Papal Powers in New Reichsbishop Widely Opposed.

(Here is the second in a series of four stories on the church situation in Germany.)

By Louis P. Lochner.

(Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press.)

Berlin, Nov. 27.—When the Nazi revolution swept Germany and bowled over political parties, economic organizations of workers as well as of employes, cultural, scientific, artistic and sports bodies—even stamp collectors' associations—the Nazi party little dreamed that the Protestant Church would prove to be one of the most troublesome sources of opposition.

There is a body of young clergymen, most of them war veterans, many of them holders of the Iron Cross, which declines to accept the theology of the German Christians.

Already 4,000 of these men have gone on record as regarding the church's anti-Semitism incompatible with the teachings of Jesus Christ. Almost 3,000 of them are organized in the pastors' emergency federation for the purpose of resisting all attempts to convert the church into a political institution. They have made common cause in the "young reformatory movement."

Nazi State Accepted.

These men accept the new Nazi state as a fact and consider it their Christian duty to obey this new worldly authority. They admonished all members to vote "ja" in the plebiscite of November 12 on the Hitler government's foreign policy of withdrawal from the League of Nations and the disarmament conference. They resist the attempt, however, of the Nazi "German Christians" to regiment the church and to vest the new Reichsbishop with powers and functions similar to those of the Pope.

Internationally best known of this group is the Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, whose social settlement work at Bethel, near Bielefeld in Westphalia, is famous as one of the most impressive manifestations of practical Christianity in the world. Before the Nazis seized the church the heads of the then existing state churches elected him Reichsbishop. The government, however, refused to recognize him.

Bodelschwingh is still a tower of strength in the church. Bravely he wrote to Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, protesting against the insistence of the "German Christians" that 75 per cent of all offices in the church must be allotted to them.

High Position Rejected.

Bodelschwingh feels so keenly that a church based on force rather than love can not succeed in the long run that he declined a high position on the home missions board, because he did not desire to give even the semblance of identifying himself with the "German Christians."

At the head of the Pastors Emergency Federation stands the Rev. Martin Niemaeller, former submarine commander, whose militantism against German Christians led Dr. Joachim Hossenfelder, leader of the movement, to suspend him November 13. He was later reinstated by order of Reichsbishop Mueller.

When the First National Synod convened at Wittenberg in September 2,000 clergymen sent a written protest against the methods of force employed by the "German Christians" and branded discrimination against Christianized and baptized Jews as "conflicting with holy writ and the articles of faith of the church."

Foreign Bishops Opposed.

The non-Nazi church people are heartened by the support they are receiving from Protestant bodies the world over. It is known that both the Luthern bishop of Sweden, Eidem, and the Archbishop of Canterbury have declined to attend the consecration of the new reichbishop, Ludwig Mueller, on December 3, in the cathedral of Berlin. It is also known that the World Ecumenical Council has threatened to exclude the German Protestant Church from the council if it should insist upon the "Aryan paragraph."

So determined are Friedrich von Bodelschwingh and his followers to insist upon equal rights for Aryan and Jewish Christian, and upon freedom of conscience and noninterference by the political powers, that they will rather secede than yield.

They are biding their time, however. To risk a schism today might give their Nazi adversaries an opportunity to represent them as enemies of the state.

Such a charge can not be made once the "third religion" has been officially recognized. For, say the Bodelschwingh adherents, once a third religion besides Catholicism and Protestantism is awarded full equal rights with the two existing confessions, why should not a fourth group, supporting the state, but not the Nazi German Christians' theology, be given recognition?

Estates Get Cash For Unused Leave

McCarl Lifts Ban Since Money Is Available.

Cash can be paid to the estates of dead persons who earned leave at the Government Printing Office but did not take it, Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday.

The current appropriations act did not authorize payment of money for unusued leave, and on April 21 McCarl notified the public printer not to pay it.

Later, on May 29, the Third Deficiency act was passed, providing not more than $400,000 for this purpose. Under this act the payments can be made, McCarl decided yesterday.

Convict, by New Process, May Slash Cost of Hydrogen

Folsom Prison, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP). Working in an improvised prison laboratory, a convict has developed a system of making hydrogen at a cost experts estimate at one-forty-fifth the present production charge.

Engineers who Sunday witnessed a demonstration by the convict, James F. Burke, said his method may revolutionize the hydrogen industry.

Using four salad dressing jars, a single dry cell and other home-made equipment, Burke made hydrogen before two engineers for the Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

The convict, employed in the battery business before he was sentenced, claims to have developed a "depolarizing" solution which hastens decomposition of water into hydrogen and oxygen, its elements He declares the solution breaks down the water's resistance to decomposition.

This breaking down, the convict explains, is accomplished by an electrical process requiring only a fraction of the current necessary in previous experiments. The value of the process, it is said, lies in this reduction in electricity cost.

Hitlerites Shut Doors on Rebel Church Group

Thousands Huddle in Rain When Nazis Retract Their Promises.

Berlin, Nov. 27 (AP).—Thousands of insurgent Protestants were shut out in the rain tonight as the Nazi Church leadership went back on its promise of noninterference and tried to force the abandonment of two opposition mass meetings.

In an effort to check the spread of the opposition movement throughout the Reich, Nazi Christians refused to permit insurgents to use the Evangelical Cathedral and the old Garrison Church for scheduled meetings.

Both churches had been completely sold out, as prominent insurgent pastors were about to carry their protests before the public for the first time since the fight over dogma and leadership in the church began last week.

Huge Crowd Turned Away.

The huge crowd of people turned away from the cathedral and the Garrison Church was finally accommodated in a small hall, where 5,000 were admitted.

Meanwhile, 10,000 more jammed Friedrichshain Hall, one of Berlin's largest meeting places, to hear prominent pastors condemn the alleged heresies expressed at the sportpalast meeting last week.

Huge Nazi Swastika flags framed a large picture of Chancellor Hitler on the stand, where speakers delivered impassioned declarations of faith in Christ.

There was intense silence in the hall as the Rev. Walter Thieme said, "St. Paul's word about the secret of the Holy Cross is only a Jewish tradition, but it is the most wonderful revelation of the Almighty, who chose this manner of speaking to us.

Defends Old Testament.

"Should we ask our own blood we would get a picture of the Almighty resembling us. Let us get away from this theory."

Turning to the subject of Teutonic paganism, the Rev. Thieme said "before Christianity came, man had a gloomy fatalistic faith."

The Rev. Dr. Zegfried Knak berated Nordicism and defended the Semitic origin of the Bible.

"If you leave the Old Testament out of the Bible," he told the huge audience, "you cancel God's loyalty. The Old Testament is like an arrow pointing to Jesus Christ. It, too, is God's word."

River Work Made Possible by Federal Funds.

St. Louis, Nov. 27 (AP).—River improvement and flood control projects in the Mississippi Valley have employed approximately 38,000 men under the public works program, Maj. Gen. Edward M. Markham, chief of Army engineers, told the Mississippi Valley Association here tonight.

In addition, he said, indirect labor involved in furnishing supplies and equipment will more than double this figure. The Army engineer chief was the principal speaker at the association's annual banquet.

Effort to Refloat Trawler Balked

Wind and Currents Halt Coast Guardsmen.

Manteo, N. C., Nov. 27 (AP).—A heavy northwest wind and strong currents today balked coast guardsmen in their effort to refloat the 83-foot trawler Teresa, of Gloucester, Mass., which ran aground near Bodie Island Coast Guard Station in yesterday's fog.

Coast guardsmen, however, said they still expected to be able to float the vessel later, although she is partially filled with water.

The vessel's crew was taken off by rescue crews before she struck.

County Players to Give 'Death Takes a Holiday'

With the selection of Doris Davidson, Margaret B. Keyhoe and Irving M. Day, the cast for the production of "Death Takes a Holiday," by the Montgomery Players now is complete. The performance will be given December 16 at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School under the direction of Martha S. Williams.

Stage and lighting effects are handled by Carlysle Fliedner and F. B. Eldridge, while Mrs. McLeod Maurice is in charge of costumes and properties. The play is a translation from the Italian by Walter Ferris.

Appeal Reveals New York Bank Tax Shortage

National City Institution Claims Credit for Spanish Levy.

The National City Bank of New York, whose president, Charles E. Mitchell, was tried on a charge of income tax evasion, was itself short $109,303 in its 1929 income tax, the Internal Revenue Department has ruled. The ruling was made public yesterday with the bank's appeal to the United States Board of Tax Appeals, asking for redetermination of the tax shortage [illegible].

The National City Bank was the first big corporation to come under scrutiny of the Senate Banking Committee in its bank and stock investigation.

Revelation of spectacular financing, stock operations of its officers, flotation of foreign securities which later defaulted, and similar revelations brought Mitchell's resignation and subsequent trial. Promises were made that the bank would be divorced from its securities affiliate and its operations cleaned up.

Deficiency Copy Omitted.

Although the bank's petition to the Tax Appeal Board included the usual copy of the notice of deficiency, it did not contain the customary duplicate of the Internal Revenue Bureau's computation of the tax shortage. Such copies are customarily a part of the petition, and reveal details of the petitioner's total income for the year in question. The bank's petition was signed by Rowland R. Hughes, assistant comptroller.

The taxes in dispute, the petition revealed, represent the consolidated income taxes for the bank and affiliated companies. These companies include the National City Safe Deposit Co., the National City Realty Corporation, the International Banking Corporation, the International Finance Co., the Bank of Haiti, Inc., the Macoris Securities Co. and the Copra Milling Corporation.

The petition charged the Commissioner of Internal Revenue erred in not allowing credit to the bank for income taxes paid the Spanish government by the International Banking Corporation, covering income earned in Spain. The International Corporation, the petition said, paid $130,000 in such taxes to the Spanish government.

Credit in 1929 Cited.

It also asserted that in 1929, the National City Bank, the National City Bank of New York (France) and the International Banking Corporation earned income in foreign countries other than in Spain, and paid income taxes thereon amounting to $412,322. In a 1929 tax audit, it declared, the commissioner allowed credit for these foreign taxes as well as credit of $773 for taxes withheld at the source in Spain.

Upon the audit of 1929, the bank asserted, it informed the commissioner that the Spanish income taxes were pending and asked for credit for the amount of the expected Spanish taxes. It declared it offered to post a bond covering the amount of the Spanish taxes but that "the commissioner failed and refused to grant the request of the petitioner and determined the alleged deficiency in income tax."

Recheck of Needy Pupils Nears End

Absentees Through Lack of Clothing to Get Aid.

The second survey to determine how many Washington school children are away from school because of lack of clothing will be completed tomorrow, Miss Fay L. Bentley, director of school attandance and work permits, said yesterday.

Attendance workers began checking schools last week. A recheck will now be made to see how many children who were absent have returned. The absentees will be investigated, and relief will be administered as soon as they are known, Miss Bentley said.

The survey is being conducted in compliance with a request of Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, vice president of the Board of Education.

Public Utility Holding Firms Called "Peril"

Power Commission Flays Fund Manipulations as "Insidious."

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Power Commission yesterday described public utility holding companies as "grave economic and social perils," calling for "prompt corrective and preventive measures."

This was contained in a unanimous commission decision slashing some $800,000, including a $500,000 service charge, from the claim of the Louisville (Ky.) Hydroelectric Co. that its power project on the Ohio River cost $7,829,000.

The H. M. Byllesby Co., of Chicago, a holding concern, was the principal subject of the commission's attack, but it was said to be typical of holding companies.

The particular legal point at issue was the $500,000 service charge by a wholly-owned subsidiary of the holding company. The commission held that the charge was a simple transfer of funds from one part of the Byllesby structure to another, and that this unreasonably increased the capital cost of the Hydroelectric project, and consequently rates to the public.

Firms Virtually Identical.

Subsidiary to the Byllesby Co., the decision said, were the Sub-Holding Co., Standard Gas & Electric Co., the Wholly Owned Service Co., known as the Byllesby Engineer Management Co.; the Louisville Gas & Electric Co., Delaware, and finally the Louisville Hydroelectric Co.

The commission said the principal officers of these companies were virtually identical so that a charge by one against another reflected no independent opinion by any company.

The management company charge the Hydroelectric Co. 7½ per cent of the project's cost as a supervisory fee, but the commission held it was not proved this was an "actual legitimate original cost."

Called Insidious Practice.

Such a contract, declared to have been arranged by identical officers of the same companies, was characterized "as one of the most insidious, grievous and obnoxious practices of the holding company device," the commission added:

"Such a holding company dynasty—not exceptional but typical—with its absentee ownership and management, its sovereignty over far flung dominions in many States but subject to the direct jurisdiction of none, its authority centralized in a few strong hands, its 'fee' taxation without representation of the operating companies, is a grave economic and social peril. It calls for prompt corrective and preventive measures. The crux of the problem is the present inadequacy of the law."

Six Texas Convicts Bind Guards, Flee

Thieves Seize Guns, Escape in Stolen Auto.

Huntsville, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP).—Six convicts on the Eastman State Prison Farm, near here overpowered two guards at noon today, seized their guns, bound the guards and seven other prisoners to trees and escaped in a stolen automobile.

The six were: J. D. Good, serving two years for theft; Forest Gibson, four years, burglary and theft; Frank Shelton, seven years, robbery by firearms; Monroe Summy, ten years, burglary and theft; Norman Adams, ten years, robbery by firearms; Charles Oran Harrison, two years, burglary and theft.

Another Kansas Officer Impeached

W. J. French, State Auditor, Faces Senate Trial.

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 27 (AP).—Will J. French, State auditor, was impeached by the Kansas House of Representatives late today and becomes the second State official the Representatives in special session session have decided should stand trial before the Senate on charges of misdemeanor in office.

Roland Boynton, attorney general, was impeached last week, with four formal articles accepted a day or two later.

French's impeachment came, as did Boynton's, on adoption of a resolution which also called for a committee to draft the formal articles.

Hamm Kidnaping In Jury's Hands

Ten Men and Two Women Hold Fate of Four.

St. Paul, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Hamm kidnap case was given a Federal court jury of ten men and two women at 6:45 p. m. today after more than two weeks of hearing testimony.

Judge M. M. Joyce, in his charge, instructed jurors they must determine the guilt or innocence of each of the four defendants, under both the indictments for the abduction last June 15 of William Hamm, jr., wealthy St. Paul brewer.

Mrs. K. H. Brown Left Estate of $1,171,886

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Mrs. Katherine H. Brown, who died December 11, 1931, left a net estate of $1,171,886, a transfer tax appraisal filed today showed.

Ultimately the residue will go to the Children's Hospital Association of Denver, Colo. A sister, Vina McClure, Corona, Calif., received a bequest of $2,500 and an annuity of $5,000.

Should You Try Ocean Flight Odds Are You'll Make It

Since May, 1930, Only 13 Attempts Out of 98 Have Failed.

Here it is—batting averages for transatlantic flights.

Statistics prove that the chance for success of an ocean flight is predominately in favor of the flier.

Through a recently completed study of flights since May, 1930, 98 in all, it was revealed that only 13 were failures.

Of these 13, four failed before the ocean take-off, four were forced down at sea, and five were lost at sea. Eighty-five were successful.

The study was made by Maj. E. E. Aldrin, head of the aviation division of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

"Ocean flying," Maj. Aldrin said, "is not yet as safe as transcontinental flying, but it is rapidly getting out of the so-called stunt stage.

"Science and technicians have done their share to take a large part of the risk out of ocean flying and it is only a question of time before the dangers that follow fog and ice formations will be conquered."

Home Loan Chief Approves St. Paul Dismissal, Adds Appraisers Here.

Any employe of the Home Loan Bank Board who publicly criticizes any branch of the Government will be discharged, John H. Fahey, new chairman of the board, said yesterday.

Fahey made the statement in commenting approvingly on the dismissal of an appraiser in St. Paul for criticism of one of the recovery administrations. He said no changes in the personnel of the Home Owners Loan Corporation are contemplated.

Reports of an impending shake-up in the corporation followed appointment of Fahey to succeed William F. Stevenson, of South Carolina. Stevenson had been under fire for naming fellow South Carolinians to posts in the corporation and on the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, with which it is affiliated.

Adds Title Examiners.

These persons include A. E. Hutchinson, who is secretary of the Home Loan Bank Board and general manager of the loan corporation; W. P. Goodman and James A. Hoyt, assistant general managers, and J. V. Matthews, assistant to the chairman. Matthews, although no longer assistant to the chairman, continues as assistant to Stevenson, still a member of the board. Fahey named as his assistant O. E. Loomis, former deputy to Stevenson.

The corporation is adding appraisers and title examiners to speed up work, Fahey announced. Such an addition was made yesterday in the District of Columbia office of the loan corporation in appointment of William E. Foster, sales and loan manager of Howenstein Brothers, as a preliminary appraiser for property on which loans are contemplated in the northeast and southeast sections of the city. The northwest section is being covered by L. P. Lyles, of Realty Associates.

Banks More Lenient.

On October 31 there were 4,600 appraisers and 4,300 title examiners and attorneys in the field, they reported.

Encouraging signs noted by Mr. Fahey were the number of applications for loans being withdrawn throughout the country because of agreement of lending concerns to refinance the properties.

"Mortgage holders appear to be showing greater confidence in the real estate market," he said. "The cooperation by banks and lending associations is, in many instances, most encouraging."

In Washington, 273 applications for loans have been withdrawn because of agreement of mortgage holders to cooperate with the distressed property owners. These applications amounted to $1,639,625.

Rouge on Cigarettes Gang Slaying Clew

Women Hunted as Decoys in Two Murders.

Detroit, Nov. 27 (AP).—Women "decoys" who, the police believe, lured Abe Axler and Eddie Fletcher, once powerful members of the Purple gang, to their death on a lonely Oakland County road early Sunday, tonight were sought, as the only clew upon which police base a hope of solution of the slayings.

Examining the automobile in which the bodies of the pair, bullet-ridden and slumped in a rear seat, were found by a deputy sheriff, William D. Brusstar, assistant prosecutor, said today that 30 or 40 cigarette stubs, rouge-stained, had been found in and near the machine.

Plans Ordered In Arlington Sewer Project

Bid for Disposal System Drawings Accepted; Reid to Speak.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

A contract has been awarded to the Purification Engineering Corporation of New York City to prepare plans and specifications of the two disposal plants incident to installation of the county sewerage system, Chief Engineer Allen B. McDaniel announced yesterday. The accepted bid was $6,250. He estimated the two plants, one in Rosslyn, the other in the Four Mile area, will cost $125,000.

The field survey is progressing rapidly, and bids for constructing at least part of the sewerage system, as well as bids for the two disposal plants, will be asked about January 1.

Civic Group to Meet.

Hugh Reid will be the principal speaker before the Highland Park Citizens Association tomorrow night at the home of William H. Diehl. Mr. Reid will speak on the merits of the Byrd road plan.

Holidays Begin Tomorrow.

Thanksgiving holidays for Arlington County schools begin tomorrow afternoon and will continue until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

6,000 Montgomery Homes to Get Seals

Cash Expected in Return to Fight Tuberculosis.

The Montgomery County branch of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association tomorrow will mail envelopes containing Christmas seals to 6,000 county residents. The recipients are expected to send a check or money order to pay for the seals.

The money gained through the sale of the seals will be devoted to fighting the white plague in Maryland, with 70 per cent of the receipts allocated to Montgomery County. The money will finance clinics and other measures of fighting the disease, according to Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer.

The seals are sent out by a committee, of which Mrs. J. Bond Smith, of Takoma Park, is chairman. Dr. Upton D. Nourse is president of the county branch.

State's Witness Frees Prisoner

Owner of Rossdhu Castle Absolves Accused.

Following a defense of the prisoner by the chief State witness, State's Attorney Stedman Prescott moved for a directed verdict of not guilty in the case of Richard Norris yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md.

Judge Charles W. Woodward ordered the prisoner freed.

Placed on the stand by the State, Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, who, with her husband, owns Rossdhu Castle, Chevy Chase, Md., told the jury she believed Norris had not intended stealing linens and other laundry but merely had been attempting to collect pay due for services from former proprietors of the castle restaurant.

Fairfax Group Values School Site at $5,000

Estler M. Palmer was elected president of the Fairfax County Fair Association at a meeting last night. Other officers elected are: J. W. Gaines, vice president; Mr. Graham, secretary; E. S. Whiting, treasurer, and H. H. Wakefield, O. B. Campbell, Albert Sherwood, J. V. Turner and Fred Faegmiller, executive committee.

The association decided to accept $5,000 for a tract of land which the county school board has been considering as the site for a new high school. The board is expected to make an offer this week.

Burnside Bridge, Civil War Key Point, May Be Taken Over by Government

Burnside Bridge, a strategic goal during the Battle of Antietam when Gen. Burnside, of the Union Forces, and Gen. Toombs, of the Confederacy, fought for the commanding position. Burnside desired it to halt Lee during his retreat from Maryland. Toombs, however, with 1,200 troops harassed and delayed Burnside's 14,000 troops long enough for Gen. A. P. Hill to arrive from Harpers Ferry with reinforcements and drive the Unionists back to Antietam. Indications are that the bridge, located near Hagerstown, may soon be taken over by the Federal Government.

Enforce NRA, Plan in County

Montgomery Board Meets Friday to Map Strict Code Adherence.

Montgomery County's NRA Compliance board will meet Friday night to plan vigorous enforcement of the Blue Eagle's mandates, James H. Pugh, counsel to the board, announced yesterday. The meeting will be in his Rockville office.

A Federal representative will speak, and a chairman, vice chairman and secretary will be selected.

Members of the board are J. S. Fulks, of Bethesda, representative of the employes in industry; H. C. Ransom, of Rockville, representative of the employes in retail and wholesale trade; Douglas Diamond, of Gaithersburg, representative of the employers in industry; H. Albert Buehler, of Silver Spring, representative of the employers in retail or wholesale trade; H. C. Heffner, of Takoma Park, representative of the consumers, and James H. Pugh, counselor for the board. State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Rockville, is general chairman of the NRA county committee.

Burglars Get $700 Cigarettes

Enter Fredericksburg Store by Window Under Street Light.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Burglars escaped with 695 cartons of cigarets valued at $700 from the Janney-Marshall Co., wholesale house here, last night.

Police believed the robbery was committed by a band of thieves that has been robbing wholesale houses throughout the State.

The robbers entered by "jimmying" a window which faced a street light. Making their way through offices to store rooms in the rear, they helped themselves to the stock, and apparently unlocked the main entrance door to load their automobile.

Son of Rev. Pasma Missing With Chum

Minister - Author Believes Boys Going South.

Perhaps the same spirit that years ago moved his father to seek adventure on the sea was working yesterday when Timothy Pasma, 15, left his home at Rockville.

His father, the Rev. Henry K. Pasma, pastor of Rockville Presbyterian Church and author of "Close-Hauled," which relates experiences at sea, yesterday asked Montgomery County police to search for Timothy and a 15-year-old companion, Howard Pepper, also of Rockville.

The boys left for school yesterday but failed to reach there and are believed on their way South. Timothy is 5 feet 7 inches tall, slender, and weighs 125 pounds. He has dark brown hair and blue eyes and was dressed in a blue serge suit and gray overcoat. Howard is 5 feet 8 inches tall, weighs 140 pounds, has black hair, brown eyes, and was wearing khaki riding pants, sheepskin vest, and a yellow jacket.

Montgomery Dairymen Name Parker Manager

Owen Parker, of Silver Spring, has been appointed manager of the new organization formed by farmers in Montgomery County to market dairy products in the county. The new concern is known as the Montgomery County Farms Dairy and has established offices in Rockville, Md.

The organization expects to incorporate soon.

School Closes Tomorrow.

Thanksgiving holidays will begin after classes tomorrow at St. Agnes Episcopal School, Alexandria, and will continue until Monday, December 4, when classes will be resumed.

Union Forces That Had Crossed Span Were Forced Back in Battle Which Delayed Final Surrender of Gen. Lee.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Burnside Bridge, made famous at the Battle of Antietam during the Civil War, soon may be taken over by the United States Government and maintained as a point of interest of the battlefield.

Surveyors near the bridge, recently restored by the State, inspired the rumors.

The bridge bears the name of the man who crossed it September 17, 1862, and as history records it came near proving the Waterloo of Gen. Lee and his Confederate army at the Battle of Antietam.

Gen. Burnside, with 14,000 Federal troops, was endeavoring to cross the bridge. Opposed to him was Gen. Toombs with a brigade of Confederates, posted on the bluff overlooking and commanding the bridge.

At 1 p. m. the passage was effected and Toombs' 1,200 Confederates, afterward supported by D. R. Jones with as many more, were being slowly driven back, with Burnside holding command of the ford of the Potomac, Lee's only possible avenue for escape.

And thus, history records, did Toombs by causing this long delay save the Southern army, for at the critical moment, up rode Gen. A. P. Hill with his men from Harpers Ferry, stayed Burnside's advance and drove him back to the Antietam.

Was Turning Point.

If Burnside had crossed the creek at an earlier hour, or if Hill had arrived at a later hour, it is believed likely that Lee would have surrendered at Antietam instead of Appomattox, and McClellan, who commanded the Federal Army at Antietam, would have occupied Grant's place in history.

It was about two weeks afterward that President Abraham Lincoln came to the battlefield to visit Gen. McClellan, who was still encamped in the vicinity of Burnside Bridge. The President was accompanied by John W. Garrett, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad; Mr. Kennedy, superintendent of census; Marshal Lammon, of the District of Columbia, and others. The party went to Frederick by train and rode the 20 miles to Antietam in an Army ambulance wagon.

While the President was at Antietam he passed a house near Burnside Bridge in which was a large number of Confederate wounded. Lincoln had the party stopped and the President told the Confederate soldiers he would be pleased to take them by the hand. He told them the solemn obligations which his forces owed to the country and posterity compelled the prosecution of this war, saying it followed that many were enemies through uncontrollable circumstances.

Offered Sympathy.

He declared he bore them no malice and could take them by the hand with sympathy and good feeling. After a short silence the Confederates silently, but fervently, shook the hand of the President. Lincoln and McClellan bade the wounded be of good cheer.

Only last year, several Civil War muskets, well preserved, were found in the Antietam Creek, where it passes beneath Burnside Bridge, having been washed up by high waters after being buried for three-quarters of a century, where they had been dropped while the battle raged back and forth for possession of this key position.

Legion Group Sponsors Play

"The World's All Right" Will Be Presented in Alexandria.

"The World's All Right" is the title of a play which will be presented tonight and tomorrow night in Maury School auditorium, and Thursday night in the George Mason High School, under the auspices of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion.

The principal roles are played by Robert Whitestone, Miss Florence Miller, J. William May and George L. Reynolds.

There will be 100 school children in the "tiny tots parade." Other numbers include the Sunshine Chorus, a novelty quartet, Hill Billies, and an interpretation of "Ships That Never Come In," by Lawrence Roland, assisted by girls in sailor costumes.

A vested choir, composed of members of several church choirs, will present a number featured by a dramatic reading by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. A one-minute talk will be given by Irving Diener, and there will be comedy dancing by Miss Betty Myers and George L. Reynolds.

"The Stars and Stripes Revue" will be given by Herbert Cady, Howard Arnold, Mrs. Lydia A. Spofford, Frank G. Thomas, W. E. Sellers and Hannon E. Norris. This closes with a drill and Uncle Sam and Miss Columbia will be portrayed by Harvey Callender and Margaret Bailey.

Group to Meet Saturday at Maryland U.

Byron Price, chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, will be the principal speaker at the fifth annual Maryland Scholastic Press Association convention, to be held Saturday at the University of Maryland. Henry Warner, of the Baltimore Sun, also will speak.

Members of the District of Columbia Scholastic Press Association will be invited to attend, according to Walter Talkes, chairman of the convention.

The Maryland association, composed of high school journalists, is sponsored by the university's chapter of the Phi Delta Epsilon, National honorary journalistic fraternity.

Quien Sabe?

Class Yields to Hornets When Words Fail.

Hornets do not "sabe" Spanish. Nor do they understand that good old collopuialism, "vamoose."

This linguistic failing broke up a Spanish class at University of Maryland.

Appearing suddenly from the recesses of an unused light fixture, a thick swarm of the insects invaded the Spanish class of Miss Helen Farrington.

Pure Castilian did not avail. Neither did English. Physical action was not taken. Finally the class was dismissed for the day.

And the hornets droned peacefully, unperturbed by their linguistic failings.

Sewer, School Loans Passed For Alexandria

Government Funds to Put 225 Workers on Jobs Costing $600,000.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

City Manager Wallace Lawrence of Alexandria yesterday received notice of the confirmation by the Public Works Administration of two loans for Alexandria, one of $300,000 for street and sewer improvements, and the other, of like amount, for schools, including a new high school building to cost $250,000.

The city council is expected to approve the loans at an early meeting, and as soon as the money is received work on the projects will be started. It is estimated 225 men will be employed.

Under the provisions of the loans, the city will pay back on the street and sewer loan $215,000, and on the school loan, $239,000. The street and sewer loan runs for 25 years.

The minimum pay for labor is 45 cents an hour for common and $1.10 for skilled.

The new high school building will be located on a tract of 23 acres at Braddock road and Mount Vernon avenue. It will contain 40 classrooms, auditorium, chemical and other laboratories and a gymnasium. The city council will decide whether the work is to be done by contract, and it is understood several propositions will be presented to the council.

The work will require 16 months, and the men, except those employed in a supervisory capacity, will work 30 hours a week.

Augusta Prepares For Used Car Code

New NRA Rule Effective Thursday at Midnight.

Waynesboro, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The used car section of the marketing rules of the motor vehicle NRA code go into effect at midnight Thursday, W. Harold Poster, district vice president of the Virginia Automobile Trade Association, today reminded the motoring public.

Augusta County is included in District No. 8 which includes Albemarle, Fluvanna, Greene, Highland, Louisa and Nelson Counties. The code will be administered locally. All complaints will be registered through an executive committee composed of F. H. Calhoun, Charlottesville, chairman; Paul Freed, Waynesboro; H. B. Cleveland, Staunton; R. S. Cole, Charlottesville; H. M. Woodward, Louisa; L. D. Pitts, Scottsville, and W. B. Lea, Lovingston.

This code provision assures car purchasers a fair value for their old automobiles in trade, Mr. Porter stated.

Driver Gets 3 Months In Hagerstown Jail

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Lloyd Stevens, Williamsport, was given a three-month jail sentence by Justice Richard Duffey here on charges of driving a car while intoxicated.

A check-up disclosed Stevens is under bond for alleged chicken stealing in Franklin County, Pa.; under bond here on an appeal from a conviction for assaulting officers and was indicted by the November grand jury for chicken stealing in this county.

1 Dead, 9 Hurt In Winchester Auto Crashes

Berryville Man Succumbs to Injuries; Cyclist Hits Mail Boxes.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Automobile accidents in and about Winchester during the last 36-hour period resulted in the death of one person and injury to nine others.

Charles T. Hawthorne, 70, of Berryville, died early today in Memorial Hospital here from a fractured skull and internal injuries suffered when he was run over in Clarke County by an automobile which police said was driven by R. M. Larrick, of Round Hill, Loudoun County.

Early today, George Himelright Star, of Tannery; Herbert Bowman, of Lebanon Church, and Otis Brown, of White Post, were badly lacerated when their car sidewiped a truck on the Stephens City-White Post road.

Andrew J. Todd, of Grimes, Va., was improving from injuries suffered when his motorcycle skidded and crashed into rural mail boxes at White Hall.

Mrs. Ollie Belle Lupton, Mrs. C. R. Lupton, her small child, and Mrs. Lupton's brothers-in-law, Thomas and Wilmer Lupton, were slightly hurt when their automobile was in collision with a car driven by Louis Cole Emmons, of Swarthmore, Pa.

Three Killed in Crash.

Front Royal, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Vernon Cornell and Forest Shiflett, of Front Royal, were involved in an accident last night at New Castle, Del., in which three persons were reported killed and another injured.

Shiflett is reported to have been driving Cornell's truck when stopped by the driver of a parked truck and requested to tow the parked truck to a service station. While Shiflett was passing the parked truck a passenger car crashed into the Cornell truck. The killed and injured were passengers in the car.

Both truck drivers and the passenger car driver are reported held under bond, pending investigation.

Neither the names nor residences of the victims are known here.

Blaze Ravages Store Interior

Market Near Wheaton, Md., Gutted But Firemen Save Building.

Although hampered by lack of water, Kensington and Silver Spring volunteer firemen yesterday saved the frame building of the meat market of Henry Freidman on Old Bladensburg road, near Wheaton, Md. The interior was practically destroyed.

Mr. Friedman said damage to the building and stock probably is $3,000, partly covered by insurance.

The fire was discovered shortly after midnight by a passing motorist, a Mr. Clagett, who called Mr. Friedman from his residence in rear of the store. The grocer telephoned to Kensington Volunteer Fire Department, which made a record run of 4 minutes in answer to the call. The firemen summoned the Silver Spring department because winds threatened to spread the flames.

Mr. Friedman was a leader in a movement to obtain water mains along the road, which was voted down by other residents because of the front foot charge. He said yesterday he could pay his whole front foot benefit with less than he lost through the fire.

Alexandria Board To Meet Tonight

NRA Compliance Charges Must Be on Forms.

The NRA Compliance Board of Alexandria will meet tonight and has requested that all complaints be filed on blanks available at the postoffice or from J. K. Aitcheson, 116 King street.

As the minimum wage and maximum hours differ in the various industries, it is suggested that definite knowledge of these conditions should be had before formal complaint is made.

This information can be supplied, it is stated, by J. C., Aitcheson David Hulfish, Frank Leopold, Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, Claude N. Ballenger, R. H. Bogle or John Barton Phillips, members of the board.

Bogus Checks Charged To Versatile Groom

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—By profession a preacher or undertaker as convenience dictates, the versatile James Purks, 35, colored, is reputedly trying to finance his honeymoon with his 14-year-old wife with worthless checks.

Local police have been requested to watch for Purks, wanted in East Radford for passing bogus checks. The couple is reported traveling in an old automobile bearing Delaware license plates.

$66,000 Rum Fines Will Aid County Schools

Virginia Education Board Grants Fairfax Loan for Buildings.

Liquor fines totaling $66,000 will be expended for construction and improvement of schools in Fairfax County. The State Board of Education of Virginia granted the sum yesterday for work on five school buildings.

The grants were made from the State Literary Loan Fund under liberalized provisions provided in Public Works measures. The fund is made up from prohibition fines and loans made under it are repayable in 30 years. The fines have been collected since enactment of the State prohibition laws.

Schools which will benefit by the loans are at Clifton, which received $7,000; Centerville, $14,000 for a four-room addition; Lorton, $24,500 for new building; Groveton, $21,000 for completion of building, and Franconia, $7,000. The funds will be available as soon as the P. W. A. approves the loan of 30 per cent of the total costs of construction.

W. T. Woodson, superintendent of Fairfax County Schools, said he would forward an application for the loan of $51,000 for construction of a new high school at Fairfax.

Nation's Club Women to Help Jobless Girls

Federation's 1,350 Groups to Cooperate With Local Relief.

That 1,350 clubs of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs will do their part in keeping idle business women employable was announced yesterday by Mrs. Geline MacDonald Bowman, national president of the federation, returning from the White House conference at which 40 women leaders considered the problem of America's unemployed women.

Decided emphasis was placed upon the necessity of helping unemployed women in overcrowded fields to develop new techniques. In answr to this need Mrs. Bowman pledged business and professional women throughout the country to cooperate with local relief agencies by giving information regarding their own fields to unemployed women, to the end that they may be prepared for reabsorbtion into the business world.

It is understood that 10 outstanding business women, recently appointed by Mrs. Bowman to act as chairman of national committees, will help to guide the work. They are Miss Josephine Schain, of New York City; Mrs. Carol Willis Hyatt, of Chicago, Ill.; Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, of Dallas, Tex.; Dr. Grace H. Beardsley, of Baltimore, Md.; Miss Mary Stewart, of Washington, D. C.; Miss Marion H. McClench, of Ann Arbor, Mich.; Miss Rose Gilgan, of Boise, Idaho; Mrs. Rosa E. Cunningham, of Des Moines, Iowa; Miss Margaret Stewart, of Ogden, Utah, and Dean M. Beatrice Oslen, of Grand Forks, N. Dak.

Wife of Labor Board Chief His Helpmate

Goes Along With Him on Trips to Settle Strikes in Many States.

Gloversville, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP). Mrs. Elmer F. Andrews, wife of the National Labor Board's chief strike negotiator, plays an important but inconspicuous part in her husband's dashes from State to State in the interest of industrial peace.

Andrews is the New York State labor commissioner. The State Legislature lent his services to Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board.

During long hours of conference which settled the serious Fulton County tannery strike and resulted in a call back to work for today, Mrs. Andrews was with her husband.

When the commissioner got out of a sick bed in New York City at midnight for an all-night drive to remote Fulton County last week, Mrs. Andrews went with him.

"I came along as nurse," she explained. They arrived at 5 a. m. when the thermometer said 10 below zero.

Her part was more than nurse. All day and until late that night she was in the conference in the commissioner's room, making telephone calls, receiving delegations and occasionally adding her own observations to the discussions.

Great Savant Guest Of Arthur Riggs

Professor Gunther Roeder Will Lecture Here.

Prof. Gunther Roeder, the distinguished German Egyptologist and director of the Pelizaous Museum of Hildesheim, is the guest of Mr. Arthur Stanley Riggs, director of the Archaeological Society of Washington, at the Cosmos Club.

Mr. Riggs was able to secure Dr. Roeder only after protracted negotiations, and his lecture tonight before the Archaeological Society will be his only public appearance in Washington. The German Ambassador is giving a luncheon tomorrow in Dr. Roeder's honor, at which President Ellis and Mr. Riggs will also be guests.

German Marriage Subsidy Granted to Physically Fit

Berlin (AP).—Applicants for the matrimonial loan extended by the government to young couples desirous of marrying, must present an "Ehetauglichkeitszeugnis"—a certificate of matrimonial fitness.

Instructions have been issued stating that municipal physicians will issue the certificates and that municipal health institutions will cooperate in making the physical examinations.

Tarkington and Fitzgerald On Roster of Triangle Club

Coming Presentation Here Recalls Honorable History.

The Princeton Triangle Club will present "Fiesta" this year as their annual production, a glamorous mystery of the Old Southwest. It will be given in Washington on New Year's night, January 1. The presentation will carry on a tradition which dates back to 1890.

Each Christmas for almost half a century the Triangle Club has toured many of the larger cities of the United States, and each successive production has placed the fame and popularity of Triangle presentations more firmly among the best of college dramatics.

Since the Triangle Club was not officially organized until 1893, it is ranked as the third oldest organization in the College Musical Comedy League, being preceded only by the Mask and Wig Club of the University of Pennsylvania and the Hasty Pudding Club of Harvard. It was, however, a direct outgrowth of the Princeton Dramatic Association, which included the Glee Club and the Banjo and Mandolin Club, formed in 1882 under the guidance of Mr. P. B. French, of New York, of the class of '82. The "Dramat" was considered as the base of the Triangle, with the other two clubs as its legs. Booth Tarkington, '93, wrote the play, "The Honorable Julius Caesar," which caused the Princeton Dramatic Club to give up the production of such plays as "She Stoops to Conquer" and "The Rivals," for a less pretentious vein of drama.

For five years the activities of the club were confined to the campus. Outstanding among the plays of this period is "Pocahontas," written by Col. James Barnes, of the class of '91. In 1898, a student orchestra having been added to the personnel of the organization, a musical comedy called "Tiger Lily" was presented. The play was taken on the road to Trenton and Morristown and proved such a success that the annual trip became a tradition, and musical productions became the specialty of the club.

In 1893 the name was changed to the Triangle Club, which, as Booth Tarkington, the first president of the reorganized club said, "was a somewhat musical instrument." The new name also referred to the Triangle walk on the campus.

From this time on, with the exception of 1917, when the whole cast went overseas in the service, an annual musical production has been taken on the road. Each year's success has contributed to the reputation of the club. Each year the same enthusiasm and painstaking work go into the production. It has been this conscious effort to live up to a high standard of excellence which accounts for the success of the club.

The entire production is in the hands of undergraduates. The writing of the play, songs and lyrics; the designing and construction of the settings; the business management of the enterprise, are all up to student initiative. The difficulties attending the presentation of a finished musical show in some 15 different cities and traveling 25,000 miles altogether are, obviously, of no small proportions. The club's success speaks well for the efficiency of this undergraduate management.

Many prominent men of this country have been connected with the Triangle Club in their undergraduate days. Besides Booth Tarkington, there are Post Wheeler, who is connected with the St. James Embassy; Roy Durston, '08, publisher-advertiser; Col. James Barnes, '91; F. Scott Fitzgerald, '17; Cyrus McCormick, '12, author of "His Honor, the Sultan," and Russel Wright, '26, who designed the sets for Morris Gest's "The Miracle."

European War Inevitable, We Likely to Be in It, Says Frank Simonds.

Another great European war is inevitable, and America will be drawn into it unless present policies are changed—so writes Frank H. Simonds in his latest study of international affairs, a volume called "America Faces the Next War." Harper will publish it on December 6. Mr. Simonds' words are by no means weightless. He is a thorough student in these matters, and has written a history of the World War, which is one of the soundest on the mile-long shelf of war literature.

Although Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse" has been riding on the crest of a best-selling wave for some months now and shows no sign of losing momentum, his next and third book has already been announced. It is a novel entitled "Toward the Flame," which Farrar & Rinehart will issue on February 6.

Albert Halper, author of "Union Square," has collected his short-stories about Chicago into a volume, "On the Shore" by name, to be published by Viking in the spring.

"Sea Level," Anne Parish's next novel, is promised by Harper in February.

S. S. Van Dine's chief distinctive mark as a writer of detective stories is the thoroughness with which he goes into his encyclopediac subjects, be they Egyptian archeology or the rearing of dogs. The latest book by Van Dine (or, to drop the nom de plume, by Mr. Willard Huntington Wright) is "The Dragon Murder Case," whose leit motif is aquarium fish and general piscatorical lore. The knowledge displayed means no sudden assumption on Mr. Wright's part. For years he has been raising tropical fish, with which he has won a number of prizes at the Museum of Natural History in New York. In that establishment he is chairman of the information committee, In the Aquarium Society of New York he sits on the board of governors. So when he says "Betta splendens" (Siamese fighting fish) he knows what he means.

Doctor's Wife in Vermont.

"BONFIRE," a novel by Dorothy Canfield. (Harcourt Brace, $2.50.)

Perhaps a doctor may be like poor "Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater, who had a wife and could not keep her," but it is doubtful if all doctors' wives act as Lixlee, the girl from Searles Shelf, does in this book.

Of course, early in the pages, the reader agrees with the author and half of the Vermont village that there is no explanation as to why the talented young doctor should choose for his wife a girl whose beauty and charm were her sole recommendations for wifehood. But the hard-working young doctor puts great value on these two assets of his wife, and seems to find in her differences from the women of his own world enough to make him happy.

But Lixlee is jealous of his profession, jealous of his quick and instant response to duty and the way in which he brushes her out of his path when it calls.

No novelist of village life, least of all Dorothy Canfield, would fail to draw careful pictures of the Vermont town and people.

With the facility of pen which Mrs. Canfield always displays, she transports us into the heart of the village and into the lives and homes of its inhabitants. These are familiar enough in mold to awaken our interest, but different enough to arouse in us a constant speculation as to their ways and motives.

Lixlee runs like a flame of fire through the village, leaving her mark on the entire population and bringing out latent elements of good and bad lurking in the heart of everyone, whether they are city or country bred, young and spirited or prim and middle-aged.

"Bonfire" is a sturdy piece of writing. Mrs. Canfield is one of the few novelists of the day to put fiction on a comparable plane with moral reality, to give the telling of story as sound "lights" as plausible "blacks." She has balance, and she communicates it.

Who's Got the Formula?

A mystery, "THE MONKEY WRENCH," by Jason Griffith. (Stratford. $2.)

When an American youth matches wits with the cunning of foreign agents, hair-breadth adventure is the natural result, no matter how unconvincing it may be. This narrative of international complications is set against a background which shifts with amazing rapidity from Malaya to Egypt and then to a French chateau on the Marne, where the most important events take place. The story involves a series of attempts to capture an important formula. It is, essentially, a mystery narrative, but by the time the action reaches its climax mystery is supplanted by romance as the plot moves swiftly to a "happy-ever-after" conclusion.

Woodstock to Have Fashion Festivity

Woodstock, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Womanly charm will have its "day on parade" here December 5, when the business men of the town will sponsor a fashion show in a local theater.

Mrs. B M. Young is chairman of the ladies' committee of the show, while Mr. Luther Bauserman heads the men's division. Mrs. G. G. Dickenson and Mr. Simon Wender are preparing specialty dance numbers for the novelty feature of the show.

Many prizes are to be donated the winners of the show by the merchants.

An added feature will be a chorus to appear in conjunction with the Woodstock Orchestra, under the direction of Prof. Gearing. Members of the chorus will include Dr. L. K. Bailey and Mr. Stewart, basses; Miss Mary Bair Bowman and Mrs. Hook, sopranos; Mrs. M. B Young and Mrs. G. H. Dickenson, altos, and Mr. Gilbert F. Curtis, tenor.

Prunes Rich In Vitamins And Minerals

They Can Be Used for Variety of Salads, Cakes and Desserts.

During the past few years the prune has expressed itself—in no uncertain terms. It has announced that it is exceptionally rich in vitamin A, and that it contains vitamins B and G as well. It has also advised the housewives of the Nation that it contains an abundance of iron and of copper, which latest research has proven essential to the utilization of the iron by the body.

Prunes also contain calcium, phosphorus and other minerals. In plain words, the humble prune is humble no longer. It is inclined to be decidedly "upish."

And with its new power, the prune feels itself a fit companion for many of the other delicacies that go into salads, cakes, pies and delicious dainties of all kinds. Thus, dietitians have used the once humble prune as a foundation for a number of extremely delicious and healthful dessert dishes.

Here are two or three that will prove to you that the prune is a valuable addition to the goodies upon your emergency shelf:

Baked Prune Whip.

2 cups cooked prunes
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
2 teaspoons lemon juice
4 tablespoons powdered sugar
4 egg whites

Pit prunes and beat to a pulp. Add lemon peel and juice and 2 tablespoons sugar and blend well. Beat whites of egg until stiff, add 2 tablespoons powdered sugar and continue beating until stiff. Whip prune mixture by spoonfuls into egg whites. Pile lightly in pudding dish and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 20 minutes.

Baked Prunes.

Cover 1 pound of prunes with cold water and let stand for 4 hours. Drain prunes and reserve the liquor; add ¾ cup sugar to the liquor and boil until the sugar is dissolved, skimming if necessary. Place the drained prunes in a covered casserole, cover with hot liquor and bake in moderate over (325 degrees F.) 40 minutes.

What Today Means

"Sagittarius."

If November 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 9 a. m., from 4 to 5 p. m. and from 10 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 to 11:30 a. m. and from 2 to 3:45 p. m.

You will be inclined to summarily dismiss advice that is given you on this date and you may have cause to regret it; turn an alert ear and keep an open mind. News from home may prove disturbing and will perhaps have to do with the ill health of a dear one. Children should be carefully guarded from possible accidents.

If November 28 is date of your birth, it is possible that you will go through life doing everything wrong; you will always seem to be out of place with never a possibility of righting yourself. First of all, you will probably never find just exactly what you want to do for a living. If for some reason you should find yourself in a congenial line of work, you would let any number of unimportant things make you miserable, and, in turn, you would prove upsetting to the others who were forced to work with you. As a child, you were probably clumsy and always the one to knock over the vase or leave the front gate open so that the animals escaped. People just naturally looked for you to do things wrong and you complied with their expectations. This you have never outgrown.

Born on November 28, you fall among that not too small group of people who "mean well." You are inclined to be lazy and as time goes on you will probably become a constant nagger and a perpetual crank. The best will not come out with you as you age, unless you strive hard to make it do so. You will be inclined to exaggerate and not disinclined to twist the truth to suit your own purposes. If you marry the right person who will love you sufficiently to make you over, you can be quite a successful and happy person. You can, yourself, better your condition of life and outgrow some of your weaknesses and faults of character if you go after yourself in the right way. Don't fuss and fume; do something about it.

Alaska Seal of the '90's Reappears in Smart Coats

Directed by Amos Parrish

Coats of the type described below are on sale in Washington in the better class shops.

New, York, Nov. 27.—"Hm!" sniffs Grandma. "You think that's new? I had a coat of that fur 40 years ago." So she did. But don't let that take the wind out of your sails if you've bought, or are thinking of asking Santa Claus for an Alaska seal coat.

It was the classic fur of the nineties. And like many another old fashion it's staging a comeback along with the return to the elegance and luxury of clothes and living for which the nineties were famous.

Rich and Sleek.

Alaska seal has a richness and sleekness which make it elegant enough for any grand event. Yet at the same time it is quiet enough to go smartly to simple places.

The older woman finds it very, very flattering as she always did. But young women find it so new, so dashing and so sophisticated that it's a great success with them, too.

Durable and Warm.

Ask Grandma how many years she wore her Alaska seal and you'll see that its noted for durability. Ask her, too, if it is warm and you'll hear that it's equally famous for comfort.

And because it drapes so beautifully and is so pliant that it can be handled just like cloth, you'll find it made in slick, sleek styles which do nothing but good things to your figure.

It's being used for formal, fitted, full-length coats and for those more casual, shorter, more boxy styles. (It's the latter kind that's illustrated.)

The older woman usually prefers the full-length fitted variety while younger folk are apt to ask for three-quarter length.

Adjustable Collars.

These coats have the smart sleeve fullness, the moderately wide shoulders and adjustable collars which can be worn in more than one way.

Ascot tie scarfs (as shown in the sketch), round collars, soft revers, bows . . . those are some of the collar effects which are most fashionable.

Black is the favorite color of course—a sleek, shiny black with life and luster. But there's a new brown seal called logwood, a rich shade with an almost golden glint. And if you're looking for the newest, don't overlook this.

John Collier Tells Women Of Indians

National Democratic Club Hears of "New Deal" for Nation's Wards.

The cloud of tragedy, bitterness and despair that has clouded the life of the American Indian in the United States may soon be lifted, according to John Collier, Commissioner of Indian Affairs. Mr. Collier spoke to the Woman's National Democratic Club at luncheon yesterday.

"Our Indian system was evolved out of intellectual dogma," stated Mr. Collier. Not only tribal but family ownership and integrity was broken up and proscribed under the allotment system and the Indian boarding school plan."

He said that the present Indian Commission would consider that it had failed utterly in its task unless it is able to bring about a complete reversal of the old policy.

In describing the conditions under which the Indian population has declined in the United States, he drew graphic comparisons with both Mexico and Canada. Both these neighbors have solved their Indian problems effectually and are preserving the culture and tradition of these aborigines. Their population is increasing and they are a potent and valuable asset.

The commissioner pointed out that neither the Indians of Mexico nor Canada can boast so rich a culture as exists among our Southwest tribes.

"Among the Pueblos of Taos and Zuni, among the Navajos, there exists a cultural background rich and potent beyond words. It is an essential part of our National background and must be preserved and carried on."

Mr. Collier, who has long been known as an ardent champion of the rights of the Indians, was introduced by Mrs. Huston Thompson. Mrs. Collier and Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman, Miss A. S. Baker, Mrs. Luke Wilson, Mrs. H. L. Ickes, Mrs. W. W. Hubbard, Mrs. Finnan, Mrs. L. H. Thompson and Mrs. Charles Wolcott were also at the speaker's table.

Bridge Player Sits In a Rocking Chair

Hal Sims Thinks It Will Help Championship Games.

Cincinnati, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Hal Sims has sent word that he prefers, please, a rocking chair in which to sit while he plays in the national championships of the American Bridge League here the week of December 4.

For, Sims thinks, "there's nothing like a rocking chair to help your bridge," and he fears that neither he nor others of the big boys of the game will have it their own way when national championship play begins.

The championships constitute a major event in the world of bridge. Several hundred players from the widely-known to the almost unknown, are expected to enter the week-long tussle for the five titles that will be hunting new owners here.

Major events of the tournament will include play for the national open contract pair championship and the Cavendish trophy that goes with it; the National Open contract team-of-four quest for the Chicago trophy; the National Mixed-Pair contract championship and the Olga J. Hilliard trophy; the National Women's contract team-of-four championship for the Charles E. Coffin trophy, and the National Open pair auction championship, carrying the R. R. Richards trophy with it.

Repeal to Mean More Home Parties

Cheaper Wines to Allow for Better Banquets.

(Associated Press.)

Society matrons are striving to put a more homelike note into the large, formal functions at which debutantes will be introduced this winter.

And the advent of repeal, said several social leaders and caterers today, is one of the reasons. They predicted that homes would be used more and more for entertaining.

"The difference in the price of wines and champagne for home affairs and those given in public will pay for the food served at the reception," said one authority.

"Parties in the home are much more intimate, and the young deb has a better opportunity really to know those she meets, and vice versa."

Thanksgiving week has been chosen by a few parents as the time to present their daughters to society. From then until spring a continuous round of debutante parties already is being planned.

The Family Marketer

Thanksgiving Dinner's Every Course Is Waiting in the Markets.

Turkeys' gobbles grow fainter and fainter, feathers fly in every direction, markets hum with the buying and selling of good things to eat. Thanksgiving!

The Marketer dashed to market with a photographer, piled up a load of fruits and vegetables and while the photographer was hiding under his little black cloth she got the prices for everything.

Here they are. From them you can choose your Thursday menu to fit your pocketbook. Thanksgiving dinner, course by course:

Celery, white and crisp, is 10 cents a bunch; radishes, red and crisp, are three bunches for 10 cents. Grapefruit, large and luscious, are 25 cents for six; cranberries, 15 cents a quart.

To Serve with the Bird.

Now for the turkey, surrounded by vegetable accessories:

The bird himself sells for 22 cents a pound. White potatoes are ten pounds for 25 cents; sweet, three pounds for 10 cents. Greens are 5 cents a pound; cauliflower, 20 and 25 cents a head; hubbard squash, 5 cents a pound; eggplant, 15 cents each; artichokes, four for 25 cents; green peas, two pounds for a quarter; brussels sprouts, 15 cents a quart; broccoli, 20 cents a bunch; carrots, 15 cents a bunch.

Onions come in many varieties, with Bermudas, three for 10 cents; white, for creaming, 5 cents a pound; Spanish, 5 cents each; ordinary ones, three pounds for 10 cents, and last the slim spring onions at two bunches for 10 cents.

Now for the Stuffing.

The bird must be stuffed. Here are the stuffings: Oysters, 40 and 50 cents a quart; clams, 15 and 20 cents a dozen; chestnuts, two pounds for 25 cents, and mushrooms, 25 cents a pound.

Lettuce is 10 cents a head; cucumbers, two for 25 cents; tomatoes, three pounds for 25 cents; green peppers, four for 5 cents.

No banquet is complete without its fruits. Oranges, both Florida and California ones, range in price from 15 to 40 cents a dozen. Tangerines are 15 cents a dozen. Staymen winesap apples are 6 for 25 cents, and Delicious are 40 cents a dozen. Grapes are three pounds for a quarter; persimmons, four for a quarter; Anjou pears, 40 cents a dozen; fresh pineapple, three for 25 cents.

Cheeses and Nuts.

There is always a place for cheese. Liederkranz, 25 cents a package; Roquefort, 80 cents; Sweitzer, 70 cents; Edam, $1.75; small, black Edam, 45 cents; limberger, 50 cents; Muenster, 40 cents; Gruyrere, 35 cents a box; Gouda, 45 cents.

At the end of the dinner should there not be a cracking of nuts? Of the unshelled nuts, walnuts are 35 cents a pound; paper shell pecans, 25 cents; almonds, 30 cents. Mixed nuts, unshelled, are 30 cents a pound.

There you are! The Marketer knows your Thanksgiving dinner will be good. She is sorry, too, that the printed picture can not bring you the lovely brilliance of the foods that posed so willingly for the photographer.

But to market, to market, and see for yourself!

Pretzels Prepare For Happier Days

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition's imminent repeal has the pretzel makers busy getting ready for a big increase in business.

They owe a great debt to prohibition; it forced them to seek a new market for their product, tripling the sales of pretzels by invading the homes.

But now the twisters see the lost trade of pre-prohibition days coming back, adding its volume to 70,000,000-pound production of 1933. Hence the feverish activity.

In Pennsylvania pretzel baking is one of the oldest industries. Millions of pretzels make their crooked way every week out of plants in Reading, Allentown, Lebanon, York, Lancaster and Philadelphia.

Year after year the production of the pretzel has increased, tying the depression into a knot as far as this one industry is concerned.

How to Keep Well

Dr. W. A. Evans.

Of those made sick by eating foods cooked in metal pots and pans, many were poisoned by certain salts of zinc. The persons referred to ate something that may have been left in the cooking utensil for a few hours or a day. Or perhaps a can was opened but not emptied. That was thought to be safe if the can was set in the icebox and the contents kept cold. After eating food kept in the pan or can the sufferer may recall that what he ate was sour; or that he had added to it vinegar, lemon juice or some other mild acid in the course of working.

The sick person, having read about botulinus (or its abandoned name, ptomaine), or about various forms of spoilage by foods capable of poisoning, is greatly alarmed. He is already vomiting, but he takes something to make him vomit more and he sends for a doctor in a hurry. If his case is one of zinc poisoning he is unnecessarily alarmed. When he has done a thorough job of vomiting he is through with his troubles and needs no further attention except that he ought to stick to a diet of milk, fruit juice and clear soup for a few meals.

Zinc of itself is not poisonous, in the sense we ordinarily use the word. However, there are certain salts of zinc, such as zinc sulphate and zinc chloride, that irritate the stomach, causing nausea and vomiting. Watery solutions of these salts are popular emetics. They cause vomiting with little after effects. When foods stand in cans, pots and pans that contain some zinc the acids present are liable to dissolve the zinc and form just the compounds that act as emetics. While galvanized metalware contains mostly zinc, the metal is so widely distributed that other wares are liable to contain enough of it to make an emetic combination in the prolonged presence of acids.

The food poisoning of this origin is uncomfortable and unpleasant, but it is not dangerous There is one kind of zinc poisoning that is somewhat more serious. It is what is known as zinc chills. Zinc chills are not caused by eating foods that contain this metal. It occurs among persons who work in air fouled by zinc dust. It is almost altogether the result of inhalation, although swallowing the dust with saliva, or incidental to eating with dirty hands, chewing tobacco, dipping snuff, smoking or chewing gum may be a contributing cause. Zinc chills are quite unpleasant and uncomfortable, but otherwise not more dangerous than the results of swallowing zinc emetics as an ingredient of foods.

It was once thought that the only metal chills were those due to zinc and brass (a zinc compound). It is known that inhaling air that is badly polluted with the dust from any one of several metals, including iron, can cause chills. However, zinc and brass chills are much the most important of the group.

I used 500 words trying to explain. Probably too many. I will try it with 20. It is poor handwriting not due to clumsiness or poor teaching, but due to a certain type of mind.

"Spite House" in Georgetown Becomes Tiniest But Most Attractive of City's Homes

An Armchair Makes Trouble Easy to Bear

And a "Chair of Your Dreams" Is Easy to Find At a Reasonable Price.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Troubles may press down upon us, bills may arrive in stacks, the grocery man may refuse us credit, and the moths may gobble up our old fur coat, but as long as we've an easy chair to loll back in, we can let the rest of the world go by.

Not just any easy chair will do. It should be one with an unusually long seat, and a back arranged at a lazy slant. One with an ottoman in front of it to invite complete relaxation. The cushion should be stuffed with kapok so that it will never flatten out. The arms must be low and ample for leaden elbows, and the color must be soft and soothing.

This isn't a chair of dreams. It's an actuality which may be found in a downtown furniture store for half the price you'd suspect it was.

The new light rain capes in a downtown store are an easy solution to the wintry rainy day problem. Don your heavy coat, give a toss of your head to the slicker which might keep you dry but wouldn't keep you warm, throw your cape casually over your shoulders and saunter forth into the cold downpour with the assurance you're well protected. You might imitate the snowbird with a white one, or the raven with a black one, or blossom forth like a spring flower in a pink, green, or blue. The price is 75 cents.

The trouble with most toilet sets is that they bore us. If we choose a pink one, a blue one, or even an ivory one, it isn't long before we take it as a matter of fact and lose interest entirely. But the shiny black comb, brush and mirror in a store on G street has a way with it that provokes interest at the start and carries it on to no finish. It's only $1.95.

Getting up these cold mornings is bad enough as it is, but when the heat fails to come on and the biting wind finds cracks to enter by, it's positively terrible.

But the lazier folks will not freeze while a downtown department store has such reasonably priced electric heaters. There's a whole table of them, large, small and medium, which are the best little chill chasers we know.

There are several which are designed to look something like the ordinary round radio loud speaker, but which throw heat at you with no pretense. And there are the "fan heaters" which go them one better and blow it at you. One look at any of these will convince you there's no need of suffering the penetrating cold which so often makes early morning rising the pleasure we agree it is.

Fabric gloves are marching in the fashion parade this fall with their heads held higher than ever. Past years which have relegated them to second and third place in the glove brigade are gone and forgotten. Only present glory remains.

They capture our fancy in satins, velvets, boucles, and woolens. A shop on G street has some of a heavy wool fabric in the gauntlet style which would spruce up any sport costume. There are grays, browns, and blacks with fuzzy punch work cuffs of contrasting shade. And all for $1.50.

Bedrooms may be marred or made by rugs. No matter how attractive the furniture is, nor what beautiful drapes, the wrong rugs may be an incongruity which ruins the whole effect.

A clamor of "But the right rugs always cost so much!" deafens our ears. Not so! Take those cotton, chenille rugs in hook rug patterns which a downtown department store is featuring this week. Their price of $1.15 is amazingly low. They measure 22 inches by 44, and come in ensembles of all colors.

The sewing baskets in an F street store are sure proof that a prosaic name may belie the object. Just the mention of "sewing baskets" meets a response of shrugs. There seems to be a conspiracy against them to doom them forever to the matter-of-fact.

But there's been a rebellion in their ranks. New representatives of a world of sewing baskets are anything but uninteresting. Woven straw exteriors give scant suggestion of the tufted pastel linings, and little pockets for needles, pins, scissors and thread.

They range in design as widely as in price, some of them small and square, others round, some on stands, others with flat bottoms to fit the arm of a chair, for 50 cents to $5.50.

A Connecticut avenue shop has some glass bubble balls that strongly suggest the old soap bubbles. They're tinted in green, yellow and rose and come in large, small and medium sizes. As center pieces for the table, there are few things which compare.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 105, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

A Stupid Girl Declared Worse ThanGreenhorn

University of Chicago Offers Service to Measure Wits.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—A man had better hire a bright stenographer, even if she's a "greenhorn," than one with a long record of experience and only a small supply of gray matter.

That was the advice that developed out of a series of experiments at the University of Chicago.

Aptitude tests, which would give successful subjects "certificates of proficiency" to show a prospective employer, may be given by the university if demand for such a bureau materializes.

Already the university has given clerical aptitude tests and has announced that the field will be broadened to include tests covering other types of work if the first tests are favorably received.

Prof. L. L. Thurstone, head of the university's department of psychology, is in charge of the tests. While such services are not unknown in large industrial organizations, this is the first time a university in the Chicago area has contemplated such a general public service.

An example of the service which might be furnished was given by Prof. Thurstone. "Suppose a high school boy thinks he would like to be an engineer," he says. "A program of tests could be set up which would give him and his parents a review of his aptitudes—or his shortcomings with a view to what he wished to undertake."

One test which has been given to a number of young women is designed to demonstrate whether they have the kind of minds that would enable them to do secretarial work. Twelve tasks were included in this test, among them the detection of errors in statistical tables, simple mechanical arithmetic tests and an arithmetic test calling for reasoning; a spelling test and a test for checking words that are synonymous, and another test calling for interpretation of a table, the answer to be recorded by filling in blanks.

"A bright girl, as indicated by a proficiency rating," says Prof. Thurstone, "is likely to be a more desirable employe, even if inexperienced, than an experienced girl who is not bright. Some of the questions in the test, for that matter, are designed to indicate mental maturity or immaturity."

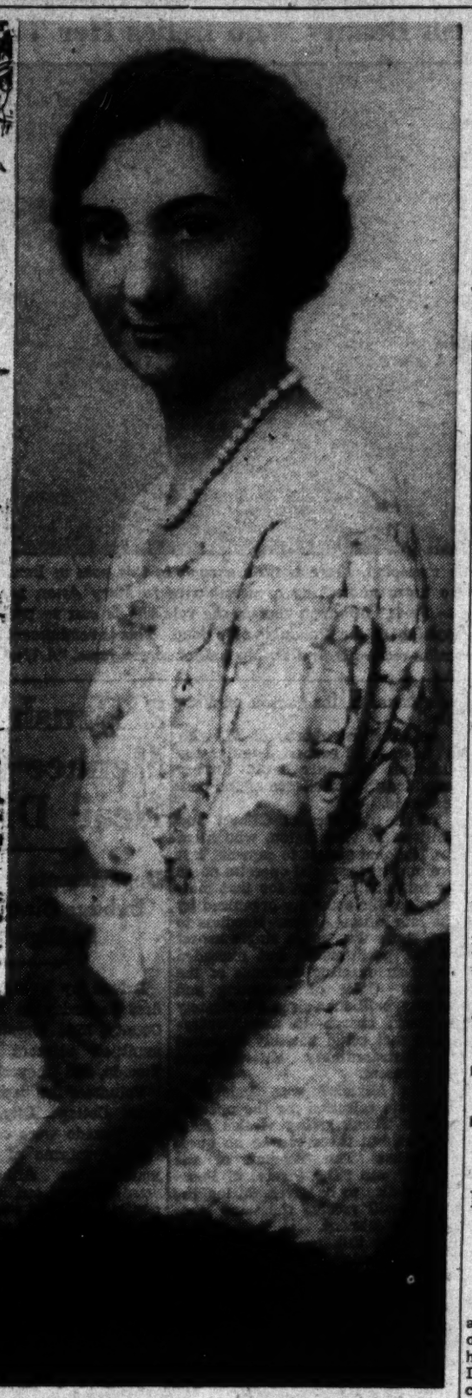
Farming Teachers End Session at Chilhowie

Chilhowie, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The southwest Virginia district meeting of argicultural teachers, which convened here Thursday, was concluded yesterday. E. C. Magill, head of the department of agricultural education, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, was the principal speaker at the opening session.

R. E. Bass, Chilhowie instructor, was the principal speaker yesterday morning. The afternoon was devoted to a discussion of problems.

Princess Troubetskoi Visits Mrs. Ridgely

Princess Alexander Troubetskoi will come to Washington today from New York, where she has been for some time, and will again be the guest of Mrs. William Barrett Ridgely at her home on Q street.



Built a hundred years ago as "spite work," to cut off the light from a neighbor's windows, the little house which is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. DuBois, at 1239 Thirtieth street, Georgetown, has lived to serve a happier end. Remodeled, it is today one of the most charming residences in the city, though only 11 feet wide.

Silks Change Swish for Soft Woolly Texture

Fancy Artificial Yarns Take the Place of "Real" Threads.

Silks have done a right about face. They have exchanged their characteristic rustle and stiffness for a spongy, dull, woolly appearance. They have also exchanged some of their silk threads for fancy synthetic yarns. While grandmother would have scorned anything but pure silk, the modern fashionable young woman prefers these mixture materials because they adapt themselves so beautifully to the sculptured silhouette.

Alpacas, moires and taffetas are used for quaintly picturesque gowns. For the more sophisticated costumes interesting new crepes are most desirable. One particularly stunning crepe from the marocain family has a definite diagonal pattern in the weave to emphasize its pebbly surface. Other good-looking ones have faint lengthwise crinkles or deep pebbles irregularly spaced. The latter style is decidedly new and has a modernistic flair.

Mossy crepes are gayly decorated with large broken plaids, multicolor stripes and stripes formed by threads which contrast in texture as well as in color.

A striking crinkled synthetic silk has silvery threads gleaming in its weave, while another unusual crepe has a rough, tree-bark appearance.

Raised stripes in plain colors distinguish ribbed fabrics that make attractive sports clothes. These materials are washable, and are practical for active sports costumes as well as those of the spectator type.

These novelty crepes are on excellent terms with the yellow tones in the color scale. Orange is especially favored. Pastels are also extremely good.

Chinese Music Aeons Old To Be Played in Washington

Composer Who Will Present Here Describes Them as "Modernistic."

Beneath the gilded roof of a Chinese royal palace a thousand-piece orchestra played for the pleasure of a mighty emperor. Blue clouds of heavily scented smoke rose lazily from the laps of gleaming bronze Buddhas. Dancers in golden skirts and jeweled headdress moved slowly to the stirring rhythm of a strange music.

Twelve hundred years have passed. The emperor lives only in name, the dancers have passed from the minds of men, and the music is almost forgotten.

But years of research, years of delving into secret archives, decfphering old manuscripts and studying the form and structure of old Chinese music have convinced John Hazedel Levis that it is an art, a culture, which should be salvaged from the years.

Mr. Levis, noted musician, who has just arrived in Washington after spending many years in the Orient, has composed on the old structural forms real Chinese music which is adapted to the piano as well as to native instruments. He hopes through public interpretations of Chinese music to interest Americans in these Eastern "sound treasures," hoary ages old.

"Many musicians have gone to China to study the music," he said yesterday. "After a few months they come away satisfied they understand it, but that is impossible in so short a time!"

"The music they hear is chiefly that of the streets, the kind which corresponds to our American jazz. The classics lie forgotten, or are played by real musicians who enjoy their art in seclusion.

"To really probe the depths of Chinese music it is necessary to understand the people, and their approach to life. Their music does not speak for them, as our does, it speaks of them. Where Occidental music is gushing, flowing with emotion, Chinese music is impersonal, remote. It's harmonies are those of tearing heartstrings behind immobile countenances!"

Mr. Lewis pointed out that a great many people judge Chinese music to be cold because they fail to understand it.

"There is so little opportunity for hearing the great music of the country," he said, "that it's no wonder Western people call it weird, enigmatic. There isn't in this country a single phonograph record of a Chinese musical composition which exemplifies their true art.

If the Chinese heard only our jazz and judged our music by that they'd have little idea that we of the Western world had also our Bach, Beethoven, Liszt, Tschaikowsky and Chopin.

"If some of the Chinese musical masterpieces were introduced into this country now they would fascinate and intrigue beyond measure. Their very pattern of moving tones and rhythm is so entirely unlike that of Western melody that many people would judge them to be the most modern of modern music."

Under the patronage of Dr. Sao-Ke Alfred Sze, the Chinese Minister to the United States, Mr. Levis will give two concert lectures on Chinese music in the near future at the Wardman Park Theater.

Marionettes to Give Noel Coward Drama

Frederick, Md., Nov. 27.—The Marionettes, dramatic club of Hood College, and the Fredericktown Players, of this city, will join talents to stage Noel Coward's three-act drama, "Hay Fever," in Brodbeck Hall on the campus the night of December 9.

The production will be directed by Miss Mary Catherine Thompson, associate professor of English. Rae Foulkrod, of Philadelphia, will be the student business manager; Margaret Benson, of Buernsey, Pa., will be in charge of properties; Florence Ewald, of Maplewood, N. J., of costumes, and Cornelia Horn, of Staten Island, will be the stage manager.

Palms Clothe Indoor Gardens With Dignity

Pretentious indoor gardens that can proudly call themselves conservatories will sport a few palms. Perhaps these dignified plants may stroll into the living room, or fill up an odd or awkward corner of the hall. In any event they must be beautiful to be effective and to be beautiful they must have care.

Palms need regular watering, but not too much. It is better to keep them a little dry, than too wet. If they grow in a jardiniere, especial care must be exercised not to allow them to be too damp.

Like any other house plant, palms should be washed occasionally, or, if they are too large for this, they should be sprayed with clear water.

If the leaves brown at the tips, the trouble can be traced to one of three sources. First, overwatering, second, worms at the roots and third, lack of plant food. The first difficulty can easily be eliminated. In the case of worms dissolve a piece of quicklime about as big as a teacup in three gallons of water. After the sputtering has ceased and the milky mixture has cleared pour off the clear part and soak the soil with it. It should not be diluted, but the soil should be thoroughly saturated. To provide plant food, manure leaching, bone meal and wood ashes, or ammonia water should be applied every three or four weeks.

Du Bois Mansion Built In Feud of Past Century

Only 11 Feet Wide, With Winding Stairs and Tea Terrace, It Has Been Completely Remodeled by Present Owner.

The littlest house in town! One of the most attractive, too!

It is the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. DuBois at 1239 Thirtieth street in Georgetown.

Imagine a house only 11 feet wide. To be exact, it is just 10 feet 7 inches wide on the inside.

But don't think there isn't plenty of room. A graceful staircase winds upward from the first to the third floor. The living room may not be wide, but it is 30 feet long with two fireplaces. There is a pretty garden and brick-flagged tea terrace at the back.

When Mr. and Mrs. DuBois bought their house six years ago, it was just a little brick oddity that for years had borne the name of the "Spite House." According to tradition, there was a neighborhood feud about a century ago, and the owner of the little house built it for the express purpose of shutting out light and air from his neighbor's windows. It was a strange little place with tiny, unusable rooms. But the DuBois family saw its possibilities.

But don't think there isn't plenty of room. A graceful staircase winds upward from the first to the third floor. The living room may not be wide, but it is 30 feet long with two fireplaces. There is a pretty garden and brick-flagged tea terrace at the back.

When Mr. and Mrs. DuBois bought their house six years ago, it was just a little brick oddity that for years had borne the name of the "Spite House." According to tradition, there was a neighborhood feud about a century ago, and the owner of the little house built it for the express purpose of shutting out light and air from his neighbor's windows. It was a strange little place with tiny, unusable rooms. But the DuBois family saw its possibilities.

Partitions were knocked out right and left. Because the front door took up most of the house front, it was eliminated and the new entrance made on the basement floor, which, incidentally, was converted into an attractive living floor, consisting of entrance hall, dining room and kitchen.

The entire first floor was given over to a uniquely charming living room with two fireplaces (these being left after partitions had been taken out). This opened on a veranda at the back which, in turn, overlooked the garden and tea terrace.

The top floor, after alterations, included two bedrooms, a sleeping porch and bath.

The brick front was transformed by Architect Horace W. Peaslee and appeared in a new costume of dove-gray stucco, with insets of white painted wood contributing both character and decorative interest. An old wrought iron balcony rail, picked up at a wreckage sale, was used to give character and a decorative motif to the entrance. Two quaint old wrought iron gates were also used to form a balustrade on the tea terrace at the back.

Heating a Problem.

The heating problem was something else again. At the time the house was remodeled, automatic heating had not reached its present perfection. Mr. and Mrs. Du Bois did not want to spare the space for furnace installation and coal-storage space, so six special gas heaters were installed in the various fireplaces throughout the house. In some cases the heat from these fireplaces was also carried through to the floor above. This system has proved satisfactory.

Practical, but also picturesque, is the unique brick Dutch oven effect installed in the kitchen to surround the gas stove and hot-water heater. Gleaming copper cooking utensils add to the old-time look. The early American dining room will easily sit a dinner party of six or so, but when the Du Bois family wishes to entertain a larger company, another table is simply set in the adjoining entrance hall and the whole floor thus used for the dinner party.

Naturally, clever use had to be made of closet space. Thus the gas and electric meters are inclosed in neat little white cupboards. On the top floor all of the bedroom and closet doors are of the double type that need but a narrow space to swing on either side. Since the space available for a bathroom was limited, an especially short tub was obtained. After all, one doesn't need to lie down in a bath utb.

On this sleeping floor an additional effect of space was gained by the use of a deep oriel window at the front. Extra light and air are provided by three skylights that open, respectively, over the staircase, bathroom and back bedroom.

Old Furniture.

Some remarkably beautiful heirloom furniture, as well as acquired period pieces, give the home its early American keynote. Most rare is a fine desk of cherry with inlays of apple wood. It once belonged to Gov. Winslow, one of the early Puritan rulers of Massachusetts, and has passed from generation to generation of his descendants.

Another unique piece is Dunkard blanket chest of walnut which stands as high as the usual chest of drawers, but with the whole top forming a very deep chest space, while at the bottom are three little drawers on the same level, with handles of wrought brass. Also prized is the fine Hepplewhite buffet, which is a duplicate of the one at Mount Vernon, as it well may be, since it came from the adjoining estate of Lord Fairfax.

But more unusual than anything else is an ancient flint lock pistol that, well,—it really may have belonged to Thomas Jefferson. It was found under the old Thomas Jefferson house on Jefferson street in Georgetown, when it was torn down to make way for the new Rosslyn steel plant.

Boys' and Girls' Tatters Turn To Glad Rags

Every Wednesday Is Dress-Up Day at Parent-Teacher House.

Wednesdays are "dress-up" days at the Parent-Teacher headquarters on Columbia road. On that day hundreds of school children of the District who have fallen into the clutches of Old Man Depression are completely outfitted, from long winter underwear to shiny new shoes and warm coats and hats.

More than 1,500 children entered the hospitable doors of that organization last year, like the man in the nursery rhyme "all tattered and torn," and emerged as examples of what the well-dressed school child should wear.

Mrs. Dowling, chairman of the District Parent-Teacher Association, yesterday stopped in the midst of sorting out little dresses and mending worn socks to tell something of the work of the organization.

"I want you to understand," she said, "that we do not regard this as a work of charity; it's just one mother helping another. These are difficult times and we must do all we can to keep our children in school. It is really a lot of fun, too. Let me show you some of the things we have made over.

"We try to make the clothes attractive as well as useful. It is just as bad for a child's pride to be hurt by wearing worn, unattractive clothing as for his body to suffer from cold."

Most notable among the recent families to be clothed was that of Antonio. He brought all his 15 children in at one time and smiled somewhat shamefacedly at the chairman.

"Yes, I know 15 is a large family, but we have a baby every year. What can we do?" The chairman was unable to give an adequate answer to that, but she did manage to clothe Antonio's thriving young brood. They left the office quite happily, proud possessors of new red sweaters and other bright raiment.

Antonio's smiling, bright-eyed family is only one of the many who have received aid from these kindly mothers. They are very busy nowadays, but they smile at each other with their tired eyes as they remember the happy children who go out those doors every Wednesday.

Washington Women in Welfare Work

Mrs. Clark Devoted to Cause of Aid for Tubeculosis Patients.

"We are going to live to see the day when tuberculosis is a thing of the past," according to Mrs. Appleton P. Clark, jr., vice president of the Starmont Aid for Consumptives, Inc. Mrs. Clark has been devoting her energies to the battle against the white plague for a number of years and she follows with avid interest the progress that science is making against this dread disease. The Starmont Aid and the Community Chest occupy all the time she can give to welfare work.

"Of the many agencies operating under the Community Chest," she says, "naturally my interest centers in the Starmont Aid for Consumptives, Inc., because that organization came into being in my own home in 1906. At that time the public was just awakening to the knowledge that tuberculosis was in many cases both preventable and curable, but there was no organized effort to combat it or to aid sufferers.

"The Upshur Street Hospital was not opened until 1908, and the first efforts of the Starmont Aid were directed toward helping patients at the sanatorium established by and named 'Starmont,' in honor of Gen. George M. Sternberg. Its workers are all volunteers and it aims to be considered as a philanthropy rather than a charity, and irrespective of race or creed renders assistance in a friendly, sympathetic manner wherever need is discovered, whether it be in supplying nourishment, clothing or financial aid."

Music of Ancient China

Mr. Hohn Hazedel Levis, authority on Chinese music, discussing some of his ancient Chinese musical instruments with Mr. Koliang Wih, Chinese Consul General in New York. He is holding in his hand a sheng which is said to be the forerunner of our grand organ. Mr. Levis numbers among his collection a 500-year-old cheng, or metal bell, which was presented to him by an aged Chinese recluse.

Katharine Cornell Makes Her Shakespearean Debut as Juliet Tomorrow Night

Will Play Own Adaptation of Lyric Tragedy

Basil Rathbone as Romeo; Birthday Statistics; Theater Gossip.

Students of the drama, and those who view the stage as something more than a mere begullement of the moment, are beginning to wonder whether that graceful and wholly ethical gesture on the part of Katherine Cornell and Eva Le Gallienne, whereby their productions of "Romeo and Juliet" were to pursue different routes when they took to the road was, after all, to the best interests of all concerned.

The feeling is beginning to assert itself that if these two productions of Will Shakespeare's tragic love story might have been seen in the same cities and by the same audiences, a tremendous impetus might thus have been given an apparently lagging interest in classic drama on both sides of the footlights.

Basically, the two interpretations of the Shakespeare play would, perforce, be identical. That is to say, there seems to be no way to elude the prerequisite of all subsequent developments that when the play opens the houses of Montague and Capulet must be at daggers' points. The play, too, must end in the Capulet mausoleum. The interval between this alpha and omega of the drama, however, lends itself to a surprisingly wide variety of treatments.

A Year of Innovations.

Washington has just viewed Miss Le Gallienne's and found much in it that marked a wide departure from the conventional and familiar acting versions that have been revealed by the Sothern and Marlowes, the Jane Cowls and the numerous others who have appeared with distinction in this favorite of lyric tragedies.

From all report, Miss Cornell's own adaptation of "Romeo and Juliet" will mark still further deviations from the play's accepted form.

To begin with, Miss Cornell is said to have restored to her script some scenes not included in recent American productions of the play. Furthermore, the drama will be given with only one intermission. Miss Le Gallienne's, although appreciable "speeded up" by a deft rearrangement of scene and utilization of the orchestra pit as an addition to the usable area of the stage, was presented with three intermissions to divide 21 scenes into four acts.

This extraordinary innovation of Miss Cornell's may be partially accounted for by the fact that Woodman Thompson has designed the settings and costumes and in so doing has adapted certain features of the Elizabethan theater to modern usage.

Value in Comparison.

All this is provocative of a keen desire, especially on the part of those who have just witnessed Miss Le Gallienne's performance and production, to be able to step out at once and view Miss Cornell's for purposes of comparison and a deeper grasp of the surprising and ofttimes unsuspected flexibility of the Shakespeare text.

Katharine Cornell, by the way, makes her first appearance on any stage in Shakespeare in the Erlanger Theater, Buffalo, N. Y., tomorrow night, when she acts Juliet to the Romeo of Basil Rathbone. Miss Cornell was last seen locally in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," at the Belasco; Mr. Rathbone, at the National in "The Devil Passes."

Miss Cornell's Company.

Charles Waldron will be seen as Friar Laurence; Alice John, as the nurse; Arson Welles, as Mercutio; Francis Moran, as Tybalt; George Macready, as Paris; John Hoysradt, as Peter; David Glassford, as Capulet; A. P. Kaye, as Montague; Merle Maddern, as Lady Capulet, and Brenda Forbes, as Lady Montague. Others in the large cast are Helen Walpole, Margot Stevenson, Harriett Ingersoll, Charles Brokaw, Reynolds Evans, Irving Morrow, William J. Tannen, Lathrop Mitchell, Boyn Marroder and R. Birrell Rawls.

The fact that Martha Graham arranged the dances for Miss Cornell's production and Georges Santaelle supervised the fencing scenes will only add to the disappointment of those deprived of the privilege of participating in the celebration with her of Miss Cornell's Shakespearean debut—if not at the initial performance, at least during the initial year.

On Saturday night in Buffalo Miss Cornell will revive Rudolf Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Flush returns to the stage on this occasion to appear in his original role. Flush, as of course you know, is Miss Cornell's histrionic spaniel, whose biography has been converted into one of the season's most readable books by Virginia Woolf—so readable, in fact, that it was made one of the selections of the Book of the Month Club.

Anniversary Statistics.

It is fairly well bruited about by now that a triple anniversary celebration is being observed at the Earle Theater—the third anniversary of the combination picture and vaudeville policy now in vogue at the Earle; the twentieth of Musical Conductor C. Frederick Clark as a vaudeville director, and the thirty-fifth of Fred Stone's stage debut.

Among the things that may not have been so thoroughly made public knowledge are the following statistics which Mr. La Falce, of the Warner publicity department, assures this desk are bound up in at least two of the birthdays involved—and as you read them over, would you believe that:

In the three years of vaudeville the Earle has played more than 700 different vaudeville acts?

More than 6,000,000 people have seen these acts?

More than 70,761,000 feet of film has been run through the projection machines to show the screen portion of the program?

Entertainment furnished Washingtonians amounted to more than 13,004 hours?

Tickets taken in at the door and put in choppers would reach, if laid end to end, from Washington to New York?

More than 137,000 acts have had their musical accompaniment played by Freddie Clark in his 20 years as musical conductor?

More than 23,400 introductions have been made by the Earle's mistresses of ceremonies during their three years of vaudeville policy?

More than 5,000 telephone calls have been answered in response to inquiries about shows?

More than 20,000 lost articles have been handled by the lost and found department, which includes 10,000 gloves, 500 hats and 500 umbrellas?

More than 25,000 electric light bulbs, ranging in size from 10 to 1,000 watts, have been replaced in three years?

With "Little Women" doing a landoffice business at RKO-Keith's, with Katherine Hepburn in the role of Jo March, the public is becoming increasingly concerned as to the exact date of Miss Hepburn's appearance here in person in the new stage production of "The Lake." In response to many inquiries, it may be said that the latest information at time of writing is that "The Lake," starring Miss Hepburn, will be the attraction at the National Theater the week of Monday, December 18. This attraction was originally tentatively announced for the week of December 11, but has since been moved back one week.

Where They'll Eat.

Home gatherings predominate in the plans of Paramount's stars and leading supporting players for Thanksgiving. This is one day in the year that screen workers are reasonably assured of a holiday, and, while a few of them will journey to the distant homes of relatives and friends, the greater portion of Hollywood's favorites will celebrate the occasion in their own homes.

Among those who will dine far from Hollywood are:

Cary Grant. While he is at home with his parents and friends, he, nevertheless, is thousands of miles away in Merrie Olde England. Randolph Scott accompanied him on this trip, which probably will last until after Christmas.

Gary Cooper and Miriam Hopkins, who are in New York to attend the premiere of "Design for Living," will spend Thanksgiving in the metropolis.

The Marx Brothers don't know where they'll eat. Harpo will be on the high seas bound for Russia and the other three probably will be somewhere in New York City.

This will be the first "real" Thanksgiving for Paramount's youngest star, Baby LeRoy. He'll wave his first drumstick, one from his own turkey, on his little ranch near Van Nuys, Calif. Last year he was on a milk diet.

The Old Gravy!

It is our hope that you will not be among those—if any—who this year will have to waive their drumsticks!

"THE MIKADO." Milton Aborn's Gilbert and Sullivan Company present the operetta in two acts, with libretto by William S. Gilbert, and music by Sir Arthur Sullivan, as originally staged by the late Milton Aborn. Reviewed Monday night by W. A. W.

THE CAST.

The Mikado of Japan...William Danforth
Nanki-Poo.....Roy Cropper
Ko-Ko.....Frank Moulan
Pooh-Bah.....Herbert Waterous
Pish-Tush.....Alan Waterous
Yum-Yum.....Hizi Koyke
Pitti-Sing.....Vivian Hart
Peep-Bo.....Laura Ferguson
Katisha.....Vera Ross

Washington long since has lost count of the many commendable performances of the immortal "Mikado" it has enjoyed but last night's performance of this Gilbert and Sullivan operetta marked a new high for colorful presentations, excellent singing and real brilliance in every department.

Practice here has made for perfection. For his cast Mr. Aborn chose principals who have sung their roles so often that they are, perhaps, the best equipped of any artists in America for their present tasks. They are, indeed, perfection.

With Frank Moulan, as Ko-Ko; Roy Cropper, as Nanki-Poo; Herbert Waterous, as Poo-Bah; and William Danforth, in the title role, the male principals represent the cream of Savoyard singing comedians.

On the distaff side, the same studied perfection was manifest, with the feminine principals led by the disarmingly demure and allurING Japanese diva, Hizi Koyke, as Yum-Yum; Vivian Hart, as Pitti-Sing, and Laura Ferguson, as Peep-Bo. Of course the traditional firebrand and troublemaker, Katisha, was there, in the person of Vera Ross.

An excellent chorus of 26, with an augmented orchestra under the direction of Louis Kroll, further amplified the excellence of the performance.

To the devotees of Gilbert and Sullivan in Washington, who filled the National almost to capacity last evening, this especial operetta needs no introduction, nor, for that matter, does the company organized by the late Milton Aborn. Needless to say, there was not a single aspect of the performance but exceeded the most exacting demands of the patron. Color of costuming and staging, brilliant voices, a delicately balanced chorus—in short, everything that could possibly be asked for extraordinary entertainment was present.

"The Mikado" was, indeed, a fortunate selection for the opening of the Thanksgiving week's celebration, but there can be no question that "The Yeoman of the Guard" and "The Pirates of Penzance"—also to be given during the week—will receive the same competent treatment.

Ever to this reviewer, at least, "The Mikado" seems to contain more and more, an ever-increasing source of joy and wonderment that a work nearly 50 years old should in this day of grace be so completely up to the minute, still brilliant in dialogue and tuneful in satirical song. Truly, a work for the ages!

A Young English Beauty Who Belies Her Title

Granting that appearances may be deceiving, there is little enough in this pose of Benita Hume, the charming young British actress who bears so striking a resemblance to Mary Astor, to suggest that she might be "The Worst Woman in Paris," although that is the role she is cast to portray opposite Adolphe Menjou in the film play coming to the Columbia on Friday. This is reminiscent of the Charlie Chaplin production in which Menjou made his first serious bid for screen fame, "A Woman of Paris."

2 Brush Fires Menace Homes Near District

Departments Battle to Subdue Blazes, Fanned by High Wind.

Driven by a high wind, brush fires yesterday in Prince Georges County, Md., threatened the communities adjacent to Landover, Tuxedo, and Cheverly.

Volunteer fire departments called from Cottage City, Bladensburg, and Tuxedo were confronted by a roaring inferno of dry sage and marsh grass. Although the fires were believed out last night, these departments and others nearby remained alert.

The fires broke out in two locations, both along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks, but quick action prevented serious damage.

Shortly before noon the Tuxedo-Cheverly department was called to one blaze along Beaver Dam Creek, near the District line. One and one-half acres burned before the blaze was checked. The main body of firemen retired to the fire house but remained on duty. Squads were sent during the day to extinguish small outbreaks of flames.

Another and larger conflagration broke out soon after noon, near Landover, three miles from Tuxedo. The Bladensburg and Cottage City departments fought desperately to prevent the blaze reaching the heavily forested section north of Landover which, at this season, is exceedingly dry. Several houses were surrounded by the flames, but were not damaged.

Older residents recalled last night that some years ago a similar brush fire destroyed vegetation for many miles around.

Mussolini Cuts Jobs for Women

Slash in State Offices Seeking More Children.

Rome, Nov. 27 (AP).—Premier Mussolini all but abolished the employment of women in public offices in an order issued today demanding that the number of feminine workers in many State offices be limited to 5 per cent of the total number of workers on the pay rolls.

This limitation applies to State, provincial and communal offices and to State financial concerns. In "inferior" forms of employment—which referred principally to telephone operators—women may number 20 per cent of the total.

The order added force to the effort Il Duce has been making to induce the fair sex to tend house and raise families.

Mrs. Kilgore's Funeral Will Be Held Today

Funeral services for Mrs. Ada C. Kilgore, 60, who died Sunday at her home in Kensington, will be held at 2 p. m. today from the Kensington Baptist Church. Interment will be in Union Cemetery, Rockville.

Mrs. Kilgore was the widow of Rev. R. Kilgore, former pastor of the Baptist church. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. May Runyen, and a grandchild.

Sandy Spring Churches To Hold Joint Service

A joint Thanksgiving service will be held by churches of the Sandy Spring neighborhood Thursday at 10 a. m. in St. John's Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Robert C. Gilmore will be guest speaker. A musical program is being arranged.

New NRA!

No Recklessness Allowed, Judge Warns Speeders.

A new interpretation of NRA was made yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Traffic Court.

Twenty alleged speeders, for all of whom the corporation council's office had recommended release on personal bond, were lined up before the judge.

"I'm going to take your personal bonds not to repeat the offenses, and put you under the NRA—"No Recklessness Allowed," Judge Schuldt said.

Care and Color Mark Concert Of Miss Tolson

Wide Range of Selections Designed to Please Tastes of All.

A varied and interesting program of piano music was presented by Margaret Tolson at the Arts Club last night. Ranging from Bach to the most ultra of the ultra moderns, it afforded selections to satisfy both the classic and the extreme tastes.

Miss Tolson's playing is thoughtful and delicate. Her musical conceptions are cameo-like, carved with exquisite care. She has a strong sense of the dramatic, but never allows it to overstep the limits of good taste.

Her best playing was done in her first selection, Bach's "Partita in C minor," and in her last group on modern compositions. Her phrasing in the Bach selection was intelligent and smooth, her total lines well balanced. Velocity passages flowed in an effortless manner.

The modern group included "The Tide" and "Prelude in F minor," by Marion Bauer; "Burlesque," by Jacobi, which brought a spontaneous murmur of amusement at the close; "Chor," by G. Popow, which was dark with Russian morbidity, two short compositions of Rosalie Housman, "The Lights" and "The Sowers." Miss Tolson seemed entirely comfortable in the presentation of these pieces, and played them with emotional insight and poetic understanding.

Miss Tolson's virtuosity was displayed more stronly in the last group than in her playing of Schumann's sonata in F-sharp minor, which occupied the second place on her program. The aria was beautifully done, but the last two movements lacked virility. These movements are not closely constructed, and Miss Tolson's somewhat choppy presentation of them might have been due to an inability to grasp the composition as a whole.

Debussy's suite, which followed the sonata, was charming though somewhat pastel in color.

Miss Tolson is a Washingtonian, and is at present a pupil of Ashley Pettis, of New York. K. W. S

Trial Postponed In Jones Murder

Prosecution Gets Delay to Complete Case.

Trial of Buford Findley, Michael Vigliucci and Max Peltz on a first-degree murder indictment was postponed for two weeks yesterday to aid the prosecution's preparation of the case.

The three are charged with shooting Charles Jones, cornered in a blind alley near the Government Printing Office, September 18.

A rum-runners' war is blamed by police, who learned that Jones, known as a liquor dealer, had fallen out with cronies.

Struck by Electric Tram While Crossing Street.

An 84-year-old woman, struck by a Washington Railway & Electric Co. car as she crossed the street in front of her home yesterday, is recovering at Casualty Hospital.

The victim, Mrs. H. Julia A. Botts, of 1214 C street northeast, received a possible skull fracture, a broken nose and cuts, physicians said.

D. C. Boy, Silver Spring Man Reported Missing

Police sought a youth and a man yesterday.

James Lewis, 13, of 917 East Capitol street, was reported missing from the Maryland Training School. He was described as being of stocky build, clad in a khaki uniform and having light brown hair. Hobart W. Swisher, 36, of Silver Spring, also was reported missing by relatives. He was driving an automobile, they said.

Utopian Lands Shown Tonight By Batchelder

Dutch East Indies, South Seas, Subject of Guild-Post Illustrated Talk.

Utopian lands, where no one is either too rich or too poor, will be described at the Masonic Auditorium tonight by Charles C. Batchelder, world traveler and former U. S. Trade Commissioner in Japan, in the fourth of a series of illustrated travel talks sponsored by the Washington Travel Guild in cooperation with The Washington Post.

The Dutch East Indies and South Sea Islands will be depicted in tonight's lecture. Their remarkable economic situation is explained by natural resources that are ample to meet the simple requirements of the natives and by an equitable climate.

Essentially Oriental in character, the islands of the Malay Archipelago show many traces of Western civilization in modern buildings and hotels, equipped with the latest in luxuries that stand in vivid contrast to nearby native villages where live men whose grandfathers were cannibals.

From this part of the world, which includes the Island of Java, come many of the commodities that are in daily use on American tables and it is this fact which prompted The Post to include the islands among the other portions of the globe that will be described and illustrated in future lectures.

Through the Associated Press and other news-gathering facilities The Post is in daily touch with all parts of the world and by its cooperation with the Washington Travel Guild it is seeking to give its readers a more intimate acquaintance with the sources of international news and with the factors which directly or indirectly affect their daily lives.

In addition to vivid word descriptions, each lecture is illustrated with motion pictures and stereopticon views in full color. This feature will be particularly appreciated in respect to the Dutch East Indies, because of the rare and colorful beauties of nature that will be depicted in this manner tonight, beginning at 8:15.

Mr. Batchelder, who recently returned from one of his frequent visits to the South Seas, brought with him new pictures of native life and customs that will prove most interesting and informative.

Reserved seat tickets for the complete series are available at $4.25 for the remaining 17 lectures that will be presented on succeeding Tuesday nights. For individual lectures an admission charge of 25 cents is made to partially defray expenses of this unusual undertaking.

Drama Club to Give 3-Act Comedy Farce

"Here Comes Charlie," under the direction of Lena G. Parks, will be presented by members of the "Wigs & Queues" Dramatic Club at 8 p. m. Friday, in the First Baptist Church, Sixteenth and O streets northwest.

The play, a comedy farce in three acts by Jay Tobias, is one of the years' outstanding successes for amateur production. Members of the cast have been rehearsing several weeks. Several other engagmnts have been booked tentatively.

4 Churches to Unite In Thanksgiving Rites

A community Thanksgiving service will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church. Other churches participating in the services are Grace Episcopal Church, Church of Ascension and Silver Spring Baptist Church.

The Rev. J. Wesley Loftis, pastor of the Baptist Church, will preach the sermon. Music will be furnished by the junior and senior choirs of the Methodist Church.

U. S. Battles Restaurants' Wage Code

Labor Department Joins Federation Against "Sweatshop" Pay.

Charges Operators' Plan Would Make Employes "Pay to Work."

Carrying out Secretary Frances Perkins' promise to the American Federation of Labor convention to fight for bigger returns for workers, Labor Department representatives yesterday invaded an NRA hearing and joined the A. F. of L. in demanding elimination of "sweat-shop" wages in the proposed restaurant code.

As the hearing on the code, affecting more than a half million employes, opened amid a storm of disapproval from the business, Miss Marie Correll, representing the department's women's bureau, unloosed a denunciation against it, contending that in numerous instances wages were so low that employes would be forced to pay employers more than they received.

Clauses authorizing proprietors to deduct $2.50 a week from wages for lodging and 25 cents each for meals, and forcing workers to count tips for 50 per cent of their pay, she said, meant employes in the North might receive as little as 11 cents an hour and in the South 9 cents.

Many Paid More Now.

The Women's Bureau, of the department, she added, had discovered many instances in which women workers already receive higher wages than those proposed, plus all meals.

Division Administrator A. D. Whiteside, presiding, declared the scales are not much out of line with those proposed in the 127 codes so far approved by President Roosevelt.

The Department was equally critical of the code work week of 54 hours, with a 60-hour week permissible, contending the working time could be shortened to 40 hours a week or less and employment spread without jeopardizing the proprietors' incomes.

The code calls for a minimum of 28 cents an hour in cities of more than 500,000 population, 23 cents in towns of less than 10,000, with 5 per cent less for the South, not counting deductions for meals, lodgings and tips.

Competition Blamed.

A. D. Carter, president of the National Restaurant Association, sponsor of the code, said that 10 of 20 groups which submitted alternate codes, had agreed to support his plan.

Although August Burkhart, representing the Amalgamated Food Workers, asked for a 30-hour week and a one-third increase in wages on the ground that the Blue Eagle agreement now in effect calls for four hours a week less for women workers, Carter declared the labor provisions could not well be liberalized.

Competition, the influx of unneeded eating places and inability of customers to pay more, he said, would make it impossible to raise prices.

Holiday Funds Available Dec. 1

Depositors Will Get More Than $4,000,000 Two Weeks Earlier.

Cooperating with the Merchants and Manufacturers Association in the shop-early, mail-early campaign, Washington banks will distribute more than $4,000,000 to Christmas savings account depositors on December 1, Edward D. Shaw, secretary of the association, announced yesterday.

"Bankers have been quick to respond to the demand of the depositors in these clubs for an earlier distribution each year," Mr. Shaw said. "The depositors found that where distribution was delayed until December 15 or later they were losing the best of the Christmas shopping opportunities. Their money was not available until the merchandise stocks in their city had been somewhat depleted, and they were forced to compete with the tremendous crowds which thronged the stores the latter part of the Christmas shopping season."

Bankers state that a chief factor in earlier distribution was the fact that retail merchants have recognized the tendency toward earlier shopping and this season are placing their Christmas holiday stocks on sale much earlier.

Living Wage Declared Key to Prosperity

The only one way to bring prosperity back is to put people to work at a living wage—not just a bare living, but with a surplus for savings, Francis Koonce, of the District NRA Compliance Board, told the United Retail Merchants Association last night. He added:

"By a sincere and unified support of President Roosevelt's policies the future welfare and happiness of our country can be assured. Only by increasing buying power through reemployment can we wade through this muddle of depression."

D.C. Countess Begins Fraud Term Today

Her Convicted Confederate Also Sentenced, Tells of Other Swindles.

A Washington noblewoman will go to the workhouse today to start serving a two to fur year sentence.

Convicted of stealing $5,000 from Miss Louise Maret, coproprietor of the Maret School, whose "arrest" in a parked automobile on a lonely Maryland road she engineered with the aid of a confederate, Countess Grace de Benque was sentenced yesterday to a two to four year term.

Her confederate, George A. Gormley, who sat with Miss Maret in the car while the spurious arrest and subsequent larceny was perpetrated, was sentenced to from four to eight years. His motion for a ne wtrial was overruled by Justice Joseph W. Cox, who imposed sentence on the convicted pair in District Supreme Court.

Before he was sentenced, Gormley handed Justice Cox a written statement, setting forth seven instances in which other Washington women had been blackmailed and robbed, under circumstances somewhat similar to those in the case of Miss Maret. The judge barred the statement from the record.

Gormley's statement, which he handed reporters after being sentenced, protested against the court's ruling denying him a separate trial from the countess. It then gave names and dates of seven alleged swindles in which women were threatened with "arrest" and forced to pay sums ranging from $700 to $10,000.

Countess de Benque, who was confined in the city jail last night awaiting transfer to the workhouse, made no attempt to appeal.

Joseph C. Turco, Gormley's attorney, attempted to show his client was not guilty of theft from Miss Louise Maret, because the $5,000 obtained was the joint property of the victim and her blind sister, Miss Martha Maret. Justice Cox ruled this did not constitute a variance and upheld the conviction.

Affidavit by Ford To Enter Roll Case

U. S. Attorney Will Present Evidence to Jury.

Armed with an affidavit from Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, Assistant United States Attorney Wilbert McInerney, today will go before the District Grand Jury to present evidence in the investigation concerning David M. Roll's use of a so-called spurious Ford contract to mulct residents here of thousands of dollars.

Roll, now in District Jail, is alleged to have shown the contract, which dealt with Muscle Shoals, to several persons, including former United States Senator Robert L. Owen, of Oklahoma, from whom he secured $55,000.

8 Firms Will Repair D. C. Homes Under Loan

Contractors selected by Paul J. Frizzell, manager of the local office of the Home Owners Loan Corporation, to repair homes on which loans will be granted were announced yesterday.

They are Samuel J. Prescott Co., Inc., Skinker & Garrett, Walter B. Avery, T. T. Taylor Co., Inc., Bernard C. Grant, Clarence W. Gosnell, Inc., A. Eberley & Sons, Inc. An eighth firm will be announced later.

Fireman Fights $150 Blaze in Own Home

Fireman Albert N. Grunwell, attached to No. 10 Engine Company, turned his experience to good account yesterday.

When his home at 1411 Newton street northeast broke into flames from a defective chimney, Newton employed a garden hose in fighting the fire until the engines arrived. Damage was estimated at $150.

Polar Bound

Letter Deciphered, Sent on to Byrd.

"South latitude 78 degrees 35 minutes; west longitude 163 degrees 40 minutes."

Puzzled postal clerks at the city postoffice paused in their sorting activities yesterday to ponder the destination of a letter bearing this address.

A conference with postal chiefs. It was agreed the letter was just another addition to the dead letter office. But as a last resort the world atlas was brought forth.

The latitude and longitude markings placed the location in South Polar regions. In fact, at the very spot where Rear Admiral Byrd soon will establish his base camp. The letter, bearing an American Eagle emblem, was forward by way of New Zealand.

B.P.O.E. Holds Ball Tomorrow

Dance at Willard to Raise Funds for Lodge Charity Work.

To provide a day's outing at Glen Echo Park for 1,000 orphans and 300 baskets to unfortunates on Christmas Eve, the fourteenth annual charity ball of the Washington Lodge of Elks, will be held at the Willard Hotel tomorrow night.

Inaugurated by Past Exalted Ruler James Balderson, the annual ball raises funds to care for unfortunates at an annual expenditure of $15,000. William's Elks Club orchestra will furnish music. The following committees are arranging the ball:

Maj. Bean Dies at 100; Oldest Retired Officer

Death has struck the name of the oldest officer of the Army from the retired list. The War Department was notified yesterday of the death at Attleboro, Mass., of Maj. John Wesley Bean, who was 100 years old last March.

Capt. William H. Nelson, of Roan Mountain, Tenn., takes Maj. Bean's place as the oldest officer. Capt. Bean began his Army service at the start of the Civil War. He was severely wounded at Fredericksburg. He was retired for disability in 1890.

Cannon Offers Help in D. C. Appropriation

Willing to Place Matter Before House Group When Possible.

Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the House District Appropriations subcommittee, yesterday pledged his "cooperation" in a new study of the Federal Government's fiscal relations with the District.

Mr. Cannon formally replied to Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, chairman of the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee, who proposed the study. He said he would cooperate in joint discussions "of this or any other question connected with the District appropriations bill."

"Unfortunately, no other member of the subcommittee happens to be in town," Mr. Cannon wrote Senator Thomas. "But I shall be glad to lay the matter before the committee when a quorum can be obtained."

Senator Thomas proposed that either the House and Senate Appropriations subcommittees study Federal-District fiscal relations jointly, or turn the matter over to the House and Senate District Legislative Committees.

In this connection, Chairman William H. King of the Senate District Committee Saturday offered facilities of his committee to make the study jointly with the House.

The House traditionally has favored a low, "lump sum" Federal contribution toward District expenses, while the Senate consistently has fought for a high "percentage" basis of contribution. Senator Thomas wants the issue decided for all time.

Grocery Store Owner Held Up and Robbed

"This is a stick up, hold up your hands."

These words greeted Joseph Toxen, 36, proprietor of a grocery store at 400 Fourth street northeast, last night, as he started to wait on a colored man.

Keeping his gun pointed at Toxen the bandit grabbed several dollars out of the cash register, took a wallet containing valuable papers out of the owner's pocket, and ran.

Armed Bandit Menaces Grocer, Robs Till of $10

An armed bandit last night scooped $10 out of the cash register of a grocery at 421 East Capitol street and fled, after forcing the proprietor, Max Lenkin, 33, of 235 C street northeast, to lie on the floor.

The bandit had bought a soft drink a moment before, and reentered for the robbery.

Interest in Countess' Case Almost Costs Juror $20 Fine

Curiosity as to the outcome of the case of Countess Grace DeBenque and George Gormley, in District Supreme Court yesterday, almost cost Thomas J. Long, real etsate operator, $20.

Long had been serving on a civil case before Justice James M. Proctor. That case was held in abeyance until Attorney Joseph C. Turco, who was engaged in both cases, concluded his arguments in the Gormley-DeBenque matter.

Long, who lives at 1359 Park road northwest, and whose office is in the Woodward Building, sauntered in to Justice Joseph W. Cox's court to hear Turco. He left when the attorney did and walked into the other court with him.

Justice Proctor rebuked him and then fined him $20 for not being on time, despite the fact that he entered the courthouse half an hour before the trial. Long was taken in technical custody by United States marshals until he could pay.

After letting the fine "stick" several hours Justice Proctor relented and ordered it returned to Long, who had made a personal appeal to the justice.

Thief Breaks Window To Procure Dictionary

A better vocabulary perhaps was the aim of a thief who shattered a glass window and entered the store of John E. Bryan at 813 Thirteenth street northwest yesterday.

The thief took a large dictionary. Bryan, who lives at 4717 Georgia avenue northwest, told police the intruder also got 90 cents in change.

Senator King Asks District Sell Building

Declares Some Federal Aid Necessary for New Center.

Suggests Also That Site Be Sold and Cheaper One Purchased.

Trading the present District Building to the Federal Government for enough Public Works funds to erect the first unit of the new District Municipal Center, yetserday was proposed by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Lacking Federal aid for the project here, King suggested as another alternative that the District be permitted to sell the costly Municipal Center site for enough money to purchase a cheaper site and construct an inexpensive Municipal Center.

The suggestions were made in a statement outlining the history of the project, flatly charging the Federal Government "imposed upon the District the purchase of more ground than was necessary and the adoption of a building plan more expensive than that formulated by representatives of the District government and apparently needed by the District."

Holds U. S. Aid Justified.

In view of this situation, King said, "the National Government should make an important contribution to the carrying out of the plan imposed upon the District."

"My understanding is that the District government is willing to transfer to the United States the present District Administrative Building as a quid pro quo, or consideration, for the allotment of public funds from the Public Works Administration, to be used in the construction of the first unit of the Municipal Center," Senator King stated.

"Under such an arrangement as this, there would be no cost to the United States Government, because the value of the property transferred by the District would be worth at least the $5,000,000 allotted."

Tried to Sell Years Ago.

Several years ago the District planned to sell the present District Building for $5,000,000, but the Treasury suggested half the structure is owned by the Federal Government, the structure having been built when the Federal Government was contributing 50 per cent toward District expenses.

Senator King said it was obvious that the center project can not be carried out from local revenues.

"If the Government declines to aid in the construction of a Municipal Center, there is ground for the suggestion that the District be permitted to dispose of the site it has acquired at a cost of $6,500,000 and be allowed to purchase a cheaper site and erect less costly buildings," he added.

Saloon Fought By Civic Group

Proposals on Rum Sale Adopted by Mid-City Associations.

Unanimously of the opinion that the saloon must go, members of the Mid-City Citizens Association meeting last night at 725 Thirteenth street northwest, adopted a number of provisions on the sale of liquor.

A committee will present the resolution to the District Commissioners. Included in the provision were stipulations that the sale of liquor should be divorced from politics; that the license fee should be sufficiently low to exclude possible competition from bootleggers; that liquor dealers should be of good moral character and that dealers should not sell liquor to males under 21 years of age and females under 18.

The association adopted a resolution asking that another police precinct be established in the downtown section of the city to take the place of the old Second Precinct which was converted into the Women's Bureau. The association was guest of the telephone exchange where the meeting was held. Several movie reels were shown.

Adas Israel to Hold Installation Sunday

New officers of the Adas Israel Congregation will be installed at a dinner Sunday evening in the synagogue.

Among prominent speakers will be Simon E. Sobeloff, United States attorney for Maryland; Judge Nathan Cayton, of Municipal Court; Rabbi Edward L. Israel, of Baltimore, and Rabbi Solomon H. Metz, of the Adas Israel Congregation.

Screams Rout Burglar.

Shirley Eskin, returning to her home at 1325 M street northwest yesterday, surprised a thief ransacking the house. She screamed and he jumped through a window shattering the glass. Several pieces of tapestry were missing.

Starlings Adopt Toy Tiger Intended to Disturb Rest

The District Building starlings were laughing up their wings last night. It seems plans were made to frighten them away. The result is pictured above. A toy balloon, the shape of a tiger, and a lot of little balloons were tied on the building. Were the starlings frightened? Yes, they were—not.

Few Balloons Atop Federal Building Also Fail to Rout Pests.

An inflated rubber tiger and a few toy balloons bobbed about the top ledge of the District Building yesterday, placed there as the first move in the official campaign to rid the building and nearby streets of the nuisance of the starlings.

The toys were of the type designed to amuse small children, but failed to keep the sophisticated birds awake.

The city's smoke eaters will join in with water shortly after 6 p. m. tonight. The firemen will spray with water the roosting places of the birds on the District Building in the hope that if the dousing is continued long enough the birds will become discouraged and roost elsewhere.

When that has been accomplished—if it is—streams from fire hose will be directed at the birds roosting in nearby trees.

Clifford Lanham, superintendent of trees and parkings, head of a special starling committee, announced his campaign would be based on making the birds uncomfortable.

Shotgun fire, urged by experts as the one certain means, apparently is fading farther and farther from official thought. Officials are afraid bird lovers might protest, although experts have said a shotgun campaign would be brief and cost the lives of a few birds, the smart ones moving quickly away.

Police Board Set For Bribe Case

7 Liquor Trials Await Ruling on Officers.

Seven Police Court liquor cases were continued yesterday pending the outcome of a case against two chief Government witnesses who are charged with accepting a bribe from an alleged bootlegger.

The witnesses are Policemen H. G. Bauer and Rudolph Schleichert, awaiting trial before a police trial board. They were acquitted last week on the extortion charge in the District Court.

The cases were continued till December 26 by Judge John P. McMahon on recommendation of U. S. Attorney Rover. Police Chief Brown said the trial board hearing of the two men probably would be held this week.

2,300 Auto Tags Issued First Day

D. C. Office Mails 1,100, Buyers Call for 1,200.

A few more than 2,300 District 1934 automobile tags were issued in yesterday's first-day sale at the Ford Building, Pennsylvania avenue and John Marshall place northwest. Twelve hundred were called for and 1,100 were mailed.

Of the 130,000 applications mailed, 13,000 were returned to the Traffic Department because applicants failed to register changes of address. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer said.

Motorists can display the new tags December 15. The time for purchasing new tags expires at midnight, December 31.

Fire Fighters Accuse Chief Of Tyranny

Committees of Congress Asked to Investigate Watson's Conduct.

"Efficiency Fanatic" and "Purely Theorist," Charges Read.

Formal charges of malfeasance against Fire Chief George S. Watson by counsel for the City Fire Fighters Association, yesterday were filed with House and Senate District committees by Representative Virginia E. Jenckes (Democrat), Indiana.

The detailed allegations, drawn by Paul E. Jamieson, as attorney for the Fire Fighters Association, were transmitted by Mrs. Jenckes to the two committees with the request that "a special Congressional investigation be made."

"Political Appointee."

Jamieson charged Watson was "more or less of a political appointee" and a "pure theorist, who never fought a fire in his life."

"The present chief engineer is an 'efficiency fanatic,' who believes that the term 'efficiency' is synonymous with the term 'absolute obedience of the chief engineer and no questioning of his innumerable orders,'" Jamieson stated.

The attorney further charged Watson is "Czaristic, tyrannical, oppressive," that he "dominates" the trial board, and it "is next to impossible for a defendant to get an unbiased, impartial trial by the trial board."

Favoritism Charged.

He charged it is "a known fact that the Chief Engineer's 'pets' are the ones that get ahead," adding:

"This is accomplished by means of the fact that the Chief Engineer rates the efficiency of every contestant for promotion."

In view of the "serious character" of the charges, Mrs. Jenckes requested "that every opportunity be afforded executives of the fire department who are accused, to present all information in order to insure proper defense."

"This subject was first officially brought to my attention several weeks ago by counsel for the City Fire Fighters Association of Washington in connection with a case of a fireman who had been discharged for an infraction of the rules," she wrote District committee chairmen.

Watson Points to Record.

In addition to his charges against Watson Jamieson said Battalion Chief E. R. Pierce "never fought a fire," has no battalion, and his title is a "subterfuge."

Watson said the record of the Fire Department is a complete answer to any charge of inexperience or inefficiency on his part. He is to undergo an examination by the Fire Department's board of surgeons. The chief does not intend to ask to be retired.

He is 67 years old and could be retired by the Commissioners, but Commissioner Hazen has indicated he does not intend to propose such a course.

369 Men Given Jobs as CWA Opens Tick War

Drive Centered in District, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware.

With funds provided by the Civil Works Administration, a campaign to wipe out ticks suspected of causing numerous cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever will begin at once in the District of Columbia, Virginia, Delaware and Maryland.

Harry L. Hopkins, civil works administrator, announced yesterday that 369 men will be put to work in these States and the District on December 1, and will be thus employed at least until February 15.

The drive will be directed against all ticks in this section, but particular attention will be given to eradication of those thought to have caused spotted fever.

It was recalled that three cases appeared in Prince Georges County last summer, one of which proved fatal. In the summer of 1932 several other cases were treated at Georgetown Hospital, and for a time a serious outbreak was feared.

Under direction of the Bureau of Entomology, men will be put to work in the vicinity of Washington cleaning and burning brush and undergrowth near habitations where ticks are abundant. Such work in sections where Rocky Mountain spotted fever occurs is expected to lessen opportunities for transmission, it was stated.

Technically trained men will determine where effective tick-control work will be carried out by brush clean-up, and after locating these areas will contact responsible public officials and arrange through them for the necessary work.

Of the 369 men to be employed, it is planned to put 39 to work in the District, 175 in Maryland, 80 in Virginia and 75 in Delaware.

Northeast Association Holds Session Tonight

Northeast Business Men's Association, Inc., members will gather tonight at 9 o'clock for the monthly meeting in the board room of the Hamilton Hotel. Reports of the banquet and Christmas advertising committees will be heard.

The regular meeting of the association would have fallen on Thanksgiving Day. Officials decided to advance the date two days.

250 "Drifters" Dined, Clothed

Transient Welfare Office Opens Shoe Repair Shop to Give Jobs.

More than 250 "drifters" registered yesterday at the opening of the Board of Transient Welfare at John Marshall place and C street northwest, a branch of the District Board of Public Welfare.

The men were interviewed, fed, clothed, lodged and an effort is being made to give them employment.

Under direction of A. S. Rosican, superintendent of the bureau, work is being rushed on the clothes and shoe repair shop to be operated by the agency.

The shop, an innovation in relief work, will employ about 27 men, and will be operated for the benefit of transients. Their clothing and shoes will be repaired and additional relief tasks will be performed. It is the aim of Mr. Rosichan to enlarge the workshop and institute additional vocational training.

Good morning! When you were tying your necktie this morning, you may have wished you had a larger variety. Attend our Thanksgiving Celebration and select from a special purchase of hand-made, resilient, fine silk warp and mixture neckwear at 59c. Check off your gift list with them.

Army and Princeton Await Rose Bowl Invitation in Favorable Mood

Cadets Glad To Consider Coast Bid

West Point Now Centers Attention on Notre Dame Battle.

Princeton Sees Chance to Accept in Spite of Pact With Yale.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—Whether Stanford invites Army or Princeton to Joust in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, indications today were that the recipient, like Barkis, would be willin'.

The graduate managers of athletics at both schools said today that if an invitation were forthcoming, deep consideration would be given. Both stressed that as yet no word, official or otherwise, had come East from Stanford, picked to represent the West in the annual intersectional classic after beating California.

Willing to Consider.

Of the two Maj. L. D. Worsham, at West Point, was the more emphatic with the declaration that Army would be glad to consider an invitation if the Cadets beat Notre Dame Saturday for their tenth straight victory of the season.

Asa Bushnell, at Princeton, said nothing had been heard from Stanford, but that an invitation would be considered, when and if received.

The fact that Princeton feels the subject can be gone into despite an agreement with Yale against postseason play, indicates a favorable attitude on the part of the Tigers. Announcement of abrogation of the nonscouting agreement, another long standing regulation, was made last Saturday.

Drawn Up in 1926.

The contract with the Elis, who face Princeton Saturday, in the last regularly scheduled game of the season for both, was drawn up in 1926 after a similar clause in the "Big Three" agreement was rendered null and void by the break in relations between Harvard and Princeton. The clause barring postseason games applies to all sports and reads as follows:

"No postseason contest, or contests for the purpose of settling sectional or other championships, or involving long or expensive trips, or extended absence from the university, shall be permitted. This does not refer to international competition."

"Release from this clause has never been asked," Bushnell said. "I have no idea what Yale's attitude would be. We have heard nothing from Stanford. We could scarcely consider the matter until such an invitation was received."

Wouldn't Lose Time.

Princeton's Christmas holidays start December 19 and continue until January 7, permitting the football team a trip to the Coast with no loss of time from class rooms. Since no actual championship is involved, nor any expense to Princeton, it is considered possible the agreement with Yale would not stand in the Tigers' way.

Worsham's attitude may indicate a change in Army's position since 1929, when the Cadets, completing a home-and-home series with Stanford, traveled to the Coast and were defeated, 34 to 13, after losing here in 1928 by 26 to 0. At that time officials said such lengthy trips would not be considered again, as they placed unnecessary hardships on the team.

Make Choice Next Week.

Standford University, Calif., Nov. 27 (AP).—Selection of a team from the Eastern half of the country to meet Stanford in the annual Rose Bowl football classic at Pasadena, New Year's Day, will be made on December 2, Alfred R. Masters, chairman of the Stanford board of athletic control, said tonight.

While Princeton and Army are the teams generally favored in unofficial circles, Masters declared no move would be made until these elevens complete their schedules next Saturday. Princeton meets Yale and Army faces Notre Dame on that date.

A poll of many members of the Stanford team today revealed the players contacted favored Princeton as the opposing eleven. Army was their second choice, Michigan third and Duke fourth.

Southern California's 141-Pound All-American Pictured in the Making

Army Gridmen Open Drills For Irish

Regulars Excused From Work; Notre Dame Hit by Injuries.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—With a sudden change of weather and a frozen playing field, Lieut. Gar Davison, Army coach, opened up the final week's practice for the Notre Dame game at the Yankee Stadium on Saturday.

All members of the squad were out, but the eleven cadets who started the game against Navy and also Stillman, Legg and Vincent, each of whom played half of the time, were excused from any workout. Following Davidson, these 14 men walked around the reservoir and then ran around the plains before going to the showers. The balance of the varsity squad and the "B" squad practiced the offensive and defensive tactics to be used Saturday.

In outlining his plans for the rest of the week, Davidson said "the team played against the hardest charging opponents of the year in Navy and are a tired lot. I'd like to rest them all week but of course this is impossible. Notre Dame is always tough for us and we do not expect anything different this year."

Irish Regulars Are Out.

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 27 (AP). Notre Dame's regulars rested today while Coach Hunk Anderson searched through his reserves for replacements to use against the Army Saturday.

Anderson's check-up of the varsity forces brought him little encouragement and considerable woe. Center Tom Gorman, who got out of bed against the advice of his physician to play against Southern California, was back in bed again. Hugh Devore, injured in almost every game in which he has played, suffered a thump on his head Saturday and may not be able to accompany the squad East.

The biggest blow was the loss of Fullback Tom Elser, who was declared definitely out of action. Elser suffered a severely wrenched knee. Anderson had nothing to say about the Southern California disaster, and very little to offer on the Army battle.

"Army looks too strong for us," the Irish coach said, "but we may fool them if we can get our attack working. It is long overdue now."

Hagerty to Sign Two-Year Coaching Contract at G. U.

JACK HAGERTY, head football coach at Georgetown University, this morning will affix his signature to a new contract to continue in that capacity, and immediately afterward will depart for his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will spend the winter. Terms of the contract were not divulged, although it has been learned from a reliable source that it is for a two-year period.

A new contract for Hagerty, who starred at the Hilltop before joining the New York Giants, constitutes a vote of confidence by the faculty athletic board. Georgetown's record for the year, one victory, one tie and six defeats, is the leanest in the school's history.

Heeding the call of his alma mater, Hagerty came to Georgetown near the close of the 1932 season to assume control of a rusty vehicle that once was the smooth and powerful machine of Lou Little's regime. The team won two games, tied one and lost six.

But the Blue and Gray's football fortunes sank to an even lower ebb this year. Handicapped by the no-scholarship rule in force, Hagerty and his assistants were obliged to mould a team out of green, inexperienced material, and precious little of it at that. A squad that numbered only 30 men and frequently was just above 20, comprised Georgetown's football forces. But Hagerty made good, even if the team didn't.

Georgetown's record belies its real power. It came within an ace of beating Manhattan, William and Mary and West Virginia. Frequently it played superfootball and at other times its work would have caused old Georgetown men to blush in embarrassment. But Hagerty, Dubofsky and Murtaugh showed enough to prove that Georgetown was not winning ball games because it didn't have the material, not because of a deficiency in the coaching department.

Both Dubofsky and Murtaugh will be back again next year. Murtaugh will leave this afternoon for his home in Rutherford, N. J. Dubofsky is studying law in this city.

Red Barry Winner Over Obie Walker

Rules Surprise in Victory at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27 (Spl.). Donald ("Red") Barry, 203-pounder from Washington, D. C., was the only one of some 50 heavyweights who accepted Matchmaker Pete Tyrell's offer to take on Obie Diah Walker, and then Barry pulled a big surprise by going ten rounds and winning against the 234-pound Obie in the semifinal at the arena here tonight.

It was Obie's first fight since he beat George Godfrey five weeks ago, and the Atlanta Negro appeared in the ring hog-fat.

That was a break for Red. For the first two rounds it looked as if the ponderous punches of Obie would bring down his opponent, but when Walker started puffing in the third Red started to get more confidence.

From there on, with the crowd cheering him at every turn, Barry swung wide hard punches to the body and made trick jabs to the jaw that easily brought him home the winner.

In the eighth and ninth Barry received rights on the jaw that shook him and bloodied his mouth and nose. Again in the tenth, Barry took a right that knocked him into the ropes, but he came back to fight his way out in front in each of the three closing rounds.

Two Tiger Stars Missing in Yale Game

Kaufman and Weller Injured; Hard Monday Drill Held.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 27 (AP). Foregoing their usual Monday morning rest from practice the Princeton Varsity football team resumed strenuous drill today in preparation for Saturday's contest with Yale.

Head Coach Crisler announced that two members of the varsity would not be in shape for the coming game with the Elis. Chick Kaufman, left half back, is out as the result of a shoulder injury received at the hands of the Rutgers' eleven last Saturday. John Weller, left guard, has not recovered sufficiently from an attack of grip to play again this season.

Hard Monday Workout.

The Nassau squad was given its hardest Monday afternoon workout of the current season. With the Tiger team at its peak after eight games, the Princeton's coaches confined themselves to developing greater finesse in the running attack. The drill was divided between instructions in power plays directed against the center of the line and pass plays, with a long signal drill thrown in. In addition to Gary Levan, Ippy Rulon-Miller and Kats Kadlic, Les Kaufman, brother of the injured player, joined in throwing passes to the Tiger ends and backs.

Commenting upon the Rutgers' game, in which the Orange and Black was scored on for the first time, Coach Crisler stated that his charges would be under much less pressure against Yale now that they are not worried about keeping their goal line uncrossed.

Dartmouth Paper Would Oust Coach

Hanover, N. H., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—The Daily Dartmouth, student publication at Dartmouth College will ask in a front page editorial tomorrow that Jackson L. Cannell be removed as head coach of football and his staff replaced.

The Dartmouth will say that "so aggravated has the situation become, with the criticism of judgment, psychology, offense and the like, that no man under similar circumstances could continue successfully for another year facing the pressure of disapproval that now exists."

The editorial will appeal to the athletic council to engage coaches who are not necessarily Dartmouth alumni.

In its nine games this season, Dartmouth won successive victories over Norwich, Vermont, Bates and Pennsylvania, tied Harvard, then lost to Yale, Cornell, Princeton and Chicago. The Chicago defeat, 39 to 0, was the worst suffered by Dartmouth since 1921 when Cornell triumphed 59 to 7.

Cannell has been head coach since 1929. His present contract does not expire until the end of the 1934 season.

NRA Code Can't Be Applied To Baseball, Heydler Feels

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—Baseball men have no objection to flying the Blue Eagle, if it can serve any useful purpose, but one of their principal spokesmen, President John A. Heydler of the National League, declared today he could see no practical way of applying an NRA code to the game.

Moreover, baseball has the weight of the Nation's highest judicial opinion to show it is a sport, not trade or commerce, even though it also is a fact that its leaders now have a lively interest in financial and business recovery.

Sport, Not Industry.

"I have unswerving faith in the success of the NRA," said Heydler, "but I am puzzled to know how any industrial code is going to be applied in a practical way to sport. Writing codes for the steel, building and coal industries is one job, but hardly to be compared with the job of shaping a code for baseball.

"I differ with those who call the game a business or an industry. I invite their attention, further, to the decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, as confirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States. This decision specifically established that baseball is a sport—not trade or commerce."

Heydler's reference was to the decision in connection with the Federal League suit against organized baseball in 1921. In the decision, which went to the highest court for confirmation, was this paragraph:

"If a game of baseball before a concourse of people who pay for the privilege of witnessing it is trade or commerce, then the college teams who play football where an admission fee is charged engage in an act of trade or commerce. But the act is not trade or commerce—it is sport. The fact that the appellants produce baseball games as a source of profit, large or small, can not change the character of the games. They are still sport, not trade."

The Supreme Court's confirming opinion, handed down in 1922 by Justice Holmes, further specified that in such an enterprise as baseball, "personal effort, not related to production, is not a subject of commerce."

Action Seen Unlikely.

On this basis, Heydler and his major league associates do not feel there is any liklihood of organized baseball becoming involved with the NRA, whether or not the matter is formally placed before the annual meetings in Chicago this December.

Far from benefiting the players, who would have difficulty putting in as many as 25 hours a week, even with a seven-day string of doubleheaders, and codified regulation might be distinctly to their disadvantage. They likely would object strenuously to any further attempt to standardize salaries on a downward scale.

G. W. Attack Revised for Kansas

New Plays Built Around Aerial Offensive Given Colonial Team.

Jayhawkers Bring Stars in Mehringer, Tackle, and Beach, Back.

GEORGE WASHINGTON yesterday began in earnest to prepare a reception—a warm one—for the visiting Jayhawks of Kansas U. who will be in Washington Saturday afternoon for a game with the downtown eleven. Kansas scouts critically scrutinized the Colonials in previous games, but they'll hardly recognize the team, so different will be the Colonials' attack.

The local eleven is working on a new set of plays that are built around a forward passing attack that has deception as its keynote. The backs start for the sidelines, a la Detroit style, and flip passes on a dead run to teammates on the opposite end of the line. Sometimes they zoom into the flat zone, and other times they are tossed down the field.

Ben Plotnicki and Chris Doose were heaving the pigskin, and very likely the burden of running the team will be evenly divided between the two. Plotnicki, however, seemed to have a slight edge on his rival for the job, in accuracy. Bill Parrish, Red Hoyle and "Tuffy" Leemans were on the receiving end.

Invaders Bring Stars.

George Washington has opposed eight prospective candidates for the all-American honor roll this season, and Kansas is bringing another pair in Pete Mehringer, a 6-foot, 195-pound tackle, and Ormand Beach, 205-pound full back. This pair has been justifying all the praise they received earlier in the year, and should give G. W. an instructive, or destructive demonstration of high-class football.

Beach is Jim Bausch's successor in the Kansas back field. He was understudy for the great Bausch in his sophomore year, and picked up a number of the tricks of the trade from the team's big shot. Beach has nearly everything that Bausch had offensively, and more defensively. Football writers of the Midwest acclaim him one of the best defensive backs they have seen this season.

Mehringer Is Wrestler.

Mehringer was selected on Notre Dame's all-opponent team last year largely because of the havoc he wrought in the Notre Dame back field by his vicious tackling. The other tackle selected by Notre Dame was Ernie Smith, of Southern California, and Smith was named for the All-America. Mehringer also holds an Olympic wrestling championship. This is his senior year, and from all reports, his best on the gridiron.

Kansas' record belies its ability. The Jayhawks won their two first games and then held Notre Dame to a scoreless tie. Then followed defeats by Tulsa, Kansas State, Oklahoma and Nebraska. But last week they regained their winning stride to walk over Iowa State, 20-6.

Kansas will pull an "iron-man" stunt this week to keep its engagement with the Colonials. Thursday it encounters its traditional foe, Missouri. Immediately after the game it will board a train for the Capital.

Chisox Seek Earnshaw From A's

Deal Admittedly Is On, But Clubs' Owners Refuse Details.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP).—Big George Earnshaw, Philadelphia's noted right-handed pitcher, may join his old pals, Al Simmons, Mule Haas and Jimmy Dykes, by wearing the regimentals of the White Sox.

That a deal was on between the White Sox and Athletics for Earnshaw was admitted all around today, but although some reports said it was closed, officials of the clubs said it wouldn't be definite until the major league meeting in Chicago next month, if then.

Owner J. Louis Comiskey of the White Sox said an offer had been made for Earnshaw and that he was waiting to hear from Connie Mack Mum on Details.

The Athletic manager and master mind, who sent Earnshaw home toward the latter part of the season for not being in condition, admitted the offer, but refused to divulge details.

Earnshaw, one of the big mainstays in the Athletic mound staff during the pennant winning seasons and world series battles of 1929, 1930 and 1931, had a bad season this year and repeatedly drew criticism from Mack from the day last spring when he predicted the Yanks would win the American League championship in a walk. He was fined for not keeping in condition and later sent home.

Not Yet Accepted.

Philadelphia, Nov. 27 (AP).—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today said the offer made by the Chicago White Sox for Pitcher George Earnshaw "has not been accepted as yet."

Mack said he would be in Chicago next month to attend the major league meeting and may have some announcement to make at that time.

Colgate Men Drill In Long Underwear

Hamilton, N. Y., Nov. 27 (U.P.). Photographers today were barred from taking pictures of the Colgate football squad practicing in long underwear and basketball shoes on the gymnasium floor.

Colgate master-minds believe that the popular conception of the heroic Red Raiders might suffer if the public were permitted to see pictures of the young men galloping about in long drawers.

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

RUMBLINGS from the Commerce Building, where the NRA machinery is functioning, bring us word that a brand new Blue Eagle is being fashioned for the organized baseball industry and, folks, baseball under the Blue Eagle has is possibilities.

The cardinal aims of the NRA, as this department understands it, are to create more jobs by dividing the hours of labor at no resultant decrease in pay. Apply those principles to baseball and stand by for the fun.

Manager Joe Cronin's first move to comply with the baseball code might be the hiring of an assistant to do Fred Schulte's bunting for him. The Nats might have ended the 1933 pennant race by September 1 had not Schulte been forced to bunt for himself in several crucial games.

Assistant for Harris.

Number 2 move by Cronin under the NRA code, if he were serious in his attempt to provide for more employment, doubtless would be the engagement of an assistant for Dave Harris against right-handed pitching. The assistant could do no worse than Harris against right-handed pitching and Cronin would be doing his part for the NRA.

Three or four men might be employed to substitute for Ossie Bluege at the plate against any kind of pitching. The Nats' batting attack would not suffer, especially against curve balls, and Bluege more than does his part by fielding the territory around third base in the manner that only Bluege can field. He does two men's work out there.

Then, of course, a special ninth-inning pitcher to relieve Earl Whitehill would help not only the unemployment situation but the Nats as well.

—Then—the Time Element.

There might be some difficulty if the NRA enforced a time limit on the ball players. Imagine the reaction if Ossie Bluege were to peg a fast one to Joe Kuhel only to discover that the latter was not on first base but walking toward the showers—because his time was up.

The limitation of working hours by the NRA might prove most embarrassing to at least one member of the Nats' pitching staff—Al Crowder. By the time Crowder had shuffled from the dugout to the pitching mound as only Crowder can shuffle his time would be up and then the Nats would be in a heluva way.

Shock Punch Gives Milling 6-to-5 Edge Over Sarron at Portner's Tonight

Record Ring Turnout Is Expected

Interest in Bout Centers on Possibility Filipino Will Floor Foe.

Lowry Battles Bevens; Three Fours Round Out Program.

THE terrific shock punch that has installed Varias Milling as a 6-5 favorite over Pete Sarron in their 10-round bout tonight, may avail him little, once action starts within the squared circle at Portner's. Sarron offers far from a stationary target—and a shock punch if it doesn't land is as useful as a pair of 5AA bootsies to Primo Carnera.

The great interest attached to this fight, which is expected to lure a record crowd, devolves mainly around the possibility of Milling sending the Syrian sizzler to the canvas for a 10 count. Sarron's large following is pretty evenly divided between those who come to see him gyrate and display his inimitable showmanship and those who come hoping to see him hammered into a state of "non compos mentis." Both factions probably will be out in full force tonight.

One Blow May Suffice.

Milling may be able to land a single clean blow that will end the bout instantly, or he may be able to land enough hard blows to slow his opposition down to a point where he is an easy mark for a knockout. On the other hand, Sarron, while not a devastating puncher, hits often enough to chop most opposition into submission.

That Milling will be trying for a knockout is taken for granted. In a prefight statement last night, he expressed great confidence in his ability to stow away the Birmingham battler.

"I've fought and licked fighters who fought like Sarron out on the Coast," said the brown-skinned featherweight. "I'm going after a knockout—and I'm going to get it."

Sarron Not Alarmed.

Sarron, retaining his usual prebattle calm, tempered by just the right amount of surliness indicative of top condition, refused to become alarmed over the prospect of being knocked out.

"I don't know about this knockout business," he commented between training rounds in the gymnasium. "I've never been hurt in the ring and, frankly, I don't know what I'd do if I was. I might get up off the floor to fight harder, or I might crawl out of the ring."

To substantiate Sarron's claim that he has never been hurt in the ring, it may be recalled that he has never taken even a one count in local showings.

Lowry Meets Bevens.

An eight-round semifinal will find Bob Lowry opposing Pete Bevens in what should develop into a top-notch slugging duel. Bevens is generally believed to hold a slight edge in boxing skill, if any, but Lowry is perhaps the gamer of the two.

Three fours will round out the bill. They will offer Mike Groves against Soldier Van Heusen, Joe Green opposed to Bobby Ritchie and Young Charles meeting Doug Swetnam.

Around the Ring Selections—Sarron to decision Milling, Bevens to outbox Lowry, Green over Ritchie, Swetnam over Charles.

Ga. Tech Earns "Hard-Luck" Sobriquet

Has Lost Five Out of Nine; But "Deserved" to Win All of Them.

ATLANTA, Nov. 27 (AP).—Fortune has turned a cold shoulder to Georgia Tech this year, has delivered many a blow that would have led a less courageous team to fold up, but the Engineers are still ready to battle, hopeful of a victory over Duke here Saturday.

The hard luck boys of the South feel they are due a few "breaks." After outplaying Alabama and Georgia in their last two games, though victory rode with their opponents, the Engineers believe they are strong enough to upset Duke and ruin a perfect season for the Southern Conference champions.

Has Lost Five Games.

Five games out of nine stand on the debit side of Tech's gridiron ledger—contests Tech should have won, on the basis of statistics, only to have chance step in and raise the hand of their rivals in token of triumph.

Tech pushed Kentucky all over the field, but lost, 7 to 6. It outplayed Tulane, but a 101-yard return of a kick-off on a muddy gridiron brought the Greenies the decision. Tech led Vanderbilt with only a few minutes to play. A long swinging pass sailed through the air. A Techster batted it down—but down into the arms of a Vandy runner, who scampered across the goal for a 9-to-6 win.

The Engineers spotted Alabama a lucky touchdown in the first minute, then forced the issue and paced Alabama into the last quarter, 9 to 6. Tech essayed a pass, Alabama intercepted and drove to the winning touchdown, 12 to 9.

Missed Field Goal.

Trailing Georgia, 7 to 6, late in the game, Tech marched 95 yards only to have its efforts go for naught as a field goal missed the upright posts by inches.

Tech has a formidable club, perhaps as strong as any Duke has faced this year. It has a great plunger in Full Back Jack Phillips, a set of fine half backs and as good an aerial offensive as any Southern team boasts. Its forewall has more than held its own against such lines as those offered by Alabama, Georgia, Tulane and Florida.

Duke, as its scouts have likely informed Coach Wallace Wade, must be in full stride to take those scrappy Engineers.

Twilight

By Paul Gallico.

New York, Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The flat red disk of an October sun balanced magically on the rim of a brick and concrete stadium somewhere in the vast land of football and then began to slide down the outside like a youngster skinning down a fence, and simultaneously the shadow of twilight arose in the East. The air grew a little colder.

Football men were practicing on the gray turf at the bottom of the stadium and the yip of players, the forced, stereotyped cries of "Let's go now, let's show 'em something," mingled with the thud of feet and the soft grinding of gear and bodies in the scrimmage.

The old coach sat alone on one of the benches high on the side of the empty stadium and looked somberly down into the bottom of the bowl. He was a big, lumpy man, with a massive, shaggy head, a gnarled face and queer lumpy hands on which were stuck short, square fingers. These hung down over his knees. It was cold but he was coatless. He wore an old gray coat sweater that was buttoned down the front and a battered brown slouch hat. His eyes were small and bright. He watched the practice.

The players on the field were an ill-assorted, tatterdemalion crew. Their practice equipment was poor. Few of them looked like clean-limbed athletes. There were some battered faces, many of the players had bandaged hands. They didn't look like good football players. They weren't particularly apt at their work. The line was ragged and unbalanced in size and weight. They were using old plays and they ran them dully and without sparkle.

The old coach from his perch on the slanting canyon of the empty amphitheater had his eyes on them, but they were the eyes of a man who is seeing not what is before him but what has gone into the past, whose eyes have turned silver screens reflecting tumultuous pictures of thoughts tumbling and wheeling in the darkened theater of the skull.

Where were the fine boys of yesteryear? Football, not a game, but a business. Build a fine stadium and then pay for it. Pay for it with strong, capable young bodies, and crowds and victories.

He must have been thinking of those other days of football splendor when 100,000 sat banked around a green gridiron striped with fresh white lime and watched his football dramas unfold, rocked and roared and yelled as his puppets played his script to the hilt, played it for all it was worth—those days when defeat was unthinkable and his teams toured the land and turned his thoughts to touchdowns and headlines, and dollars in wads of hundred thousands, to the days when he was a monarch, a czar to his players, a wizard to the layman and an idol to young and old.

Victory breeds victory, success brings more success. He must have thought of those players of old, fine, tall, boys like sapling pines, clear-eyed and as speedy afoot as young deer, boys whose names rang through the country's press, their names coupled with his; athletes with brains to back the brawn, speed, strength, courage, coordination; men worthy to bring to life the plans of his scheming. Jones, Brown, Black and White. Place them here. Drill them, rehearse them, Teach them. Jones takes the ball, spins, now White has it. Black has cleaned up the end and tackle. Look at Jones clear away the half back. No, Brown suddenly has the leather. How did he get it? Nobody near him. Touchdown! Eighty, ninety, a hundred thousand scream with joy. Could life ever have been so beautiful?

That crew down there. No use giving them that stuff. Not built for it. Not the type. Teach 'em old stuff. Can't win with old stuff. Can't win, can't draw crowds. Can't draw crowds, can't pay for the steel and the mortar and the brick of the stadium. You need football players to play football.

You matched linemen the way you matched pearls. Back field men were delicately geared composites of the fastest trackmen, the best fighters, the keenest thinkers, the best actors. You had four stars on the field and four more on the bench, and four more coming up. What had become of those days? Why was he there alone away from the blaze and the glory, looking down on the futile gyrations of nondescripts who weren't football players and who never would be?

There were new teams and new stadiums and new stars and new young coaches. A lot of them were using his plays and his ideas and the fine young athletes who followed victory and success were crashing through to touchdowns. What in God's name was that end trying to do down there? Was that sloppy, half-hearted maneuver ending in an untidy pile-up and a tangle of arms and legs the play that beat an ancient foe in the last mad minute? Who was on the schedule for next Saturday? Another beating.

Those kids down there meant well but they didn't know how. For some strange reason he saw on his mind screen a great full back of his former years crashing his way over for touchdowns. Touchdowns. Headlines. The twilight from the East spread a purple mantle over the figures on the turf below, and over the old coach.

Manor Tourney Captured by Mrs. Parker

Leads Class A in Turkey Event; Mrs. Beavers Beaten by Stroke.

MRS. GEORGE H. PARKER, of Kenwood, carried off first prize yesterday in an invitation women's turkey golf tournament sponsored by William Morrison Smith, of Columbia, at the Manor course. Mrs. Parker carded a 99—15—84 to win top honors in Class A.

A field of close to 60 women participated. Eighteen prizes, mostly turkeys, were presented the winners by Mr. Smith.

Second low net prize went to Mrs. T. N. Beavers, of Manor, with 100—15—85. Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, with 97—10—87, won third prize.

Mrs. B. C. Hartig, of Manor, with 31 putts, won the putting contest. Mrs. J. Franklin Gross, of Indian Spring, with 33, was second. In the selected holes contest for the first nine, Mrs. H. R. Quinter, of Columbia, was first and Mrs. A. A. McEntee, of Kenwood, second.

Mrs. H. J. Simons, of Manor, scored the most pars, three, and Miss Freda Swan, of the host club, was awarded a prize for having the highest gross score.

Mrs. J. E. Nell, of Manor, with 102—25—77, won first low net prize in Class B. Mrs. Herman Stabler, of Columbia, being second, with 105—18—86, and Mrs. H. J. Kane, of Columbia, third, with 111—23—88.

First in the Class B putting contest was Mrs. R. E. Keely, of Beaver Dam, who had 32. (Mrs. A. S. Gardiner, Columbia, with 34, was second. In the selected holes contests Miss Nellie Mae Nee, of Manor, and Mrs. H. Brundage, of Columbia, were the winners. Mrs. C. J. Matson, of Manor, with three pars, won the prize for having the most pars, and the high scoring prize went to Mrs. K. Brooks, of Columbia.

Bierman Spikes Rumor; To Stay at Minnesota

Minneapolis, Nov. 27 (AP).—Coach Bernie Bierman of the Minnesota football squad said today he would be with the Gophers again next year and that the season just ended was "satisfactory" and "better than expected."

Reports that Bierman was not satisfied with his salary has been current since last spring, when with other faculty members he took a decided cut. The head coach at Minnesota has the rank of professor, with unlimited tenure rather than a contract for a definite term of years. Bierman's salary was reduced from $7,750 annually to $6,500.

Bierman's 1933 team finished the season undefeated, but was tied by four Conference elevens. He came to Minnesota from Tulane.

Unknown Winston Wins.

Holyoke, Mass., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Eddie (Unknown) Winston, New England heavyweight champion, slugged his way to a wide decision over Hans Birkie, German heavyweight, at the Valley Arena tonight in the feature 10-round bout.

Winston won seven rounds, chiefly through aggressiveness, as Birkie fought defensively until the last few rounds.

Special Bowling Match.

Ollie Pacini announces a special match at the Northeast Temple alleys on Thanksgiving Night between the Sunrise Bakery team and the Temple Juniors. Ollie has lined up an all-star junior aggregation, consisting of Stuart Patti, Abe Singer, Billy Sissler, Jack Finnons and Nick Rinaldi. It will be a five-game block, starting at 8 o'clock.

G. U. Football Captaincy to Saverine

165-Pound Connecticut Boy First Back Named Since 1926 Season.

JOE SAVERINE, Georgetown's hard-running half back and star of Saturday's game with West Virginia, the last of the season, yesterday was elected captain of the 1934 eleven at a meeting of the squad. The election was held following the award of letters. Twenty men, including the team manager, received their "G."

Saverine, who is a junior, hails from Noroton Heights, Conn. He is 21 years old and the lightest man on the team, weighing only 165 pounds. Saverine is the first back field man to win the captaincy since Bobby Nork gained that distinction in 1926.

Seven Linemen Get Call.

Claude Grigsby, Jerry Carroll, Jim Mooney, Bill Morris, Maurice Dubofsky, Ray Hudson and Fred Callahan were linemen.

Those who received their letters yesterday were George Becker, Wilmer Bradley, Capt. Fred Callahan, Mike Chappa, Al Cohen, Frank DelVecchio, Bill Downer, Walter Herron, Joe Katalinas, Paul Kennedy, Joe Meglin, Joe Mlynarski, Charles Parcells, Saverine, Mack Stanley, Nick Viskovich, Walter Walacavage, Frank Williamson, Dick Murphy and Raymond P. Murphy, jr., manager.

Yale Coach Plans No Line-Up Shifts

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 27 (U.P.). Coach Reggie Root announced tonight that he plans virtually no changes in the Yale line-up despite last week's defeat by Harvard, in preparation for Saturday's game with the unbeaten and untied Princeton Tigers.

Capt. Bob Lassiter, who suffered a knee injury against Harvard, was not in uniform during today's practice. He is expected to play Saturday. Otherwise the squad was at full strength.

Most of the practice session was devoted to dummy scrimmaging against Princeton plays. There was no contact work. Only one light scrimmage against the scrubs is slated for this week. Root is taking no chances on injuries before the Princeton game.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE Recreation Girls of Baltimore, United States Ladies League champions, lifted a two-year standing world's duckpin record held by the King Pin team of the Ladies District League, scattering the maples for a five-game total of 2,682 pins to eclipse the old mark by 46 pins.

The games were sponsored by the Greater Baltimore Bowling Association to create new records for Baltimore.

Are you lucky? If you think you are, present yourself to roll at the Convention Hall on Thanksgiving Day. Charlie Bell, the manager of the hugh zeppelin hangar-like plant, will give away a $2 cash prize every hour from 11 a. m. to the closing hour.

Whether you roll good, bad or indifferent, your chance of obtaining the two-spot is as good as the next. Your name or number goes into a hat every hour and on the hour there will be a drawing. There's part payment on that turkey or duck—if you are lucky.

Rhode Island Avenue, No. 1, who have lost but one game in the Methodist Protestant Church League, continued its winning ways at the Arcadia drives last night, rolling the high team set of the night with 1,538 and sharing high team game honors with North Carolina Avenue No. 1, each collecting 533 ducks. Hess of the leaders took high individual game with 136 and Tate (Congress Street), annexed individual set with 337.

Herbie Kashub, who wasn't of much assistance in his team's success when the Patent Office team of the Federal League defeated the Hanover Bowling Center five at Hanover Saturday, lighted into the pins with a vengeance last night at the Arcadia alleys, collecting a 160 game. Gene Hargett (Commerce), had the best individual set with 386. The Internal Revenue aggregation captured team honors, having a 611 game and total pinfall of 1,720.

The Mount Pleasant team of the Odd Fellows League was not satisfied with its own high individual game and team records at the Convention Hall drives last night and proceeded to establish new ones, aided by Chalmers Groff, who added three pins to his previous game, bowling over 145 ducks for a set of 379. A 617 team game and 1,723 team set were the scores that put the former records into oblivion.

The Sanico Cakes stole the show in the Sanico League at the Convention Hall alleys. Aided by Reid's new league record game of 166 and a 363 set, they rolled up a high team game of 601 and 1,678 team set for the scores of the night.

Lott Again Denies He Will Turn Pro

Emphatically Declares He Won't Quit Amateurs.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—George Lott, Chicago tennis star, today said he would like to deny once and for all that he plans to turn professional.

Lott's latest denial was made after he read a newspaper story from Philadelphia, quoting William O'Brien, manager of "Big Bill' Tilden, that Lott, Clifford Sutter, Lester Stoefen and Keith Gledhill had expressed a desire to turn professional.

"I wish O'Brien would find some other way of getting publicity for his professional troupe," Lott said, "than to draw in names of amateurs. I have never expressed a desire to turn professional and never will."

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Lester Stoefen, Los Angeles, 1933 men's doubles tennis champion, said today, "I have no intention of turning professional either this or next year."

Two for Stanford On All-Coast Team

San Francisco, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Associated Press' ninth annual all-Pacific Coast football team, presented today as the consensus of leading coaches, sport writers and officials, embraces a light, speedy back field, a 200-pound line and an all 'round collection of stars that makes the 1933 mythical varsity as versatile as any ever named.

Stanford, cochampion of the conference, placed two men, as did Oregon State and the University of Southern California. Oregon, which tied for the title; Washington, California University of San Francisco and St. Mary's College each contributed one pigskin warrior to the first team.

1st Ping Pong Tourney Reaches Semifinals

The first fall ping pong tournament reached the semifinals at the District Ping Pong Courts, 1510 H street northwest, last night with S. E. Keating, pulling a surprise upset at the expense of D. D. Lambert, seeded No. 2. Keating formerly competed in New York and once held Marcus Schusbien, National champion, at match point.

Bob Snow, seeded No. 1; Joel Baker, No. 4, and Nathan Miniz, unseeded, rounded out the brackets for the semifinals, which will be played tonight at 8:30.

Altrock Takes His First Golf Tourney

Defeats Mickey by 5 and 3 in Rock Creek Final; Other Titles Fixed.

NICK ALTROCK, 57-year-old comedian-coach of the Washington baseball club, disregarded the old adage, "Youth must be served," yesterday, and defeated 21-year-old Joe Micker for the Rock Creek turkey golf championship.

Altrock triumphed by 5 and 3, winning his first golf tournament since taking up the game 11 years ago.

Although neither shot spectacularly, Altrock played the steadier golf, taking a lead on the first hole and holding to it throughout the match.

Altrock was 2 up at the fourth, thanks to a well-earned par 3 on the short third. After dropping the fourth, Altrock took the sixth and seventh with pars to lead at the turn, 3 up. The veteran yielded only one hole during the first nine. Uncle Nick parked his tee shot in the woods on the eleventh, and Micker sank a curling 15-footer for his par 3 to slice Altrock's lead to 2 up. Altrock then played the next four holes in only 1 over par figures, climaxing the issue on the 451-yard, fifteenth, where he scored a par 5, his putt for a birdie rimming the cup.

Falls to Get Birdie.

Altrock failed to get a birdie during the day, Micker had difficulty steering clear of the traps and woods.

On his way to the finals, Uncle Nick eliminated Bob Sibley, 6 and 5; Gus Kupka, 3 and 2, and B. Harry Graham, 3 and 2.

Earl Jameson, the left-handed ace, won the second flight finals trimming Berky Berkheimer, 4 and 3.

The best golf of the day was displayed by John (Squirrel) Charles, who massacred George Marlowe, 8 and 7, in the third flight. Charles shot a 35 for the first nine, and has even 4's for the 11 holes the match lasted.

W. J. Quinn took down fourth flight honors by defeating N. J. Murray, 1 up, on the twentieth hole, and Mrs. Florence Godfrey annexed the women's flight with a 6 and 5 victory over Betty Keeler.

Will Receive Turkeys.

Turkeys to winners and runners-up, as well as the medalist, Pat Axtell, will be presented tomorrow by B. Harry Graham, Rock Creek manager.

Altrock succeeds Bobby Bowen as 1933 turkey champion.

First Profit Shown For Kenwood Open

Tourney Netted Gain; May Shift 1934 Date.

A profit of between $300 and $400 was realized on the last National Capital Open Golf Championship by the Kenwood Golf and Country Club, it was learned yesterday.

Announcement of this will be made tonight at the golfers' annual dinner at Kenwood. Efforts also will be made at this time to determine whether next season's National Capital tournament should be held in the spring instead of the fall. Due to the uncertainty of the fall weather, Kenwood officials have indicated that they would prefer staging the tournament in April, perhaps a few days after the North and South classic at Pinehurst, N. C.

Indian Spring Country Club also is interested in a $2,500 tournament in the spring, and it is highly possible that the two proposed tournaments here will be held during the same week.

Four Court Contests In Community League

Southeast Community Center Basket Ball League drew a large crowd at its opening games at Hine Junior High School last night. Four games were played.

Christ Church took the measure of Congress Heights, 18 to 13: Stewarts Pharmacy defeated St. Joseph's Boys' Club, 33 to 17; Mercury won from the Marions, 31 to 16, and the Dixie Five gained a well-earned victory over the Blue Eagles, 20 to 18.

Cruz Rides Happy Go to Victory in Clara Bow Feature at Bowie, Paying $18.60

Zipalong 2d, Far Behind Leader

D. C. Jockey's Mount in Front All the Way; Boy Valet Third.

Forty Days Takes First; Salisbury Returns $9.40 in 2d.

HAPPY GO and Clara Bow—those who know their meter cashed a nice hunch bet at nearby Bowie yesterday. Happy Go proved as fast as the era dominated by the famous "It" girl and he won the feature race named for her. Among those Happy Go made happy were Henry Cruz, the Washington jockey, and John R. Buchanan, owner of the juvenile. Both were smiling broadly as they visited the judges' stand for the usual chat with the racing lords, the presentation of the trophy and the sharp-shooting of the photographers.

Miss Bow was reported to be behind in her knitting and so she was absent. However, Miss Margaret Mahoney, a Baltimore debutante, batted for Clara and she did not strike out. She smiled as Clara might have smiled, she said all the nice things that Clara might have said and made a lovely appearance with a trophy in her arms.

The word "go" is not Happy Go's middle name—but it is his last name. And he had much go throughout the race. From the moment Starter Milton let them go Happy Go was in front "winging," as the turf regulars prefer to call it. Cruz hustled his mount up the back stretch, with Legionary the chief pursuer. The Buchanan colt shok off that rival. At the swing for the stretch Happy Go opened up a long lead.

Those who thought Happy Go would quit had another think coming. Cruz shook him up a bit in the stretch and there was plenty of daylight between the winner and Zipalong at the finish. Boy Valet, neglected in the betting, was third.

Large Crowd Present.

One of the largest week-day crowds of the meeting witnessed the program as a warm sun fought a draw with a cold northwest wind.

Forty Days, the property of Mrs. W. E. Martin and the medium of some heavy play, won the first race, defeating Chastity, of the favored Odom-Stewart entry, in a grueling stretch drive The winning margin was a head, with Lady Reigh, stablemate of Chastity, third and another length away. Chastity went to the front half way up the back stretch, with Forty Days, Fallon up, within striking distance. In the stretch Forty Days cut down the leader. The win mutuel was $7.

Salisbury Is Winner.

Despite the fact that Salisbury swung to the outside fence entering the stretch, the L. E. Ogle representative defeated the Maryland-bred horses that competed in the second race sprint. He was home a length in front of Wickliffe, a long-shot. Major General was third. Salisbury was held off the pace set by Jaffa and moved up with a rush on the swing for the stretch. He paid $9.40.

M. L. Schwartz's Clarify won the third race from a fair field of sprinting talent, nabbing Irene's Bob in a stretch battle that began at the quarter pole. Thistle Play, 22-1 shot, was third in the field of ten. Clarify rewarded with a $7 pay-off.

In Charlie K., the B. B. Stable has the most consistent performer in Maryland this fall. The 5-year-old gelding by Supremus—Birka scored his fourth straight victory of the Bowie meeting when he led home a high field of platers in the fifth race. S. Young had the leg up and the little fellow rode a good race. Charlie K. got away well and Young rated him along to the far turn, where he called on the gelding for speed. The B. B. horse responded with a great burst of speed which carried him to the front and all through the stretch Young rode him hard to win in a drive by half a length. Live One finished second with Momo third a length back.

As the horses were parading to the gate in the final event, Golden Words suddenly bolted and ran away a half mile, jumping two fences. Jockey Saunders was injured and Jockey F. Madeley was substituted. Royal Durbar turned up the winner, with Guardian second and Black Target third.

Nine people out of ten will tell you that the Statue of Liberty holds a book in her left hand—even those who see the famous statue almost every day. Strange as it seems, the object which appears to be a book is not a book at all, it is a tablet on which is inscribed the date of the Declaration of Independence.

To stand uncovered in the presence of a king is, to say the least, a breach of court etiquette—but once it was more serious than that. It was a crime. For such an offense De Niozelles was sentenced to the notorious island prison of Chateau d'If for a period of six years. In the old days, wearing a hat in the presence of a king signified the wearer did not acknowledge the king's superiority.

Dodgers Lead Pros In Forward Passing

New York, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers are setting a brilliant record in forward passing while making their determined bid for the National Football League's Eastern championship.

Brooklyn completed 10 forward throws in 15 attempts Sunday, boosting its total to 65 completed in 135 tries for an average of 48 per cent. Green Bay maintained its 43 per cent average.

Portsmouth took the lead in offensive by gaining 2,476 yards in 10 games, passing Boston in this department. The New York Giants have a clean-cut lead in point-getting with 187 to Green Bay's 184.

4 St. Alban's Elevens Beaten in Baltimore

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Amassing a total of 151 points, football teams of McDonogh School today defeated elevens from St. Alban's High, of Washington, in four games, the largest number ever played between the two institutions.

The only visiting squad able to score was the 118-pounders, but the Cadets won the contest handily, 19 to 6. McDonogh's 105-pounders were victorious, 64 to 0; the 85-pound class won, 32 to 0, and the 95-pounders turned in a 39-to-0 triumph.

Nig McCarver to Play With Mercury Sunday

When Mercury A. C. takes the field against the Marions Sunday Nig McCarver, former George Washington star, will play a half back position for Mercury.

McCarver thus far has appeared only in the role of coach of Mercury, but has decided to play in an effort to bring the team out of its pronounced slump. Mercury's gridders will assemble tonight at 8 o'clock at Seventh and I streets northwest for a practice.

Grid Game Sought.

The Arlington A. C. wishes to book a game with a 150-pound team for Thanksgiving Day on the Arlington Field. All members of the Arlington team are requested to be present in the new clubrooms, located in the old Columbia Pike School. Call Manager Ferguson at Clarendon 1881.

Eastern Eyeing High School Court Title

"Beat Central" Slogan as Candidates Prepare for Season.

BEARING in mind its sensational finish at the tag end of last season, the Eastern High School basket ball team again has serious designs on the throne now occupied by Central.

"The team to beat is Central" is the way those Lincoln Park basketers seem to think about it, as they smooth up their play for the gruelling season but two weeks away.

Central won the title last year by a single game, each team knocking off the other once, but then Eastern dropped a thriller to Tech and the Mount Pleasant courtmen zoomed into the lead and consequently the championship.

However, a third and "rubber" game was played in the Washington and Lee tournament at Lexington. It was in the quarter-finals of the tourney play that Eastern eliminated Central and cruised to the South Atlantic High School championship.

Tech Wins for Central.

But the game, naturally, didn't count in the interhigh series record books, and Central thus was awarded the championship by virtue of an Eastern defeat at the hands of Tech. So that is the background for the basket ball situation in the interhigh series this year.

Two of the lads who represented the Light Blue and White in the regular starting line-up last season have departed from the fold. They are Al Waters, forward, and Jack Bayliss, a guard. However, the main stem of the 1932-33 organization is still on tap, with Tommy Nolan, all-high forward; Tom Davis, center, who at present is out with a chipped ankle bone, and Lavell Dean, sterling guard.

Three reserve men of last season are on deck. They are Harry Bassin, forward, and Joe Edelen and Dicky Fitzgerald, guards. Add to this array, Jack McCarthy, former St. John's Prep star athlete, and you have the 1933-34 Eastern basket ball roundout.

Davis to Battle for Job.

At present Mike Kelly, coach of the Lincoln Park five, is using Nolan, who, incidentally is captain of the team, and Bassin at forwards; McCarthy at center, and Dean, Edelen and Fitzgerald at guards. However, when Davis returns to the practice sessions, there is going to be a lively battle for the regular center assignment.

The schedule this year is as tough as in former years with 31 games carded. Aside from this list of games, the Eastern team will defend its crown won at the Washington-Lee tournament at Lexington last year.

The schedule:

December 12, St. John's; 13, Emerson; 15, Alexandria; 21, Gonzaga (night).

January 4, Washington-Lee High; 5, G. W. Frosh, away; 9, *Tech; 10, G. U. Frosh, away; 11, Georgetown Prep, away; 12, St. John's, away; *Roosevelt; 17, Gonzaga; 19, *Western; 20, Navy Plebes, away; 23, *Central; 24, Washington-Lee High, away; 25, Warrenton; 26, *Tech; 29, Georgetown Prep; 30, Catholic Frosh, away; 31, Episcopal.

February 2, *Roosevelt; 6, *Western; 7, Alexandria; 8, Riordan, N. Y.; 9, *Central; 14, G. W. Frosh; 15, Maryland Frosh, away; 16, Gonzaga, away; 19, Catholic Frosh; 21, Episcopal, away.

*Denotes interhigh series games played at Tech gymnasium.

High School Highlights.

ALEXANDRIA HIGH SCHOOL will play the only charity game in this territory this year unless others are scheduled after Thanksgiving, which is hardly likely. The Twins are slated to meet the Virginia A. C. today for the benefit of the Alexandria Red Cross.

Lynn Woodworth, Roosevelt's athletic director and coach, designed the collapsible bleachers in the new Roosevelt gymnasium. Incidentally, Woody is a graduate of Indiana University.

Bob Michelet, former Central star and an all-high selection in 1927 and now an outstanding performer on the Dartmouth varsity, probably will be the first all-American from the District public high schools. He is a guard.

Central loses Frank Kocsis, George King and Bill Bryant from its back field next February through graduation. Nick Pistolas, sterling guard and captain of the team, goes out in June.

One of the features on Tech's basket ball slate is the game in Baltimore with Southern High School, last year's Oyster City hoop champions.

Emerson Institute will scrimmage the Tech Basket Ball Team this afternoon on the Tech court.

Maryland Foregoes Drills for Florida

Off for Game Tomorrow After Two Days' Rest.

The University of Maryland football team, which took a new lease on success rather late in the season, will hop off for the sunny South tomorrow night for its game with Florida Saturday afternoon in Tampa.

The Triumphant Terps emerged from the Washington-Lee scrap without injury and every member of the squad reported for practice yesterday afternoon in tip-top condition. However, there will be no further practice either today or tomorrow afternoon.

Not enough praise could be heaped upon Earl Widmyer and the entire sophomore forward wall who performed in spectacular manner throughout the fray with the Generals. The coaches credited Bucky Buscher's fine generalship with having much to do with the homecoming victory. They termed his calling of plays "faultless."

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Bowie Race Track, Nov. 28.

If the horses don't stop Chase Me, maybe the weight will end that six-straight winning streak. Mrs. John Bosley's gelding is asked to carry 122 pounds in the Thanksgiving Handicap and will give Mate five pounds instead of the one that marked last Saturday's Chase Me victory. Personally, I believe Chase Me can shoulder weight without faltering. He certainly looked many pounds the best against Mate and company. In case Winooka wants to rush up from the Audley farm, he is assigned 118 pounds. War Glory gets in with 116. The other 15 nominations scale down to a mere 90 pounds for Guardian. Jimmie Hunter, who struck his stride here last week, left early yesterday, for New Orleans. Much to the disappointment of the newly formed We-Play-Hunter's-Mounts Club. BILL.

First race—Cant Remember was forced to take it on the chin from Precursor the last time they met. However, trials on the former point to a reversing of the order today. The race seems to be strictly between this pair. Bungalow for the third money.

Second race—Mint de Mie ran a fine race in winning over this course and I expect she will make it two straight today. Chilliad should go well in this company and may take it all. Hawk Moth for the now.

Third race—Gay Party loves this track and that last effort seems to be the indicator that a winning effort is not far away. This may be the spot. General Court and Last Bid for the other pay-off positions.

Fourth race—Waterway seems to have something on this field. Was sharp at Pimlico. Just Fun turned back Fleet Flag last week and can't be counted out of this competition. Renaissance, at tops, should have some say in the money distribution.

Fifth race—I'm sticking to Time Clock in the feature race. He had his troubles behind Cohort Miss and closed an immense gap. May escape trouble today and shock the talent. Chicstraw is the one to beat. Packs much weight but is a sturdy colt. Cohort Miss is all her races indicate and will be in the thick of the stretch battle.

Sixth race—Parity turned the trick for me the last time. Loves the track and appears to be well suited by the conditions. Flying Dragon for the place. I know that Lone Hand is on edge. However, this field is a bit too tough. Might be worth taking across the board.

Seventh race—Pompoleon didn't run enough to keep warm the other day. Drops down a half a peg here and that fact may help. Fairly Wild was guided wide last out. Tuffy G for the show.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FORTY DAYS, $7.00, $3.40, $2.60; CHASTITY (entry), $2.60, $2.60; LADY REIGH, $2.60.

FORTY DAYS, kept within striking distance of the leaders while on the outside, responded strongly under punishment and, in a game finish, was up in the last fifty yards. CHASTITY, steadied in front, shook off DIAN and SANDY BELLE, but hung tight at the end. LADY REIGH improved her position gradually and closed with good courage on the inside of the first two. SANDY BELLE had a lot taken out of him getting to the leaders and he weakened in the last quarter mile. TROMLO went in the thick of contention and had no excuses. DIAN tired when the real issue came. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 1:32. Off at 1:33. Winner, L. E. Ogle's ch. or ro. g. (3), by Sir Greystee!—Kitty Mount. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:43 3-5, 1:50 4-5.

SERENABIT	100	8	7	5h	9	9	9	9	Rosen	110.30

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SALISBURY, $9.40, $4.80, $2.60; WICKLIFFE, $37.40, $9.80; MAJOR GENERAL, $2.40.

SALISBURY, stoutly restrained for the first six furlongs and on the outside, made an extremely wide turn into the home stretch, but racing as if clearly best, drew out in the final furlong. WICKLIFFE improved his position rapidly after reaching the back stretch and closed willingly. MAJOR GENERAL rated near to JAFFA, weakened after a determined effort entering the front stretch. LIGHT BREEZE closed a big gap and would have been third in a few more strides. JAFFA had plenty of early speed, but stopped when challenged. The others were held safe.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 1:58. Off at 2:02. Winner, M. L. Schwartz's br. c. (3), by Chatterton—Maharanee. Trained by M. Hirsch. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47 2-5, 1:12 3-5.

GLORIFY	112	9	1	1h	1nk	10	10		Fronk	31.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLARIFY, $7.00, $5.00, $4.00; IRENE'S BOB, $6.60, $6.20; THISTLE PLAY, $8.40.

CLARIFY suffered interference midway of the back stretch, was taken up to come to the outside and, closing resolutely while losing ground, was able to take command inside the final furlong. IRENE'S BOB hustled to the leaders, shook off CLORIFY, but could not withstand the winner when in front. THISTLE PLAY improved his position gamely and came with good energy approaching the finish. WEST MAIN, shuffled back after the start, closed full of run when settled in his best stride. DYAK was rushed hard all the way. WEDDING RING was used up racing with the pacemakers. BROAD MEADOWS raced in tight quarters early and was eased during the final furlong. GLORIFY and WESTY JUNIOR stopped.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. Clara Bow Trophy. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:28. Off at 2:32. Winner, J. R. Buchanan's br. c. (2), by Happy Argo—Anastasia. Trained by T. L.

Radio Waves and Ripples

NATIONAL plans to bring Christmas cheer from the old world to loud speakers in America this year by picking up the ringing of bells in the Church of Nativity in Bethlehem and the voice of King George from London.

It will be with the help of the British Colonial Office and the High Commissioner for Palestine, that the ringing of the bells will be spread through N. B. C. and British Broadcasting Corp. networks. For America it will be the first program heard from the Holy Land.

The King will broadcast Christmas morning in a 65-minute program of Christmas festivities in London, children's parties in Glasgow and Birmingham, a village church service and a cathedral choir.

Whitecaps.

WRC—Crusade for children's luncheon, Alfred E. Smith, Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. Dwight Morrow, speakers, 1:45 p. m.; Blackstone Plantation, Julia Sanderson and Frank Crumit, soloists, "My Lady," "If a Wish Could Make It So" and "It's Winter Again," 8 p. m.; Ben Bernie, 9 p. m.; Fire Chief, 9:30 p. m.

WMAL—Roger Babson forecasting 1934 business prospects in address before Boston Advertising Club, 1:30 p. m.; "La Traviata," played by the Portland (Oreg.) Opera Co., 4:30 p. m.; Crime Club, "Ho, the Merry, Merry Corpse," in which the merry corpse brings his executioners to justice, 8 p. m.; Eastman School Symphony Orchestra, 9:30 p. m.; "Airports at Sea," F. R. Armstrong, Seadrome Ocean Corp. President, 11:15 p. m.

WJSV—American School of the Air, imaginary trip through Yucatan, 2:30 p. m.; premiere of Philadelphia Orchestra 15-minute concert series, 9 p. m.; "Kentucky Colonels on Parade," Clark Gable, Morton Downey, Will Rogers, Eddie Cantor, Irvin Cobb, George Jessel, Raymond Paige and Freddie Rich, for the NRA, and Gov. Ruby Laffoon, 9:15 p. m.

WOL—Old-time fights, reenactment of famous ring battles, 10 p. m.

Columbia and WJSV talent headed by Kate Smith and her Fox Theater revue put on a show for the Community Chest from 11 to 12 tonight.

Kate will make her own appeal for chest funds. Campaign Chairman Frank Hogan will make another.

Most of the program will be entertainment. The Fox Theater band has been called on. So have WJSV's emulator of the singing Boswells, the Three Maids. Frank and Jim McCravy will sing hillbillies. Dorothy Allen will croon like the lady she is.

The idea wasn't blown in on yesterday's gale. It was hatched in the fertile brain of the Smith manager. Ted Collins, aided and abetted by WJSV thinkers.

It was a Washington photographer who upset years of thinking by the very best Columbia minds, by discovering a way of photographing microphones so that network initials are printed in reverse. C. B. S. might just as well be N. B. C. now.

Germaine, the "Little French Girl" with the accent and songs designed for war-veteran appeal, goes back to a Capital microphone for WJSV's Woman's Hour today. Returning also to broadcasting is Evalyn Tyner, "Symphonic Jazz" pianist, 5:45 p. m. today, WJSV.

Glen Gray's hookup with a cigarette account which would have put him and his orchestra on the C. B. S. air tonight has been temporarily disconnected. There has been some difficulty on reaching conclusions about the rest of the talent.

WMAL's Arthur Godfrey made his first solo flight yesterday. He had most of us thinking these three-point landings he's been talking about were made that way, but it now appears that he had an instructor along.

It took Columbia's Bob Taplinger just two weeks to discover his "Meet the Artist" broadcast was not the soft spot he thought it would be. He conceived his job as a sort of air intermediary for the spontaneous, irrepressible humor of the Tannens, the Jessels and the Beattys.

Now, after three years of meeting the artists, Taplinger has found only one with anything remotely resembling an idea — Washington's Elder Michaux, who wrote most of the continuity for the Taplinger interview last week.

Most of radio's funny men get their gags from books, or gag writers.

Ed Wynn is said to own one of the largest and most complete joke libraries in the country. Whenever he wants, for instance, an Irish joke, he speaks to an assistant who pulls out a book on them. Jack "Baron Munchausen" Pearl employs Billy Welles—one of the best gag writers in the business—under exclusive contract.

Opening the annual campaign to provide care for friendless children, speeches by Thomas W. Lamont, Alfred E. Smith and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow will be broadcast in speeches to the Crusade for Children luncheon from 1:45 to 2:30 p. m. on N. B. C. today . . . through another network National will air a forecast on 1934 business by Economist Roger Babson at 1:30 p. m. . . . N. B. C. feels that it has something with enough child appeal to keep little men and women out of mother's way during that usually hectic just-before-dinner period . . . it appears on the Tuesday schedules as "Nursery Rhymes" at 5:45 p. m. . . . a meat loaf which tastes like turkey dark meat is the piece de resistance of Columbia Mystery Chef's dollar Thanksgiving dinner for four people . . . and the cat . . . radio and phonograph organist, Jesse Crawford has been booked for an engagement at the Earle next month.

Pieces of Eight — In Action — By Charles B. Driscoll

For hours the vessels maneuvered for position. The pirates observed battle preparations aboard the warship. She was His Majesty's Ship-of-the-line Scarboruogh. As she swung toward the pirate ship, to cross her bows, she broke out the flag of England.

At a cable's length, an officer stepped to the rail of the Scarborough and hailed: "What ship is that? Let the Captain speak! Whither bound, in the King's name, and of what nation?"

"Show 'em our colors, boys!" shouted Teach. Up floated a great black flag, with skull and bones in glaring white. "This is the Queen Anne's Revenge, and they call me Blackbeard! Surrender now, and I'll kill only half of ye!"

A gun in the Revenge's bow sent an iron ball across the Scarborough's main deck, and almost instantly the warship let go a broadside that went a little high, cutting shrouds and ratlines, but doing no other damage aboard the pirate.

Decorative and useful is Olga Vernon, contralto (above), frequently heard on Columbia sustaining programs.

16 on Veterans Appeals Board

Pollard's Aids Selected; R. L. Jarnagin Is Vice Chairman.

Appointment of a vice chairman and 15 associate members of the Board of Veterans' Appeals, Veterans' Administration, was announced yesterday by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs.

R. L. Jarnagin, for several years connected with the Veterans' Bureau, was named vice chairman. The announcements followed appointment last Saturday of Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia as chairman.

The chairman and nine members of the board were selected from the country at large, while the vice chairman and six members were taken from the present personnel of the Veterans' Administration.

Chosen from various sections of the country to serve the board were Bartholomew J. Connolly, jr., of West Roxbury, Mass.; William B. Stacom, of New York; Charles D. Fox, of Roanoke, Va.; Sam H. Coile, Johnson City, Tenn.; Tom Thoits, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Burke H. Sinclair, Laramie, Wyo.; John C. Fischer, Seattle, Wash., and Donald A. Hobart, Bronxville, N. Y.

Board members appointed from the Veterans' Administration included Dr. Charles D. Collins, Dr. William G. Cassels, John A. Nelson, James D. Hayes, Harry M. Seydel and Otto G. Elble.

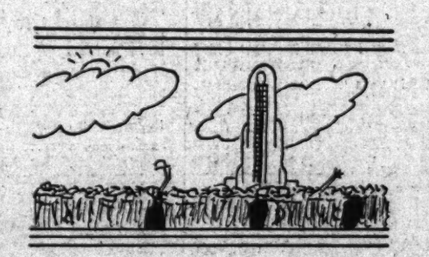
Christmas Shopping

THE Thanksgiving Day program in thousands of homes will include scanning the offerings of Washington's fine stores Thanksgiving morning in

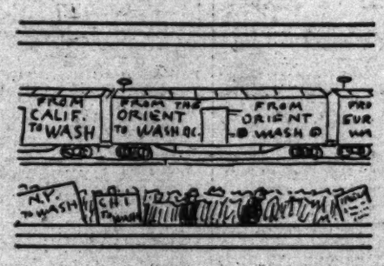
THE WASHINGTON POST

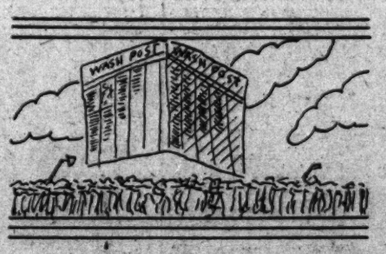
WE are accustomed as a matter of tradition (and as slaves of habit) to "starting" our Christmas planning and shopping activities the day following Thanksgiving . . .



HUNDREDS of thousands of Washingtonians are anticipating the thrills of shopping, ready to experience the glow that comes in giving, set for a new high in joyous response to the spirit of the season . . .

MARKETS of the world have been combed by Washington stores that you may have the richest and finest qualities, the widest possible range of prices, the greatest quantities from which to select . . .





AND THE POST—the medium that brings the Christmas buyer and the Christmas seller together—as a faithful visitor at your front door these mornings will simplify your shopping routine and be at your elbow to guide you in laying out your shopping program.

ADVERTISEMENTS in The Post Thanksgiving morning will assist thousands of persons in making selections of fresh, new merchandise offered by Washington merchants . . . and in starting on a real "shop early" campaign Friday and Saturday.

Stocks Weaken As Exchange Favors Dollar

Metal Issues Lead Drop; Sales Volume Totals 1,536,739 Shares.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—With dollar exchange and investment bonds still following the recovery road, speculative markets weakened today as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation left its gold price at $33.76, thus rounding out a week of no change.

Whether this cessation of official pressure against the currency reflected Washington's desire to see firmer bond markets as the time approaches for mid-December Treasury financing went unexplained officially.

Reiterations were heard as to the Adminsitration's intention of going ahead with present policies despite criticism, but the dollar had a good rise, advancing strongly against sterling and the European gold moneys, and it was easily the focal point of the financial day.

Accounting for Strength.

Some of this strength may have represented return of capital; it was also undoubtedly due in part to further covering by speculators in exchange, who, together with recent buyers of foreign gold bonds—these were weak—have been taking in sail since American currency began its latest rally.

Stocks and many of the commodities weakened. Shares lost 1 to around 7 points, with largest declines in the "inflation" groups, particularly metals.

Sterling at one time was off around 12 cents to its lowest since early this month, and francs, affected in part, presumably, by the French fiscal situation, had a sharp reaction.

Effect of Rally.

It was generally taken for granted that this further rally by the dollar had contributed to the retreat from speculative positions, although many financial observers are contending that currency stability would eventually exert a "constructive" influence.

Several of the mining stocks backed up 3 points or so. In this group were Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and Dome, with Howe Sound off almost as much. United States Smelting broke nearly 7 and Homestake tumbled just 7.

Allied Chemical, Du Pont and Western Union lost 4; Santa Fe, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, Santa Fe and Chrysler around 3, and United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, Union Pacific, General Electric, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Sears-Roebuck and Harvester 1 to more than 2. Case yielded 5. Transactions reached the moderate volume of 1,536,739 shares. The market was fairly steady until noon, when the decline became more pronounced.

Legality of Gold Program

'To Average Person Arguments Will Not Appear Reasonable

By Ralph West Robey.

Publication of some of the arguments on the legality of the current gold buying by the R. F. C. is an interesting and valuable addition to this chapter in our financial history. It has been known from the start that the legality of the action depends upon an interpretation of section 9 of the R. F. C. act, which gives the organization the right to discount its obligations, and that this necessitates the transactions being treated as a sale of R. F. C. notes, not as a purchase of gold. It also has been known that former Acting Secretary of the Treasury, Dean Acheson, was of the opinion that such an interpretation was invalid and that the President had to turn to other quarters to get confirmation for his action.

Only yesterday, however, were we given an opportunity to appraise the arguments which had been used by the two sides. In fact even this was incomplete. The entire memoranda submitted by Acheson and Stanley Reed, the counsel for R. F. C., who supported the purchases, were given, but the highest opinion yet obtained, that of the Attorney General, which also supports the purchases, so far remains completely secret from the public. Presumably, however, it follows the same general reasoning as that used by Reed. By and large, therefore, we now have an adequate basis for appraising the two schools of thought, and making up our minds as laymen which appears to be the more reasonable.

Issue Best Understood by Considering Reed First.

To do this, perhaps the simplest procedure is to consider first the line of argument upon which it is maintained that the Government has legal authority for its gold buying, and then to look at the arguments of Acheson which were discarded. The first point to note in this approach is that the act gives the R. F. C. authority to "sell on a discount basis short-term obligations payable at maturity without interest." Reed apparently holds that there is no limit to the amount of discount which may be paid. As he sees it, the R. F. C. is quite within its legal rights to pay a discount of around 40 per cent, as it is doing at present. On the same basis, presumably, he would see no legal objection to it paying 99.99 per cent discount.

The second point made by Reed concerns what is a sale. This is important, for unless the present procedure is a sale, it can not possibly be held legal under the R. F. C. act. In other words, there is not even any question about the R. F. C. not having the authority to buy gold. The only way it can buy the metal at above the statutory price is for this to be in the nature of a sale of its obligations. Upon this Reed holds that the current transactions do constitute sales of R. F. C. notes, the argument being that "the word 'sale' does not necessarily import an exchange for money only." It would be equally a sale, as Reed sees it, obviously, if the R. F. C. started to exchange $100 90-day notes for a bushel of potatoes.

Acheson Makes Three Main Points on the Other Side.

Acheson gives as his first point the view that when Congress empowered the R. F. C. to sell its obligations at a discount it was "for the purpose of putting the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in funds for use in connection with its authorized lending functions." Secondly, he holds that offering R. F. C. debentures for only newly-mined gold does not constitute a sale if the price for the metal is above the statutory value, for then it is dealing with gold as a commodity, not as money. Thirdly, it is his contention that such a spread between the statutory value of the metal and the maturity value of the debentures—about 40 per cent at present—can not be construed as a discount.

I do not see how any reasonable person can question that between these two lines of thought Acheson is correct. We all know that it was not the expectation of Congress in passing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act that the right to discount obligations would be used as legal authority for this organization to enter commodity markets and pay any price it likes for anything. Yet that is the burden of the Reed argument.

It seems to me, therefore, that not only is the Administration experimenting with a monetary policy which is endangering the credit of the Government and the financial solvency of the United States, but that as well it is doing this without legal authority. At the moment this may be of secondary importance, for the first task is to get the policy reversed, but it is worth remembering for the future. It is bad enough to have an Administration sponsor unsound measures and measures designed for the benefit of special interests, but is is worse if, having adopted a theory of some college professor, it goes ahead with it quite regardless of legal authority.

Bonds Renew Climb as Value Of Dollar Rises

Trading in Federal Issues Brings Gains; Sales $11,699,000.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Bonds, especially United States Government issues, exhibited further strength today as the domestic gold price was again unchanged and the dollar bounded upward in foreign exchange markets.

With the price upturn, however, trading volume was inclined to dwindle. Sales totaled only $11,699,000, par value, compared with $13,221,000 last Friday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced four-tenths of a point.

The announcement of the Treasury, after the close, that it had purchased last week, through the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, $8,748,000 of its own maturities, was about in line with Wall street estimates.

Banks Among Buyers.

Banks and other institutions were said to have accounted for most of the other buying. The Treasury's purchases were for the various accounts under its control.

Today's advances in the Government list ranged from four-thirty-seconds to twenty-six-thirty-seconds of a point. The best gains were in the Treasury loans. The only decline was shown by the Liberty Fourth 4¼ called series, which were off two-thirty-seconds of a point on a small turnover.

The rails were again the leaders of the corporate divisions. Advances of 1, to around 3 points, were recorded by some liens of Santa Fe, Baltimore & Ohio, Central Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, Erie, Great Northern, Louisville & Nashville, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Nickel Plate, New Haven and Northern Pacific.

On List of Gains.

The best gains in utilities and industrials included loans of American Telephone, Armour & Co., Cincinnati Gas, Columbia Gas, Consolidated Gas, Goodrich, Kansas Gas, National Dairy, Remington Rand and Western Union. Loans of Warner Bros., Portland General Electric, Philadelphia Co., and Colorado Industrial eased.

Weakness in the foreign exchange again found reflection in the action of many of the foreign loans.

Liquidation of positions built up on the recent rising trend of European currencies brought some heavy selling into French, British, Swiss and other European categories, in which losses ran from 1 to around 4 points.

University Holding Virgin Oil Lands

Austin, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP).—Stored away far beneath the rolling prairies of West Texas lies a reliable and increasing source of income for the University of Texas, in the opinion of Dr. H. P. Bybee, San Antonio, geologist for the lease board of university land.

Approximately 2,000,000 acres owned by the university lie in West Texas oil fields. Royalties on oil already produced from such lands approximate $20,000,000.

Surveys by Dr. Bybee indicate that nearly all of the university's land is situated in oil-producing territories of the Permian basin. Nearly every acre already is under lease.

Mexico Quits Aid to Workers.

Mexico, D. F., Nov. 27.—The government has warned it will pay no more money to repatriate jobless workers from the United States.

Bear Covering Sends Dollar Up in London

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—The United States dollar, helped by continental bear covering, wound up on the exchange market today with a net gain of 8¾ cents over Saturday's final rate and closed at $5.11½.

The bear squeeze reached its tightest pinch this afternoon when the quotation was $5.05½ to the pound. Afterward a relaxation of pressure on sterling led to an easing of the dollar rate.

The American currency opened today at $5.24, 4 cents weaker than Saturday's finish. At noon it stood at $5.22¾, and the official close was at $5.08.

The improvement was hastened by news that the American gold price was unchanged.

The French franc, meanwhile, stood the pressure of continental selling well after official control had been applied. It finished at 84.50 to the pound, compared to an early level of 83.93 and the official close at 84.46.

In Paris the dollar closed at 16.32 francs (6.12 cents to the franc), 25 centimes higher than the official close of 16.07 (6.21 cents) of Saturday. The opening rate was 16.06 francs (6.22 cents).

The dollar was quoted at 2.66 marks (37.73 cents to the mark) in Berlin. Saturday's quotation was 2.64 marks (37.87 cents).

New York's Bank Stocks Improving

New York, Nov. 27.—The New York City Bank stock market during the past week continued the rally which developed toward the close of the previous week. The aggregate market value of the 16 leading issues as compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster was $1,142,400,000 as of November 24, compared with $1,101,074,000 at the close on November 17, an increase of $41,326,000, or 3.75 per cent.

The current average yield of the sixteen stocks of 6.86 per cent, compares with a yield of 7.12 per cent, reported on November 17. The current market value of the sixteen stocks is now 0.84 times their known book value against 0.81 on November 17.

Based upon current figures the sixteen stocks are now quoted at an average of 9.9 times their known earnings against 9.5 times at the close of the previous week.

Curb Driven Lower Under Metals' Lead

Alcohols Alone Stand Up in Drive; Sales Total 195,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—With the exception of alcohols, all groups on the curb exchange closed lower today. Metals were particularly heavy while utilities and oils also eased. Trading continued dull most of the day and selling was of a desultory nature.

Repeal shares offered stout resistance throughout the session and forged higher at the close. Hiram Walker finished with a 2-point gain while Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A" and "B" were up fractions to around a point.

Aluminum Co. of America lost most of its gain of last week, slumping to 73½, off 6 points. Newmont dropped 4½ while issues off 1 to 2 or more included American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, General Tire & Rubber, Gulf and Humble Oils, International Petroleum, New Jersey Zinc, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Sherwin Williams and Safety Car Heating.

Transfers approximated 195,000 shares, compared with 219,000 for last Friday.

Piano Exports Of Berlin Cut To Low Point

That Germany's exports of pianos have declined to a fraction of their former figure is revealed in a report from Vice Counsul C. T. Zwadazki, Berlin, made public by the Commerce Department.

During the first eight months of 1933, the report shows, the total number of German pianos sold abroad was less than 2,000 compared with more than 20,000 in the corresponding period of 1929.

The leading foreign market for German pianos is Holland, which imported 387 pianos from Germany in the current year. Exports of pianos to Switzerland, formerly not an important market, have increased from 215 in 1932 to 328 in 1933, the report shows.

Stocks—Prices dropped 1 to 7 points as foreign exchanges favored the dollar. Losses averaged 2.8 points. Metals led the decline. Sales turnover totaled 1,536,739 shares.

Bonds—United States loans again led bonds in the climb. Gains averaged four-tenths of a point. Banks and other institutions were said to have been among buyers. Sales declined in volume to $11,699,000.

Curb—Alcohols alone resisted drops to lower levels. Nearly all other issues closed in losses. Sales declined in volume to 195,000 shares.

Wheat—Spirited advances near the close failed to hold and wheat and other grains finished lower. Speculative demand waned; Government's money policy was blamed. December sold at 81½; May, at 85⅜.

Cotton—The price movement in cotton was largely influenced by the action of the dollar on foreign exchange markets. The market was under pressure during most of the day and closed barely steady at declines of 20 to 25 points. December sold at 9.69; January, at 9.71, and March, at 9.86.

Rubber—Crude rubber futures closed barely steady, 62 to 79 points lower. December sold at 8.28; January, at 8.45.

Sugar—Raw sugar was unchanged and stood at 3.15; refined was also unchanged, at 4.50.

Coffee—Spot coffee demand was steady. Santos, No. 4, sold at 9 to 9¼; Rio, No. 7, at 7⅜.

Silver—Bar silver was easy. It stood in New York, ¾ lower, at 42 cents per ounce.

Gold—The bar gold price was unchanged in the U. S. and stood at $33.76 per ounce. It stood in London at 125 shillings and 3½ pence.

Dollar—The United States dollar gained on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.10½ to the English pound; 6.06½ cents to the French franc, and 37.05 cents to the German mark.

Foreign Markets.

London, Nov. 27 (A.P.).—Business on the stock exchange was quiet today and prices developed irregularity. Fluctuating exchange rates checked speculative activity. Gilt-edged securities were maintained while brewery shares and German bonds improved. Kaffirs and other continental favorites drooped and the market closed quiet.

Paris—Indifferent to the formation of the Chautemps cabinet, most stocks on the bourse were resistent. Trading was dull in an indecisive market. The closing was calm.

Berlin—Tightness of money caused a dull opening on the boerse. However, a more cheerful tendency developed later, especially in mining shares. The market closed generally firm.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Dollar Action

January Closes at 9.71 as General Market Drops 20 to 25 Points.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—The price movement in cotton here today was largely influenced by the action of dollars in foreign exchange markets. The market was under pressure during most of the day and closed barely steady at net declines of 20 to 25 points.

In the early trading prices eased as the dollar worked higher. Houses with foreign connections and Wall street interests were among the more active sellers on the decline which uncovered stop orders and carried the active months about 18 to 23 points lower.

The pressure then tapered off and the market stiffened but the bulge met a renewal of liquidation as well as a little more Southern selling and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading, with December selling at 9.69 and May at 9.98. Closing quotations were at or within a point of these figures.

No change was reported in the Southern spot situation with offerings light and the basis firm but according to some reports mills were showing little disposition to buy pending an increased demand for goods.

Exports today 41,420 making 3,223,963 so far this season. Port receipts 47,491. United States port stocks 4,100,475.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easy today under December liquidation and local selling promoted by the easiness of lard and cotton. Final prices were 7 to 14 points net lower. Sales were 67 contracts. Bleachable spot, nominal; December 4.20, January 4.40, March 4.65, May 4.88.

Manitoba Plans Cultivation of Soya Beans

Efforts are being made to develop the growth of the soya bean in Manitoba, according to a report from the American consulate general, Winnipeg, made public by the Department of Commerce.

Agricultural experts in the province, it is pointed out, have been experimenting for several years with different varieties of the bean and believe they have now hit upon a type which can be successfully produced.

It is estimated that about 20 farmers in Manitoba grew soya beans during the current year. About 5,000 pounds of bean seed was produced and this will be used for seeding in 1934. Average yield was approximately 15 bushels to the acre.

While some growers reported difficulties in connection with harvesting, it is believed that with the experience gained those can be overcome next year. The results obtained are reported to have encouraged Manitoba's department of agriculture to believe that a soya bean industry may be practical in the province.

Imports of soya bean oil into the prairie provinces in 1932 amounted to approximately 1,000,000 pounds, the report shows, practically all of which came from Japan. Soya bean oil, it is pointed out, is chiefly used in the manufacture of soap, shortening and salad oil, although it has a variety of other uses.

The soya bean meal, which is the product after the oil is extracted, is very high in protein, running over 40 per cent, and low in sugars and starch, making it desirable for diabetics, invalids and infants. It is also much used in beverages, chocolate and coffee substitutes and proprietary foods.

Steel Expected To Get Influx Of New Orders

Moderate Rise in Activity Inspires Brighter Hopes for December.

Cleveland, Nov. 27.—With considerable underlying strength manifest in demand for iron and steel, and the steel works operating rate continuing to rise moderately, the industry is hopeful that December will reverse the usual seasonal trend, and result in a larger volume of orders and specifications than the past month, states the magazine Steel.

Gains in steel operations last week, which lifted the national average half a point to 28 per cent—in contrast with 17 per cent a year ago—were achieved without heavy purchasing by the railroads and automobile industry. They can be traced to the general desire of consumers to take in the bulk of the material due them on fourth quarter contracts.

Last week the first of the 1934 automobile models came off the assembly line, and though some makers are shutting down for inventories, steel releases as a whole are beginning to expand. Larger buying by the railroads and for public works is expected to be an early development. Confidence of the steel industry, therefore, is not now being diminished by the customary year-end influences.

Prices for Quarter.

Such price adjustments as have been made for the first quarter are calculated to induce specifying and new purchasing. The majority of heavy finished products are unchanged from present market levels, but as most consumers have contracts extending to December 1 which were booked at lower prices, substantial specifications are assured. Also, in products that have just been advanced for first quarter, purchasing is expected to be accelerated.

Tin-plate prices have been advanced $12 a ton; terne plate, $7; wire rods are up $1 a ton; manufacturers' wire, $2; wire nails, $5; track bolts, $3; bale ties, $7 to $13; boiler tubes, $4 to $6 a ton.

All sheet and strip prices and plates, shapes and bars have been extended for first quarter. Due to the increase in wire, bolt manufacturers contemplate an adjustment. A rise of $3 a ton on cold-finished steel bars and $1 a ton on concrete reinforcing bars also is being considered.

With these exceptions, the steel price structure for the first quarter now is definitely known. The advances do not become effective until the first week in December, and they will apply on spot business next month.

The only other price changes announced during the week were increases of 50 cents to $1 a ton on pig iron in Eastern markets, and $1 a ton on cast-iron pipe at Chicago. Some pig iron producers have not yet decided their policy; they, like steel manufacturers, may raise their prices at any time, though a reduction requires a ten-day notice.

An amendment to the steel code permits quoting prices to the railroads for six months, instead of three. This need was brought out by the Pennsylvania's inquiry for 159,000 tons of rails and accessories, on which bids were opened last week and forwarded to Coordinator Eastman.

Negotiations for Rails.

Practically all the railroads have started negotiations for rails, fastenings and miscellaneous materials, many of them to buy with their own funds instead of borrowing from the Government. This is the case with the Lackawanna, which came into the market for 12,000 tons of rails and 3,600 tons of track fastenings.

Structural steel awards for the week dropped to 14,937 tons, including 7,000 tons for Mississippi River locks. In pipe, miscellaneous Western gas line orders placed 2,500 tons on a valley mill's books. Pipemakers are looking forward to large requirements from Russia, but it has been intimated to them they will have to finance the sales.

November pig iron shipments were larger than those of October, and specifications indicate December will show further improvements. Little scrap is moving, and the general market is easier.

Exports Rise Sharply.

Iron and steel exports for October rose sharply to 164,755 gross tons from 108,799 tons in September, and were four times the October tonnage last year. Imports, on the other hand, dropped to 46,673 tons, from 55,706 tons in September.

Steel works operations during the week increased 1 point, to 22 per cent at Pittsburgh; 1, to 32 at Youngstown; 2, to 48 at Cleveland; 5, to 51 at Wheeling, and 5, to 75 in New England. The rate declined 9 points, to 36 per cent at Detroit, and ½ point, to 17 in eastern Pennsylvania. It remained unchanged at 32 per cent at Buffalo; 20 at Birmingham, and 29 at Chicago.

Steel's iron and steel composite for the week remains $31.59; the finished steel composite, $49.20; while that for scrap is down 25 cents, to $9.33.

Prices of Newsprint Will Stand to April 1

New York, N. Y., Nov. 27.—International Paper Co. today announced that it has sent notices to its newsprint contract customers under which there will be no change in the net cost of their paper up to April 1, 1934. It is further stated that any change in the net cost of paper after that date will be made only after careful consideration of conditions prevailing in the paper and publishing industries.

The present net cost is stated as $40 a ton for New York and Chicago.

Belgium Mints Bi-Lingual Coin.

Brussels Nov. 27 (AP).—Belgium's new 20-franc pieces will be minted in an alloy of 68 parts silver to 32 copper and will bear King Albert's head and an inscription in both French and Flemish.

Ickes Merges Major Federal EducationUnits

Zook to Direct Enlarged Office of Education; Staffs Retained.

Consolidation of two major Federal agencies dealing with the promotion of education under the Department of the Interior was announced yesterday by Secretary Ickes.

An official order merged the functions of the Federal Board for Vocational Education and the U. S. Office of Education in the Department of the Interior.

Dr. George F. Zook, U. S. commissioner of education, will direct activities of the enlarged Federal Office of Education.

"This transfer of the functions of the board is not to be interpreted as any curtailment of the activities of the Federal Government in the field of vocational education," said a statement issued by Mr. Ickes. "Both Commissioner Zook and I have long been deeply interested in vocational education and we both propose to promote the development of this highly important part of the field of education vigorously."

The designation of Dr. J. C. Wright as assistant commissioner for vocational education instead of director, Federal Board for Vocational Education, will cause no change in his duties, Mr. Ickes said.

The merger of the two units will not result in the dismissal of any employes, it was said. There are 83 employes of the office of education and 76 of the board for vocational education. All have received permanent appointments.

The full staff of the new office will be needed to handle the extra work imposed by the relief programs, Dr. Zook said. His organization is cooperating with educational activities of the Emergency Relief Administration, school building features of the Public Works Administration, and educational program of the Civilian Conservation Corps, and also is working out new educational problems created by the Recovery Administration's ban on child labor.

Women Voters Discuss Latin-American Parley

Relations of the United States with Latin America and progress of the international conference now assembling in Montevideo will be discussed at the round-table conference of the District League of Women Voters, beginning tonight. Mrs. E. W. Spalding will address an open meeting on the Monroe Doctrine at 8 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Henry Chalmers, chairman of the league committee, at 5335 Forty-third street northwest.

Three previous discussions covered the London Economic Conference, the League of Nations and the Manchurian situation. Reports on these subjects will be presented by Mrs. Benjamin Wallace and Mrs. Max O. Lorenz in January at a session to precede the national conference on the cause and cure for war.

National Capital Choir Gives Concert Tonight

Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" will be sung by the National Capital Choir at a free concert tonight in the Universalist National Memorial Church, Sixteenth and S streets northwest.

The concert, beginning at 8:15, will be under the direction of Albert W. Harned, organist. The Rev. Frederic W. Perkins is pastor of the church.

Caemmerer to Speak On "National Capital"

H. P. Caemmerer will give an illustrated lecture on "Washington, the National Capital," before the Cheverly Citizens Association at its meeting in the Cheverly Schoolhouse tonight.

"Making Cheverly More Attractive" is the subject of a talk to be given by Capt. Richard H. Mansfield, of the Metropolitan Police Department. The association will hold its annual election.

Fireman Is Injured When Autos Collide

Fireman George L. Goodenough, 24, of Engine Company 18, was cut and bruised on his face yesterday when his automobile collided with one driven by John Walton, of 4812 Seventh street northwest.

Goodenough was treated at Garfield Hospital and taken to his home, 4428 Ninth street northwest.

3 U.S. Agencies Give 13,486 Additional Jobs

Hopkins Reports 201,483 Now Employed on Civil Works.

Employment of 13,486 additional men on Federal projects supplied by three governmental agencies was authorized yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, civil works administrator, bringing the total employed on such works up to 201,483.

Of the new allotment, 12,200 men were given jobs in national parks and monuments in 28 States, including Maryland and Virginia. The Weather Bureau will put to work 696 men in compiling meteorological data under supervision of 200 weather stations.

Start Drive on Ticks.

The Bureau of Entomology was allotted 590 men, of whom 369 will undertake a campaign against ticks in the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware. The others will carry out eradication of sweet-potato weevil in Louisiana, Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, and Florida.

Administrator Hopkins had no data yesterday to show how many have been employed in States, cities and counties with allotments of funds from the Civil Works Administration. He will know by Friday, he said, how many men were paid with Government checks last Saturday.

The administrator estimated that 1,000,000 workers per week, up to the 4,000,000 he intends employing, will be put to work by December 15.

Committee Named.

Mr. Hopkins announced appointment of a committee to study technical features of a dozen or more proposed Federal research projects on which men may be given jobs.

The committee, chosen by the Central Statistical Board on request of the CWA, is composed of Frederick C. Mills, professor of economics and statistics, Columbia University; Bruce M. Stewart, director of research for Industrial Relations Counselors, Inc.; Ralph J. Watkins, director of the bureau of business research, University of Pittsburgh, and J. Parker Bursk, assistant professor of statistics, University of Pennsylvania.

Birth Control Debate Urged on Mrs. Sanger

An invitation to debate publicly the question of birth control was issued yesterday to Mrs. Margaret Sanger by the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Tenth and N streets northwest.

Declaring the "proposition you are promoting is wrong in principle," is "disastrous in its application as a policy" and is "fundamentally unsound and unpatriotic," Mr. Boorde said in a letter to Mrs. Sanger that he was depositing a $100 check as a guarantee that he would meet her in debate.

Telephone Coin Thief Gets 540 Days in Jail

Charged with stuffing coin telephones to obtain nickels, Warren F. McQuinn, 38, no fixed address, was sentenced to 300 days in jail on one charge and to pay $500 or serve 240 days in jail on another, in Police Court yesterday.

He had pleaded guilty when arraigned last week. He had been out of jail only two weeks after serving most of a 360-day sentence on a similar charge.

LEGAL NOTICES

300—Second order of notice—Divorce—August, 1933—No. 46347—Mercedes Garcia vs. Miguel Garcia. Superior Court, State of Connecticut, County of Hartford, the 15th day of November, 1933. Second order of notice. Upon complaint in said cause brought to said court, at Hartford, in said county, on the first Tuesday of June, 1933, and now pending, claiming a divorce and change of name, it not appearing to this court that the defendant has received notice of the pendency of said complaint, and it appearing to this court that the whereabouts of the defendant is unknown to the plaintiff, it is ordered, that notice of institution and pendency of said complaint shall be given the defendant by publishing this order in The Washington Post, a newspaper published in Washington, D. C., once a week for two successive weeks, commencing on or before November 22, 1933. By the Court. ROBERT L. ALLYN, Assistant Clerk of said Court. 21,28

PUBLIC NOTICE

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., Washington, November 27, 1933.—Ordered: That the Police Regulations and Traffic Regulations of the District of Columbia be and the same are hereby amended insofar as they are inconsistent with the following order No. 1208 of the Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia: Public Utilities Commission of the District of Columbia, Order No. 1208. November 15, 1933. In the matter of Regulations Governing the Operation of Passenger Vehicles for Hire having a Seating Capacity of less than eight passengers. P. U. C. No. 3013/14. Amending orders Nos. 1059 and 1187. By the Commission: Under and in accordance with the provisions of Paragraph 31 (d) of the Act approved July 1, 1932, entitled "An Act to amend section 7 of an Act entitled 'An Act making appropriations to provide for the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, and for other purposes,' approved July 1, 1902, and for other purposes," and such authority as is conferred by law, the following rules and regulations are hereby established for the location and operation of public vehicles licensed under the aforesaid Paragraph 31 (d). It is ordered, That Section 5 of Order No. 1059 as amended by Section 4 of Order No. 1187 be amended to read as follows: SECTION 5. (a) No driver or owner of a public vehicle shall demand any rate, fare, or charge other than those filed by the owner or operator of such vehicle with the Commission. (b) There shall be displayed in a suitable frame in the passenger compartment of each taxicab, in such position as to be in front of and clearly visible to passengers, an identity card to be furnished by the Commission on which there shall be legibly and understandable schedule of rates as filed with the Commission. (c) There shall be displayed on the right side of the windshield and on the window of the right rear door signs giving a description of the rates on file with the Commission, the said signs to be of such form and appearance as may be approved by the Commission. (d) No signs or other matter shall be affixed to the windshield or windows except such as may be authorized by the Commission or other public authorities. (e) No person who shall hire a motor vehicle, under any agreement, expressed or implied, to pay for the use of such vehicle a sum of money based wholly or in part upon the distance such motor vehicle travels while being so used, shall fail or refuse to stop, or attempt to avoid payment, of the lawful charge due the operator thereof. (f) No taxicab operator shall refuse to transport a passenger while holding his cab for hire. That Section 20 of Order No. 1059 as amended by Section 7 of Order 1187 be amended to read as follows: SECTION 20. (a) Every taxicab shall bear on each rear door an identifying design or trade name or the name of the "company" (owner) operating the cab, the word "taxicab" or "cab" (unless such word is included in owner's name or identifying design or trade name), and the cab fleet number. If an identifying design is used, the name of the "company" shall be painted on each of the front doors; provided that members of associations will not be required to paint their names on front doors. No association may operate under a trade name using any word such as "company," "corporation," etc., implying that cabs operated under that name are in common ownership, nor may an individual owner operate under any such trade name. Except as to identifying designs or trade names approved by the Commission, all lettering shall be Gothic in style three (3) inches high and of a solid stroke width of three-eighths (⅜) inches. (b) The cab fleet number shall not be greater than the number of cabs owned, with allowance for a reasonable number of vacancies. (c) All lettering shall be of such color and style as to be easily read under normal conditions of lighting. (d) No lettering other than that set forth in these regulations shall be placed on any cab without approval of the Commission. (e) No "company" shall operate under any trade name or change the identity of lettering or color scheme on any cab without obtaining the prior approval of the Commission. (f) No advertising or advertising device shall be placed in or on any cab without the approval of the Commission. (3) That this order take effect as provided in Sec. 6 (b) of Public No. 733, approved February 27, 1931. By the Commission: A true copy. JAMES E. MARTIN, Executive Secretary. By the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia: DANIEL E. GARGES, Secretary. Approved by the Joint Board: JOHN C. GOTWALS, Chairman. 28

Walt Mason, Himself

Starved Poets.

When Chatterton gave up the ghost, his country came in for a roast; it was indeed a frightful thing to let that youthful soul take wing in drab surroundings, squalid, bare, without a comfort anywhere. A wealthy nation should maintain its geniuses, its men of brain. When they have shown unwonted skill, the nation then should foot the bill for all the things they wear and eat and for the cowhide on their feet. "But then," observes the thoughtful sage, "it was a harsh and brutal age." But does the age in which we live more comfort to the poets give? Poor Baudelaire and Paul Verlaine spent all their days in grief and pain, with famine ever at their heels, their verses wouldn't bring them meals. And when they both were planted deep the people then began to weep for genius that was long ignored, and in their indignation roared. This century beheld, at birth, two British bards of sterling worth. John Davidson had placed his name somewhere within the hall of fame; and Richard Middleton, as well, seemed destined in that hall to dwell. They both were highly gifted men, they labored long with lyre and pen; they labored well, but lacked the means to buy some cans of pork and beans. They found a living was denied, and so committed suicide. What of this harsh and brutal age, when genius is denied its wage?

Advice Sought On New Moves To Aid Jobless

District CWA Calls Upon Civic Groups and Others for Suggestions.

Officials in charge of schools and other public buildings and agencies yesterday were invited by the District Civil Works Administration to submit worthwhile improvement projects which would supply additional jobs for the unemployed.

Citizens' associations and other civic and business organizations were extended invitations to submit suggestions to District officials. Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, director of highways, invited the associations to recommend highway improvements.

There now are 23 highway improvements under way, employing an average of 75 men each, Maj. F. M. Davison, in charge of highway maintenance, said. He said 16 other projects on which there quickly would be employed an average of 100 men each would be ready Thursday. These would absorb about 400 men at the start, Maj. Davison said.

Two new registration offices were opened yesterday by the administration. One was at 501 G street northwest and the other was at 230 Third street northwest.

David Ruml, in charge of the employment registration offices, said the G street office would register skilled and semiskilled job seekers in the building trades who have not registered at the main office at 480 Indiana avenue northwest.

The Third street office will register persons seeking jobs in hotels and institutions. Other job hunters will be registered at the Indiana avenue office, except unskilled laborers, who are to file applications at 312 John Marshall place, Mr. Ruml said.

Miss McGarvey's Rites Tomorrow

Woman Member of Bar Died in Chicago.

Miss Florence McGarvey, 28, of Washington, died in Chicago Sunday after an attack of pneumonia. She had been secretary to former Gov. Yates of Illinois and was a graduate of National University Law School and of Eastern High School.

Funeral services will be held in Hazleton, Pa., tomorrow at 9:30 a. m. Surviving Miss McGarvey are her mother, Mrs. Anna McGarvey, of 610 Rock Creek Church road northwest; four brothers, Ray, Joseph, William and Bernard L.; six sisters, Stella, Helen, Gertrude and Rose McGarvey, Mrs. Sarah Ferry and Mrs. Mamie Boyle.

Miss McGarvey was a member of the District bar. Her brothers, Ray and Bernard L. McGarvey, compose a well-known law firm. At the time of her death Miss McGarvey was employed by Representative Beck, of Wisconsin.

Ready for World Cruise on Schooner

Robert Leffingwell, 24 (right), and Charles Jordan, who together with the former's wife and two other youths, will embark on a round-the-world cruise in the 60-foot schooner, Falcon. Scientific research and adventures lure them, they said.

Cornell Educators Assail Gold Plan

Warren Colleagues Voice Fear of Results.

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—A fear that the Administration's gold-buying policy will be ineffective or may result in harmful consequences was expressed here today in a joint statement by Prof. Harold L. Reed and four other professors and assistant professors of the Economics Department of the College of Arts and Sciences of Cornell University.

The statement, made in response to inquiries, also was signed by Paul M. O'Leary, E. A. Johnson, Royal E. Montgomery and F. A. Southard, jr.

In Washington, Prof. George F. Warren, of the Department of Agricultural Economics at the State College of Agriculture, a division of Cornell, has been credited with advising major portions of the present Administration gold-buying policy.

Mrs. O. A. Bergren, Club Worker, Dies

Rites Today for Member of Many Groups.

Funeral services for Mrs. Media G. Bergren, wife of Oscar A. Bergren, 1354 Parkwood street northwest, will be held at the Hines undertaking establishment, 2901 Fourteenth street northwest, at 2 p. m. today, with interment in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mrs. Bergren, who died Sunday, was active in club and civic groups here and in Guthrie, Okla., her former home.

She was a life member of the Women's City Club, a member of the Political Study Club, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and of the board of the City Federation of Women's Clubs and of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Youths Plan World Cruise

Schooner, Bridal Pair and Two Companions Ready to Start.

Around the world in a 60-foot schooner on a 3-year honeymoon cruise of adventure in romance-laden lands of the earth; scientific research, tiger hunts, motion pictures of Voodoo rites, and entertainment by potentates of Siam and Nigeria.

Not satisfied with mere dreams, four youths and a girl have planned such a trip, which is to carry them from Portland, Me., down the Atlantic Coast, through the Panama Canal out into the open sea for Australia, the Dutch West Indies, Siam and many South Sea islands below the equator.

The night of their wedding in Chicago, Robert Leffingwell, 24, of Evanston, Ill., and Mary Jane Falcon, his bride, put their heads together and invited their ushers, Noel Thomas and Hugh S. Campbell, both 26, and Charles W. Jordan, 23, of Kenilworth, Ill., to join them.

They bought the Falcon, a 60-foot Nova Scotia schooner, and have worked since June completing details and gathering equipment for their take-off in January. Leffingwell and Jordan called at the Navy Department yesterday for data.

Sailing under the flag of the Chicago Yacht Club, the slogan of the cruise is "Safety and gentlemen all." Their charted cruise includes Guatemala, Jamaica, Panama, Galapagos Islands, Marquesas Islands, Tahiti, Cook Islands, Samoan Islands, New Hebrides, New Caledonia, Australia, Solomon Islands, New Guinea, Celebas, Borneo, Bali, Java, Sumatra, Siam, Singapore, Burma, India, Ceylon, Africa, Cape of Good Hope, St. Helena, Rio de Janeiro, Pernambuco, Martinique, Haiti, Cuba, Florida and up the waterway to Chicago.

Dr. N. P. Barnes Funeral Rites This Afternoon

Prominent D. C. Physician Was Active in Fight on Tuberculosis.

Funeral services for Dr. Noble P. Barnes, 62, Washington physician, who died at his home in the LaSalle apartments, 1028 Connecticut avenue, from a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday night, will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from Hysong's funeral home, 1300 N street northwest. Interment will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Born in Killbuck, Ohio, Dr. Barnes received his early medical training at Ohio State University. He later attended and graduated from the Baltimore Medical College. He was admitted to practice in the District in 1894. Later he received another medcial degree from Maryland University.

For years Dr. Barnes was closely associated with medical schools and societies of Washington. He became professor of pediatrics at National University in 1898. He was an organizer of the Washington Medical Society, and was elected president in 1897. For 24 years he was chief of service of the medical staff of Casualty Hospital. He also was one of the original members and organizers of the American Therapeutic Society in 1900.

Elected a fellow of the American College of Physicians, in 1916, Dr. Barnes devoted a large part of his study to the subject of tuberculosis. He was a professor at George Washington University from 1905 to 1908, and helped organize the Medical Society of Eastern Dispensary and Casualty Hospital.

He was a fellow of the American Medical Association, Southern Medical Association, Maryland, Virginia and District Medical Associations, and Columbia Historical Society.

Dr. Barnes is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen M. Miller Barnes, a son, Dr. John M. Barnes, of Buffalo, N. Y., and a brother, Forrest Barnes, of Washington.

Group Named For St. Marys

Farm Loan Committee Will Help Reduce Debts for U. S. Aid.

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.) The committee appointed by Gov. Ritchie for St. Marys County to assist the Agricultural Advisory Council for Maryland is composed of William F. Herbert, Dynard; John T. Briscoe, Leonardtown; George E. Quirk, Pearson.

This and other committees will endeavor to scale down farm debts so that farmers can take advantage of the Federal refinancing of farm mortgages.

The council hopes to evolve a plan suitable to both farmer and creditor, whereby the farmer can secure Federal loans.

County Agent J. Frank Wathen acts as secretary for the St. Marys County committee.

Murder Suspect Hails Police Car

Auto He "Thumbed" Had Officers Seeking Him.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Lawrence Wheeling, wanted here on murder charges, made a mistake today when he thumbed a ride from a passing car.

Wheeling got the ride—all the way to the Knoxville Jail.

The driver happened to be Detective Chief Dennis Fogarty. Detective Joe Kimsey was with him. They were looking for Wheeling when he hailed them.

Wheeling, a hamburger stand proprietor, is alleged to have hacked two customers, one fatally, with a butcher knife Saturday night because of complaints when they got no mustard and pickles.

Baker Who Tried to End His Life May Recover

Charles Prummer, 53-year-old baker, who shot part of his forehead away after an unsuccessful attempt at suicide Sunday night, may recover, Gallinger Hospital officials said last night.

Found standing on the second floor of his home, 918 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, by police Sunday night, Plummer strenuously resisted efforts to place him in a Casualty Hospital Ambulance. Despondency over financial worries was said to have caused the attempt.

Washington Man Hangs Self in Norfolk Hotel

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The body of a man believed to be G. E. Norris, about 40, of Washington, was found hanging from a closet door in the Monticello Hotel here late this afternoon. Letters addressed to Norris at 2700 Thirteenth street northwest and at 2218 Eighteenth street northwest were found.

Priest Charges Morgan Seeks Roosevelt Ruin

Attacks Al Smith Again; Says $41.34 Gold to Peg Dollar.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Father Charles E. Coughlin declared tonight at a mass meeting in defense of President Roosevelt's monetary program that the purpose of the "Wall street and Morgan attack on the Administration" is to "ruin Mr. Roosevelt and build up Ogden Mills for president in 1936."

The Detroit priest made this declaration in urging his more than 6,000 listeners—packed in the mammoth hippodrome—to boycott newspapers that "pander propaganda through the mouths of Wall street and J. Pierpont Morgan."

Raps "Tory" Paper.

"It's time to dump your tory newspaper into the river," he said.

"Who are they?" asked some one in the audience.

"You can tell them by reading the papers that support the Wall street gang."

The Detroit priest had to force his way through the jam with the aid of police. He walked to the stage on the arm of Henry Morgenthau, sr., former Ambassador to Turkey and father of the acting head of the Treasury.

With the pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower was Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, leader of the inflationary bloc in Congress; J. H. Rand, jr., the industrialist, and former Senator Robert Owen, coauthor of the Federal Reserve bill with Carter Glass.

Morgenthau Sounds Key Note.

Mr. Morgenthau, as chairman, sounded the key note of the night in declaring:

"Nothing is fouler and meaner than for some people at this moment to attempt to destroy the confidence the people have in the President.

"From my long acquaintance with the President and from my even longer acquaintance with my son, I can say to you that the monetary policy of the United States is in excellent hands."

Father Coughlin expressed the opinion the Administration intends to push its gold price up to $41.34 an ounce, and then stabilize the dollar.

The pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower said he had information that the price of domestic newly mined gold would be pushed through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's operations to the $41.34 figures.

Attacks Smith Again.

Attacking former Gov. Smith as a disciple of "the Morganistic philosophy," Father Coughlin said his opposition was not personal, adding:

"I admire Smith as a gentleman. He is the outstanding Catholic layman. I think he is the greatest political executive the Nation has had.

"But in this war, and this is a real war, no one can stand in the way of President Roosevelt."

Amplified Bishop Incident.

The priest amplified his statement in Detroit last night of a visit he said Smith made to the office of J. P. Morgan.

"Two Catholic bishops," he said, "visited Smith at his office building. One of them is dead now. You will hear from the other one. Smith was busy. He asked them to come along with him. They went in an automobile to the corner of Wall and Broad streets. Smith went inside—to the office of Morgan. He came out in about 15 minutes, his face in smiles, and gave the bishops to understand he had received a large loan for his office building from Morgan.

"One of the bishops called me yesterday afternoon and told me to go ahead and use the incident publicly."

Realty Board To Back Slum Clearance Plan

Kohn Is Assured Support in Whatever Program May Be Adopted.

Cooperation of Washington Real Estate Board with its contemplated dwelling rehabilitation program or any other plan of slum clearance for the city was assured Robert D. Kohn, director of housing, Public Works Administration, at a meeting of the board last night.

Mr. Kohn said real estate men can help his office by finding places where land costs are low enough to launch successfully low-cost Federal housing projects. He emphasized that the Government is not trying to compete with private enterprise in this movement. It has no desire to compete with good housing, but can not help competing with bad.

A. E. Demaray, senior assistant director, National parks, buildings and reservations, Department of Interior, said the latest project for the District is construction of swimming pools for the Banneker and Takoma Park Recreation Centers.

Other plans include the proposed Union Square, widening of Constitution avenue, Washington Monument treatment, surgery for park trees, new water lines, drains and bridges for District parks and the National Arboretum.

Mrs. Coolidge Opens Drive.

Northampton, Mass., Nov. 27 (AP). Mrs. Grace Goodhue Coolidge, widow of former President Coolidge, today opened the public sale of Christmas seals for the National Tuberculosis Associations.

Mother Held as Killer.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 27 (AP). Minus Doolittle, 24, whom a grand jury refused to indict last February in the slaying of Albert James McCoy, was shot to death tonight and Mrs. A. H. Bailey, mother of McCoy, surrendered to Sheriff Albert Hausser.

Milk for Needy Hinges on Plan Of Distribution

System of Giving Supplies Must Have Approval of Hopkins.

Free milk supplies for the District's needy will hinge on ability of District officials to devise a distribution plan acceptable to Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

Confronted with statutory provisions for competitive bidding on District purchases, Commissioner George E. Allen will confer today with Elwood R. Seal, assistant corporation counsel, who has investigated milk costs and distribution; Leroy A. Halbert, director of emergency relief, and H. C. Hargrove, District purchasing officer.

Hopkins has indicated presentation of a feasible plan will bring Federal relief funds to buy the milk.

Representative Crosby (Democrat), Pennsylvania, has suggested a plan whereby Federal agencies can purchase milk at 7 cents a quart—5 cents less than the open market rate.

Under the Crosby plan, the producer would receive 4½ cents a quart and the distributor 2½ cents. The Pennsylvanian contends 40,000 quarts a day can be handled.

Youth Held on Charge Of Mailing Death Note

Portland, Oreg., Nov. 27 (AP).—In default of a $5,000 bond, Gerald Von Longwell, 19, was held in the county jail today, accused of having sent extortion letters through the mails. He was arrested Saturday night.

The officers charged Von Longwell with sending a series of letters to Mrs. Katherine Heathman, demanding $3,000 under threat of death to her son, her daughter and herself.

Film Director Injured Seriously in Car Crash

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Lambert Hillyer, motion picture director at Columbia Studio, was seriously injured today when his automobile collided with a creamery truck. At a hospital it was said he suffered dislocation of the neck and internal injuries.

Former New Yorker Sues Noble Husband

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 27 (U.P.). Countess Marjorie de Aguirre, the former Marjorie Ann Skinner, of New York, today filed suit for divorce from Luis de Aguirre, Spanish nobleman, now in Buenos Aires.

Pole, German in Parley.

Warsaw, Nov. 27 (AP).—Marshal Josef Pilsudski and Hans Adolf von Moltke, the German minister, began today a series of negotiations on questions affecting relations between Poland and Germany.
